

DULLES SAYS TOP GOAL AT PARIS IS REVIVAL OF NATO AS VITAL FORCE

Expects Agreements to Follow if Sense of Need Is Renewed — Pre-Showing of Ideas Not Appropriate.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—A renewal of the sense of need for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is the most important single result expected from the NATO heads-of-government meeting opening in Paris Monday, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today.

Dulles explained his view of the conference to reporters. It was clear he regards it as a gathering that will produce friendliness and fellowship but few, if any, immediate specific agreements. Agreements will follow if the conference renews the conception of NATO as a vital force, Dulles said.

Asked how it was possible to revive the spirit of NATO without solving French difficulties in Algeria and British troubles on Cyprus, Dulles said he had no doubt the spirit would be reinvigorated.

Urgency was the key, Dulles said. "It would not be appropriate to make a pre-showing of what we intend to propose at NATO. The military proposals are already known. The very fact that we are having a meeting of the heads of government is evidence the Administration thinks of the conference in a special way. It implies urgency."

As for new ideas, Dulles said he had consulted with 30 persons in and out of the State Department in a search for suggestions. The State Department has no monopoly on ideas, he said; often better ones can be obtained from those who have the leisure to think in general terms, unburdened by daily tasks in specific fields.

Defines Purpose. Asked if the NATO meeting was designed to meet a crisis in confidence, Dulles replied it was not. He said it is designed to meet a situation that always occurs in history—the problem of holding together an alliance in time of peace. To do this, some sort of federal union must be theoretically desirable, he said, but it is not practicable now. He implied there would be a need to revitalize NATO every five or six years.

Dulles said he expected consultation among NATO members will be continually strengthened and broadened, that such consultation must become a habit. Asked whether the NATO treaty should not be revised to make consultation a requirement, rather than a habit, Dulles said he did not think that would be wise because it might interfere with the President's duty to conduct foreign policy.

Problems Facing Meeting. Dulles, who plans to leave Thursday for Paris, said he thought NATO could make greater use of European industry to produce modern weapons. He said also the broad question of global versus limited or "brush fire" war is being restudied by NATO and he would be a report next year.

One of the problems to be discussed at Paris concerns the stockpiling of atomic weapons in Europe for the use of Allied forces. Dulles was asked to comment on reports that some NATO countries do not want NATO missile bases on their territory because that might make them targets of a Russian attack.

Dulles replied, as he has before, that the United States has no desire to force bases on any nation. If any country did not want bases it would not get them, he said.

Asked whether he expected an agreement in principle at NATO on rocket bases, Dulles said he did not, but he did not favor agreements in principle because they never get anywhere. Any agreements that may be reached tentatively on the sharing of nuclear information would be specific, Dulles said.

Many Changes Since 1949. Dulles observed some of the conditions that obtained in the world when the NATO pact was signed in 1949 have changed. A new family of nuclear weapons has been created, long-range missiles are now a reality and the Russians have evidenced a willingness to provide economic aid for other countries at the expense of the comfort of their own people, he said.

The Secretary said his relationship with Adlai Stevenson had been highly satisfactory and very gratifying personally. He said that they had worked together in complete harmony and understanding and that the Administration was availing itself of his valuable suggestions.

Dulles declined to comment on Stevenson's decision not to go to Paris.

A reporter noted that George Kennan had been lecturing in England and asked whether there was any thought of inviting him back into the department to take advantage of his thinking. The former United States ambassador to Moscow,

NAVY SHOWS NEW GUIDED MISSILE; TEST A SUCCESS

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif., Dec. 10 (UP)—The Navy today showed off its new Regulus II, a supersonic guided missile soon to become operational aboard fighting ships and submarines.

In its first semi-public demonstration, the missile, which can carry a nuclear warhead and was designed to replace the Regulus I—now carried on surface and subsurface craft—was launched from the desert base.

The surface-to-surface missile, capable of flying at twice the speed of sound and smashing down on a target more than 1000 miles away, was guided on a flight of about half an hour and then brought in to a landing on its retractable tricycle landing gear by a jet "chase" plane. The missile used today had been "recovered" twice previously in this manner.

The Navy described the test as successful.

U.S. JUDGE WON'T RULE ON DALLAS INTEGRATION

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 10 (AP)—United States District Judge William H. Atwell yesterday dismissed a suit aimed at finding out which conflicting integration-segregation laws have the greater power: federal or state. The judge ruled that a federal court cannot pass on the constitutionality of a state law.

The School Board faces two legal decisions which oppose each other.

FIVE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Dec. 10 (AP)—Five persons, including four members of one family, were killed yesterday when a light plane plunged into Twelve Mile sound near Hollis, 45 miles west of Ketchikan.

Killed were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Hollis, their two small children and the pilot of the craft, Don Morgan of Hollis.

and author of the Truman Administration's "containment policy" for blocking Soviet expansion, was forced out of the Foreign Service shortly after Dulles became secretary.

Dulles replied with a grin that he had an opportunity to get Kennan's thinking anyway and let the subject drop.

Dulles blamed Communist-dominated unions for the seizure of Dutch business firms in Indonesia. He said the United States has expressed the hope to the Indonesian government that moderation will be employed and that law and order will not break down in the current crisis.

COMIC TAKE-OFF ON PHILIP HAS LONDON GASPING

LONDON, Dec. 10 (UPI)—Ace impersonator Peter Cavanagh set London's theater world gasping early today with a comic caricature of Prince Philip's famous geophysical year television lecture—complete with stogues butting in.

Dressed as an admiral of the fleet, he wore a blond wig which was an exact copy of the Prince's thinning hair. He also prepared his script from a copy of the Prince's TV lecture.

The act proved the hit of the night. Even the Prince laughed, particularly when three comedians kept bursting in with cracks.

Cavanagh said permission for the skit was given by Buckingham Palace but not the Prince. It is believed to be the first time a living member of the royal family has been impersonated in public.

JAPAN'S CABINET APPROVES REPARATIONS FOR INDONESIA

TOKYO, Dec. 10—The Japanese cabinet approved yesterday an $800,000,000 reparations formula for Indonesia worked out by Premier Kishi on his visit there 10 days ago and initiated in a memorandum in Jakarta Sunday night.

Japan agreed to abandon its trade debt of the equivalent of about $175,000,000 and to pay Indonesia $225,444,000 in pure reparations in 12 years at an annual rate of $20,000,000 a year.

Tokyo also agreed to see that Japanese trade firms extended loans or made investments in Indonesia to a total of $400,000,000 in the next 20 years.

IT WAS LIGHTNING THAT PUT THOSE HOLES IN FARM

RED BAY, Ala., Dec. 10 (AP)—Strange holes which an Alabama farmer found on his land after hearing a "roaring racket" were caused by lightning, Army experts concluded today.

"There is absolutely no evidence that anything dropped from either outer or inner space," the experts reported to Third Army headquarters in Atlanta.

Discovery of a long irregular hole and several smaller ones one the farm about 12 miles from here had aroused all kinds of speculation. The Third Army sent two explosive demolition experts and a member of the Counter Intelligence Corps.

The latter, a spokesman explained, went along "just in case any international elements might be involved."

But after prodding into the earth and taking readings from detection instruments, the experts pointed out that the long crater, some 38 feet in length, started at the base of a large tree and that there were strands of fence at the site. Hence, they concluded, lightning could have had both an effective point of contact and good conductors "to play quite a lot of havoc."

JOHNSON CALLS FOR SCRAPPING 40-HOUR WEEK

Says It Won't Produce I.C.B.M. — Suggests Wartime Mobilization Schedule.

WAXAHACHIE, Tex., Dec. 10 (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson (Dem., Texas), called today for scrapping the 40-hour work week and for possibly a full-war time mobilization schedule to meet Russia's Sputnik and missile developments.

"The 40-hour week will not produce the I.C.B.M. (intercontinental ballistic missile)," he asserted in a speech prepared for a luncheon of civic leaders in this small north Texas city.

"We are justified in calling for an end to the 40-hour week, but not as a means of increasing profits of business."

"We are justified in demanding that business make no exorbitant profits, but not as a means of socializing industry."

America suffered another setback comparable to Pearl Harbor," he said, referring to Russia's launching of its first earth satellite.

"Its consequences could be far more serious than anything that happened in Hawaii in 1941."

The United States will be preserved, he said, "only if we are willing to take the steps that mean achievement."

"And those steps will require sacrifice—in the words of Winston Churchill, blood, sweat and tears."

"Business as usual" will not place a satellite in the skies. "The sacrifices that are required are not too hard in view of the needs. But either we tighten the belt around our waist or the Communists will tighten the noose around our throat."

"And on one point we must be absolutely clear. The grave emergency must not become an excuse for enriching some groups at the expense of others."

"Sacrifice must be a road upon which all can march proudly—the business man, farmer, worker and professional. Every one of us has an equal stake in survival. Every one of us has an equal obligation to contribute to survival."

"We are facing in the next few years the greatest peril in our history."

In his speech Johnson did not say whether he believed workers would receive time and a half, straight time, or no additional pay for working more than 40 hours.

French Reported Accusing U.S., Britain of Trying to Boss NATO

Plans for Summit Parley Hit Snag — Paris Irritated by Word That Other Two Nations Agree on Bases.

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP)—Preparations for the NATO summit conference hit a snag today over French assertions that Britain and the United States were trying to boss the alliance, informed sources said.

The French were irritated by reports that Britain and the United States had agreed to set up nuclear missile launching bases in Britain.

French delegate Count Etienne de Crouy-Chanel reportedly demanded at a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's permanent council that there be a "protracted discussion of atomic balance" among NATO members.

This was understood to reflect French fears that Britain and the United States were shoving France aside in the field of nuclear weapons and on other unspecified subjects. France was pictured as the only dissenter.

North Atlantic Treaty Organization sources said it would take considerable argument to reach an agreement with the French in the closed council sessions on an agenda for the chiefs of government next week.

The French feel they have been affronted by three recent events:

1. The United States-British delivery of arms to Tunisia over French protests.

2. A reported decision by NATO's military chiefs to concentrate the alliance's European air fighter strength in a craft built by the Italian Fiat firm instead of in rival French airplanes.

3. Increasing United States-British unity in the face of the Soviet threat, dramatized by the missile base agreement.

French officials and the press have interpreted this agreement as being aimed more against France than against Russia.

This attitude has puzzled some of France's allies, most of whom believe measures to counter Soviet threats are urgent.

ACCORD IS NEAR, McELROY THINKS

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (AP)—United States Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy expressed confidence tonight the United States and Britain will conclude an agreement soon to set up medium range rocket bases in Britain.

McElroy told an airport news conference negotiations with Britain are in the final stages and should be wrapped up "within a short time."

"We see nothing that should interfere with the successful conclusion of the agreement," McElroy added.

McElroy flew here from talks with British officials, including Prime Minister Macmillan, Defense Minister Duncan Sandys and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

After a short stay in Berlin, McElroy will visit American units in West Germany and will confer with West German officials in Bonn Thursday before going to Paris to attend the North Atlantic Treaty Organization summit meeting next week.

Proposals for establishing United States missile bases in other western European countries are expected to be discussed in Paris. American proposals to set up missile bases in the key centers of Europe are known to be before the permanent NATO council already.

The same ratio of three national to one American base would apply to all countries supplied with United States missiles, according to the proposals.

British officials said McElroy gave a new promise that the United States will never launch a nuclear attack from its bases in this country without first consulting the British Government.

His reported pledge would, of course, only repeat a firm understanding between past American and British Administrations.

Turks to Get Nikes. Turkey, another NATO member, said yesterday it will soon have United States Nike anti-aircraft missiles and Honest John artillery missiles.

The United States has agreed to supply them under a United States mutual assistance program and "based upon the guidance of NATO," Premier Menderes announced in Ankara.

The United States is already supplying such missiles to some other of its allies, but without nuclear warheads.

Belgium announced that it also has accepted an American offer to equip a unit of its army with Nike missiles. A defense ministry announcement said Belgian personnel already are being trained at American air bases to use the weapons.

Suffocates in Tree.
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP)—A man trimming a palm tree in a cemetery was suffocated when a mass of palm fronds slipped down the trunk of the tree and enveloped him. The body of Melchor Vargas was found yesterday 40 feet up the tree, still fastened in his safety belt.

TURKS, GREEKS CLASH IN CYPRUS; BRITISH STEP IN No-Man's Land Finally Set Up Between Forces—Church and Market Damaged.

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Dec. 10 (AP)—Turks and Greeks clashed today all along the line that separates their two sectors in Nicosia. British troops broke up many furious clashes.

Turkish-speaking Cypriots charged into the Greek sector seeking revenge for the wounding of a Turkish policeman during a violent Greek Cypriot demonstration against British rule. Earlier in the day, the Turks stoned cars and looted shops.

Turkish police had been unable to control the mob, which armed itself with stones and clubs and stormed into the Greek quarter from Atatürk square. Greek owners hurriedly barricaded their shops and fled as the Turks approached.

British troops rushed to the end of Ledra street, Nicosia's main thoroughfare, kept the Greeks and Turks separated by a no-man's-land. The Greeks and Turks hurled abuse at each other.

A fire started in the Greek-owned Cyprus Transport Co.'s depot, housing about 20 vehicles. Turkish mobs slowed down the fire engines speeding to the scene.

Military police patrols toured the city announcing the imposition of a curfew.

Among places heavily damaged by mobs were Nicosia's municipal market and St. James Church, which is isolated in the Turkish quarters.

The Church swept in from the Old City as British troops battled Greek Cypriot students near Nicosia Gymnasium, the island's largest school.

The striking students climbed to the roof of the school and other buildings and rained stones, bricks and bottles on soldiers and police. Security forces broke up the demonstration with tear gas and clubs.

Eight security men and 20 students were injured yesterday. It was the fourth straight day of demonstrations and rioting keyed to the United Nations debate over this British-held Mediterranean island.

Greek Cypriots rioted and went on a 24-hour strike yesterday.

TESTIFIES WIRES USED IN UNION'S OFFICES COULD BE USED IN TAPS

Man Who Helped Hoffa Co-Defendant Install Cables Says He Doesn't Know Whether They Were.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Bernard Chamine, an electronics expert, testified today he helped wire the Teamsters union headquarters in Detroit and that the cables used could have been utilized for tapping "if properly connected."

But Chamine, a witness at the wiretap conspiracy trial of James R. Hoffa, president-elect of the union, said he did not know whether the cables actually were used for wiretapping.

Chamine said he was employed in June, 1953, by Bernard Spindel, a professional wiretapper, to assist in wiring the headquarters.

FBI Agent John Henry Doyle testified yesterday that Racke-ter Johnny Dio lined up Spindel for a job at the union headquarters.

Doyle said Spindel told him Dio had said "I have a friend in the Midwest who has to have his lines checked."

Hoffa is accused of conspiring to have the lines tapped so he could make sure his underlings were loyal to him.

Spindel is on trial with Hoffa and Owen Brennan, president of a Michigan Teamsters local, on the wiretap conspiracy charge.

This trial was not affected by the United States Supreme Court ruling yesterday that evidence obtained by wiretap cannot be admitted in federal court trials.

Although the Government has not introduced any evidence obtained by wiretapping.

However, another charge pending against Hoffa is affected by the decision, on charge. Hoffa is accused of committing perjury before a federal grand jury.

United States Attorney Paul W. Williams has said he intended to use wiretap evidence in that trial.

TESTIFIES RULE WAS ENFORCED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (UP)—A Teamsters officer testified today that the union's credentials committee strictly enforced the regulation that delegates to the 1957 Miami Beach convention be legally elected.

Joseph Konowe of New Rochelle, N. Y., who served as secretary of the credentials committee, cited instance after instance in which the committee rejected delegates who were not elected or approved by their locals.

Some of those rejected, he said, carried credentials signed by James R. Hoffa, who was elected Teamsters president.

Konowe testified under cross examination at a federal court trial in which 13 rebel rank-and-file Teamsters are seeking to nullify Hoffa's election.

Konowe said the credentials committee disqualified 65 delegates whose credentials were challenged.

Under questioning, Konowe said many delegates were challenged solely on the ground that they represented so-called "trustee locals" and the challenger assumed that the delegates had been picked by the Teamsters national board without authority from the locals.

Konowe asserted that in many such instances the national board chose delegates for the locals and the locals in turn ratified the board's choice.

This, Konowe said, made their choice perfectly proper and they were seated.

Konowe also testified that he and other union officers "made every effort" to relocate some credentials committee documents subpoenaed by the Senate racket committee.

When he first sought them, Konowe said, they were missing, and he discovered that they had, apparently "inadvertently," been thrown out by a maid in the Miami Beach hotel where the union maintained a suite.

He said, however, that they found "at least" 95 per cent of the missing documents and turned them over to the Senate committee.

Missouri-Illinois Forecasts

Missouri: Cold wave warning; strong northerly winds and colder weather spreading southward over the state tonight, reaching cold wave proportions in north and central portions, with minimum temperatures 10 to 15 in north and central, to 20s in extreme south by tomorrow morning; a few snow squalls in north and east central tonight; tomorrow partly cloudy and cold; high tomorrow from 20s in extreme north to 30s in south.

Illinois: Cold wave warning; cold wave tonight with northerly winds 25 to 35 miles an hour and low flurries; temperatures falling to zero to 10 above in north, and to 10 to 15 in south; tomorrow partly cloudy and much colder, with a few snow flurries likely in northeast; high tomorrow 14 to 22 in north, 18 to 27 in south.

Shoppers Waiting to Buy Perishables

Shoppers crowding entrance of A & P store at 4667 Natural Bridge avenue today before it opened to sell perishables at "substantially reduced prices." Most chain food stores have been closed by a dispute with Meatecutters. A union picket is at right.

POLICE NAB THIEF WITH PARKED CAR AS BAITED TRAP

A visitor to St. Louis unwittingly baited a trap for thieves last night when he parked his automobile, filled with clothing, in the 300 block of Euclid avenue.

Detectives Charles Ruzicka and Gerard Weisbrod saw the parked car on their early morning rounds today. This, they decided, was a good place to wait and watch.

Before long an automobile stopped beside the parked car. A woman emerged, broke a ventilator window of the baited trap, opened a door and grabbed four plastic bags full of clothing.

As she got back into her machine the detectives went into action. They gave pursuit and forced the automobile to the curb in the 4400 block of Pershing avenue.

The woman managed to escape as Ruzicka fired two shots, but the driver was arrested and the clothing recovered.

He identified himself as Ernest Robinson, 30 years old, a former convict, living in the 5000 block of Cates avenue.

Advertisements announced that certain Kroger stores would open tomorrow to sell perishables. Five Rapp's stores opened at 9 a.m. today to dispose of meat, fruit, vegetables and dairy products.

A & P announced the opening of six stores today and an equal number tomorrow. Bettendorf's store in Kirkwood will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. today.

The union contract committee will meet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Coronado Hotel to draft a new wage proposal for presentation to independent market operators.

Blassie announced yesterday that the offer would not be presented to the chain stores. The union is striking against 37 National Food Stores, and charges it was locked out by Kroger, A & P, Bettendorf, Rapp, Schnuck and Moll stores.

"We will oppose a decent settlement to the independent stores; the chain people can come to us," Blassie declared.

The union has demanded a one-year agreement with a 12.50 a week wage increase. Present scales range from $95.50 to $110 a week for journeymen.

Management has offered $9 a week the first year and $4 the second, under a proposed two-year contract. The industry also offered a 10 per cent increase to the union health and welfare fund.

The St. Louis office of the Missouri Division of Unemployment Security was crowded yesterday with idle food workers seeking unemployment compensation.

A spokesman said the number of applicants represented an increase of 1000 over Monday of last week. About 400 food workers applied this morning, officials said.

The St. Louis county office of the division, in Wellston, received 100 claims yesterday, a substantial increase over the normal Monday.

Blassie expressed the opinion the unemployed food workers could be absorbed by the smaller chains and the independent stores "in time." He pointed out that self-service chain stores require only a minimum number of workers.

FRISCO ASKS TO BUILD OVERPASS FOR SPUR LINE

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 10—Approval to build a new overpass for a spur line planned to the new Chrysler Corp. plant in St. Louis county was sought today by the Frisco Railroad.

In a petition to the Missouri Public Service Commission, the railroad said the new industrial site near Valley Park is separated from the main line tracks of the Frisco by Larkin Williams road, and it intends to build an overpass there.

The commission asked St. Louis county to permit construction of the overpass or answer in writing within 20 days if there is objection.

stores will open with supervisory help, and will remain open only until the perishables are disposed of at reduced prices. The stores will close as soon as the goods are sold and will not reopen during this situation.

The industry statement further declared that the employers' negotiating committee, in rejecting the wage demands of the meat cutters, is "determined to protect the public interest."

"At no time has our committee refused to meet with the union," the statement continued. "Excessive wage demands can only increase the hardships of inflation and higher prices. The committee regrets the inconvenience to the public and the unemployment of approximately 6000 food store employees."

GOOD SAMARITAN IS ROBBED OF $67 BY MEN HE AIDED

William Anderson of East St. Louis, resigned from the Good Samaritan Club today.

Anderson, of 1810 Baker avenue, had the urge to do a good deed when he saw two men trying to start a stalled automobile in the 600 block of South Fourth street, East St. Louis. He gave them a push with his car.

The other machine started and the two bumpers became entangled. Anderson got out of his car and helped separate the machines.

Instead of thanks, the strangers produced a switchblade knife and a pistol. They robbed Anderson of $67.

REPORTS FILLING STATION HELD UP, ROBBED OF $185

Fred M. Weber, night attendant at a Carl Bolch Oil Co. service station at 7700 Watson road, St. Louis, reported he was robbed of $185 early today by two men, one of whom was armed with a revolver.

Weber said his back was turned to the entrance when the men walked in. He was forced to give them $73 from his pocket and was ordered into the station rest room while the men broke open a cash box containing $112.

Tougher Training in Science Advocated by Educators Here

They Agree U.S. Lags — Improved Curricula, Better Pay, More Public Funds for Research Urged.

Substantial agreement with the Eisenhower committee's report that the United States is lagging dangerously in training scientists and engineers was expressed here today by faculty members of Washington and St. Louis universities.

The Presidential committee on scientists and engineers, headed by Howard L. Bevis, president emeritus of Ohio State University, warned that the nation must marshal its "brainpower resources" in response to the Russian technological challenge.

In St. Louis, educators who gave their views called for toughening of high school and college curricula, higher pay for teachers and scientists, and the allocation of public funds in larger amounts for support of science and research.

Old Warnings by Scientists. It was asserted here that American education had slipped badly in the last 20 years, and that the Russian lead in the Sputnik race simply dramatizes a situation of American inferiority to which leading scientists in this country have long been calling attention.

Alfred H. Weber, director of the physics department at St. Louis University, said the American lag behind Russia "is very critical and can get a whole lot worse. How big a lead are the Russians going to get before we take steps to recover our position?"

In Weber's opinion, the problem is basically one of education and goes back to the high school, particularly to the small emphasis placed on mathematics in the high school curriculum. He said students were emerging quite well-informed, in a general, descriptive way, but without the "quantitative" kind of training that mathematics affords.

Specific Knowledge Lacking. For example, Weber said, teen-agers can talk glibly about nuclear reactors and guided missiles, and they know that the nose cone of a rocket must be able to stand high temperatures, but they lack specific knowledge of how to deal with the temperature problem.

Weber said a qualification standards for secondary school science teachers had deteriorated. Furthermore, he said, students are inclined toward easy, descriptive, survey courses, not only because such courses take less work but because a student working toward a college scholarship can get higher grades.

Edward O. Condon, chairman of the physics department of Washington University and former head of the National Bureau of Standards, agreed that more mathematics was needed in the high school curriculum.

"Not Learning as Much." Not only has there been a drop in the number of students taking chemistry and mathematics in high schools, Condon said, but the students who do take these subjects are not learning as much as did students of 20 years ago.

Condon said these observations were valid, entirely independent of the reaction to Russia's Sputniks, and he suggested that the nation was reaping the consequence of its unwillingness to pay its teachers enough to live on.

Turning to proposals that Congress allocate $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 a year for scientific training Condon said half a billion dollars was a small sum relative to what is spent on national defense, particularly when the great benefits of such a program are considered.

Symptom of General Problem. Barry Commoner, professor of plant physiology at Washington University, said the decline in the amount and quality of science that is taught in schools was a symptom of a more general problem—the fact that the American people "have not yet recognized the value to society of education generally."

Commoner said it had been apparent to American scientists for some time, long before the Sputniks began circling the globe, that the state of science in this country was not as good as it appeared to be on the surface.

He recalled that a strong statement was made a year ago by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, whose committee on social aspects of science he is a member. The association report, issued last Christmas, warned of an impending crisis in science.

Complacency Cited. Commoner said the warning was received in some quarters with complacency because it was then believed that America had superiority. Now the Russians have provided experimental evidence, he said, that it is possible "to advance science faster than we are advancing it."

MAN HIT, KILLED BY 2 AUTOS IS IDENTIFIED

who lived on the Southmore Golf Club grounds, Butler Hill road, Mehlville, was killed last night when struck by two automobiles in the 3400 block of Lemay Ferry road, Lemay. He was 83 years old.

He was identified today by two friends, St. Louis County coroner Raymond L. Harris reported. Identity was not made immediately because the traffic victim had no papers on his person.

Herman Everding, 5014 Idaho avenue, told police he was driving north on Lemay Ferry when the man stepped into the path of the car.

Harold Z. Taylor, 4101 Reavis Barracks road, Lemay, said he was unable to stop his car before it ran over the man after he had been struck by Everding's machine.

Murlean Haley, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Haley, 930 Millet street, East St. Louis, suffered head injuries when struck yesterday by an automobile in the 1100 block of Bond avenue, East St. Louis. Clyde Jones, 1004 South Thirteenth street, East St. Louis, driver of the car, told police the girl darted into the path of the automobile.

In mind, Commoner emphasized, that the basic purpose of science is to increase mankind's capability for advancing human welfare.

Dean Don Fischer of the Washington University School of Engineering said engineers being graduated today were better trained than those of 20 years ago, but there was unquestionably a shortage of well-trained persons.

Of the approximately 25,000 engineers turned out by American schools each year, he said, several thousand are qualified and willing to take further training for advanced engineering degrees, but cannot afford to.

Dean Fischer said he and his associates at the university planned to propose that the Federal Government underwrite a $400,000 expanded scholarship program for engineering advanced training through the National Science Foundation.

He said such a program would be of immediate benefit in turning out more American engineers capable of handling atomic and missile assignments.

DULLES INCLINED TO ITALIAN PLAN ON MIDEAST AID

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today raised questions as to the details of an Italian plan for a joint European-United States development fund for the Middle East, although he said its underlying concepts were "quite acceptable."

Dulles was asked at his press conference for his reaction to the plan presented last week by Giuseppe Pella, Italian foreign minister, for development loans out of a fund to be set up with contributions based on a "Marshall Plan formula."

He said there would be careful study of the proposed arrangement to have the United States contribute Marshall Plan repayments from European countries having obligations under the United States postwar aid program and to have the European countries contribute amounts equal to 20 per cent of their repayments.

Another question to be considered, he added, is whether a new organization should be set up, or whether such a plan should bear the label of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or the Organization for European Economic Co-operation.

Pella had suggested that the OEEC would be the best parent organization for the proposed Middle East development fund, since it includes some neutral nations.

Dulles called the Italian plan a useful suggestion and emphasized that there was no dispute on its basic concepts that more needs to be done to help the less developed countries and that there is a close and vital relationship between Europe and the Middle East.

120 POLIO CASES IN MISSOURI THIS YEAR; 406 IN '56

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 10 (UP) — Polio still is on the decline in Missouri, the State Division of Health reported today.

Only three cases—and these were delayed reports — were recorded in Audrain county, another at Columbia and the third in Daviess county. There have been 120 cases of poliomyelitis reported to the division of health this year compared with 406 cases in the corresponding period a year ago.

Tuberculosis also is on the decline but not by as great a margin as polio. Thirty new cases of tuberculosis were reported to the division of health for the week ending Nov. 30. This boosted the year's total to 1500 cases compared with 1602 cases at the same time a year ago. Eighteen of the 30 new cases were reported in Kansas City.

South Africa's Premier III. PRETORIA, South Africa, Dec. 10 (AP) — Prime Minister Strijdom, acting on medical advice, has canceled all his engagements for the rest of the year. He recently had an attack of influenza.

At G.O.P. Fund-Raising Dinner

constitutional amendment to permit the Vice President to assume presidential powers when the Chief Executive is temporarily disabled, Adams pointed out that Mr. Eisenhower had urged Congress to correct this constitutional defect a year ago.

Up to President or Cabinet.

Under the Administration proposal, the President himself or the Cabinet, in its discretion, could declare the Chief Executive incapacitated and direct the Vice President to assume the duties and powers of the presidency temporarily. Adams said congressional committees held hearings on the proposal, but no action has been taken.

Adams indicated that the Administration still favors the proposal, but is more interested in getting action than in the specific form of the amendment.

"Whether the proposal made by the President is adopted in exact detail or not, action should be taken by Congress during the coming session in 1958," he asserted.

Even if such an amendment was approved by Congress next year, Adams said the proposal would not take effect before 1960 because time would be required for ratification of the amendment by the states.

Slap at Symington.

The Administration leader mentioned the missile problem only indirectly in his talk, in taking political slap at former President Truman and Senator Symington, an outspoken critic of the Administration's defense and missile programs.

Adams said he thought Missourians "are going to get downright indignant about that Big Bomber fellow from out here who somehow forgot to mind his missiles from 1946 to 1953, when he and another Missourian were supposed to be moving them along."

This was an indication that Republicans plan to charge in the campaign next year, in which Symington is expected to seek re-election, that he failed to take any action as the nation's first Secretary of the Air Force to encourage missile research and development by the United States.

Hocker, in attacking Gibbons, charged that the teamster official "has driven more business out of our city than the combined efforts of the Chamber of Commerce and the city administration has been able to bring in."

Hoffa's Right-Hand Man.

Referring to Gibbons as "Jimmy Hoffa's right-hand man," Hocker said the St. Louis teamster leader controls the Democratic party in St. Louis through domination of more than 25,000 Teamster Union members in the St. Louis area.

Gibbons's political power, the G.O.P. leader said, is shown by the fact that he held a dominant position as a member of the Missouri delegations to the 1952 and 1956 Democratic national conventions. It is also shown by the fact that Gibbons helped to defeat the proposed new city charter last August after obtaining the aid of Mark R. Holloran, Democratic national committeeman for Missouri.

"The power of the teamster bosses," Hocker continued, "is evident in the political ostracism of the best Democratic city administration this city has ever seen—Mayor Raymond Tucker, Aldermanic President Don Gunn and Comptroller John Poelker, who, unlike a certain Governor, a certain Senator and a certain ex-President of the United States—refused to attend the teamster convention billed as a Democratic dinner and held in this hotel two weeks ago."

He referred to the Democratic fund-raising dinner held in honor of Symington on Nov. 23, which Tucker and Gunn refused to attend because they had been ignored in the arrangements by its sponsors.

Hocker also charged that pressure is being brought on both Missouri United States Senators to delay or prevent the calling of Gibbons as a witness before the McClellan Senate committee which investigated charges of union racketeering.

Since St. Louis Democrats have "capitulated" to the teamsters, St. Louisans are looking to the Republican party for leadership to meet this challenge, Hocker declared. But he said the city G.O.P. must change to get the job done.

Criticizing his own party, Hocker noted that Missouri was the only state which switched from Mr. Eisenhower to Adlai Stevenson in 1956. He said greatest loss in Republican strength was in St. Louis, and that this occurred because the city G.O.P. "lost communication with the people."

Former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the Chamber of Commerce, called for an end of Republican factionalism in Missouri in a talk at the dinner. He said members of the party "must divert the energy they expend fighting each other to the common purpose of beating the opposition."

There was no representation from the Republican National Committee at the fund-raising rally. Elroy W. Bromwich, who resigned last week as Missouri's G.O.P. national committeeman, did not attend. The national committeewoman, Mrs. Horace S. Hedges of Kansas City, was unable to attend because of illness in her family.

There was some talk about a successor to Bromwich. Most party leaders refused to commit themselves to any potential candidate, however, preferring to wait and see what develops. Hocker, who has been mentioned for the post, said last night he would not be disposed to accept the position if offered to him, but said he had not given the matter final consideration.

Harvey A. Befla, executive vice president of Falstaff Brewing Corp., and state G.O.P. finance chairman, announced that gross proceeds of the dinner amounted to "better than $60,000." Leaders credited him with personally selling more than $30,000 worth of the $100 tickets.

Jakarta

ment and Communist trade unions continued taking over Dutch properties, the United States was reported offering to mediate the trouble between Indonesia and The Netherlands. United States Ambassador J. M. Allison called on Foreign Minister Subandrio and Premier Djuanda in Jakarta to express Washington's apprehension over the events in Indonesia. Subandrio said Allison offered United States help in seeking a solution.

At Pretoria the government of South Africa said it was offering asylum and employment possibilities to 1000 Dutch citizens forced to leave Indonesia.

Dutch evacuees poured into Jakarta from Bandung, Bogor, Semarang, Sumatra and other points in the Indies. Although cheerful, all showed the strain of leaving their homes, jobs and belongings. Most said they were anxious to leave as soon as possible.

Indonesia has demanded that all Dutch citizens except skilled technicians leave the country. Many of them are Eurasians who have lived all their lives in the Indies.

Skilled Workers Needed.

There has been no definite estimate how many will be forced out or will demand to leave. The Indonesians want all those whose skills are useful to the country to remain. If all pull out, the country's economy faces a breakdown from lack of skilled personnel.

Communist trade unions took over four more large Dutch firms including the Phillips radio and appliances factory. The Indonesian government was expected to follow up by taking over control from the unions, reinstating the Dutch managers to run them.

The Dutch firms in Jakarta which have not been seized are mostly small businesses—bookshops, retailers, garages and bakeries.

Clarifying the latest major seizure, Agriculture Minister Sadjarwo said the order putting all Dutch plantations and allied enterprises under government control did not constitute nationalization or confiscation.

Saying the government does not plan such a drastic step, "for the moment," he declared, estate owners will not get control of their property back until The Netherlands give Indonesia control of West New Guinea.

Explanation of Seizure.

The minister said the government decided to take over the more than 500 Dutch estates because it feared the action of "irresponsible elements." He did not specify whether he meant estate managers who might try to sabotage their property or Communist-led unions which have been seizing Dutch firms.

Sadjarwo said a special plantations board would be set up to control the estates. But he said managers and owners had been asked to stay on the job and would be permitted to remain as long as they assist the government.

Some estate managers welcomed the government order since it might prevent trouble with workers trying to seize their property.

Meanwhile, an Indonesian army spokesman said a series of explosions which destroyed the army's biggest ammunition depot near Bandung Sunday night was not caused by sabotage. The deputy army chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Gatot Subroto, said the blasts were caused by high temperature and the fact that most of the ammunition was old.

department would study how this works in 1958 to see whether it should be continued in 1959.

Benson gave this explanation of how the trial program would work:

After offers are made by farmers in the four states, the department will check to determine whether the program is effective in helping more farmers shift their eligible cropland from production of price-depressing surpluses to conservation uses.

The department will agree to the offers on the basis of the lowest acceptable bids, and the department reserves the right to reject any and all offers. If original bids are turned down, the department may possibly consider later revised bids.

Under regular conservation reserve procedure, farmers are offered specific per-acre annual payments for all or any part of the eligible cropland on their farms placed in the conservation reserve.

These rates, established by county agricultural stabilization and conservation committees, are still available in all states, including the four in which the bid trial is being made.

ARMY TRAINING CHIEF IN CHINA REPORTED FIRED

LONDON, Dec. 10 (UP)—Red China's Marshal Liu Po-cheng, head of the central training department of the army and vice chairman of the national defense council, was reported today to have been dismissed. Nationalist Chinese radio reports said it had been broadcast from Peiping that one-eyed Liu was dismissed last month. No such announcement has been picked up by British monitoring stations. However, it was noted that no mention has been made of Liu in recent weeks in broadcasts from Peiping.

Marshal Liu, like Russia's ousted defense minister, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, was involved in controversy about party control over the army. On Oct. 30, the Peiping radio declared that the problems faced by the Soviet party central committee in ousting Zhukov were not ignored in China. The next day Liu wrote in the People's Daily that there had been attempts by certain sections of the army to ignore party leadership but that this fault had been "virtually corrected."

privacy, and Hagerty said the Chief Executive "feels OK." Mr. Eisenhower was in his White House office shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and worked with members of his staff on onk business. He conferred for 15 minutes with Nuri Al-Said, former Prime Minister of Iraq.

The President gave James W. Riddleberger, a career diplomat, a recess appointment as United States Ambassador to Greece, and designated Dr. Alan T. Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation, as chairman of the Government's interdepartmental committee on scientific research and development.

Waterman succeeds Dr. Byron T. Shaw of the Agriculture department as head of the interdepartmental committee, which is composed of members from several Government agencies including the military services. The appointment is for one year.

Hagerty said it was not likely that the President would hold a press conference this week.

REFUGEES DEMAND RETURN TO HUNGARY BY CHRISTMAS

ST. PAUL, L'ERMITE, Que., Dec. 10 (UP)—About 200 homesick Hungarian refugees entered the second day of a hunger strike today, intent on forcing the Canadian government to return them to their homeland before Christmas.

An immigration official informed them shortly after lunch yesterday that only one plane load of refugees would reach Hungary in time for Christmas. The flights are scheduled for Dec. 15, 26 and 30.

The three chartered flights returning the group will bring back 201 other Hungarians from Yugoslavian refugee camps. Another 400 refugees are scheduled to arrive here by ship.

SINGS CHURCH COLLECTION, THEN PICKS UP NEW CHECKS

CRAB ORCHARD, Ky. (AP)—When the Baptist Church congregation contributed a sizeable collection, church treasurer Frank Burch took it home and hid the donations in a wastebasket for safekeeping overnight.

The next morning, unthinkingly, he carried the basket out and dumped its contents into a trash fire. Burch suddenly remembered the checks and jumped into the fire, scattering it right and left.

He spent the rest of the day visiting the homes of contributors, exchanging badly scorched pieces of paper for new checks.

Birds of a Feather.

TORQUAY, England, Dec. 10 (UP)—Convicts at Dartmoor, Britain's maximum-security prison, have taken up bird watching, officials say today. They said a prison chapter of the National Bird Watching Society now is making a special study of jackdaws. Jackdaws are notorious thieves.

SECURITY STEPS IN BEHALF OF MARGARET DENOUNCED

DUNDEE, Scotland, Dec. 10 (AP)—A number of Scots protested vigorously to police and railroad officials against unusually tight security precautions when Princess Margaret boarded a train for London last night.

More than 50 persons trying to see relatives or friends off aboard the same train were barred from the station platform. Only ticket holders were admitted.

The Princess, who had spent the weekend with friends in Perthshire, gave no sign she noticed any disturbance.

TRAIN WRECK ON FORMOSA LAID TO CHILDREN'S PRANK

TAIPEI, Formosa, Dec. 10 (AP)—Children who put stones on the track to see what would happen were blamed today for a train wreck in which 19 persons were killed.

Twenty persons were in serious condition and more than 100 others injured slightly in the derailment Sunday of the locomotive and eight of 11 passenger coaches.

The accident, about 15 miles south of Taipei, was the worst train wreck on Formosa in nine years.

CONFESSION OF KILLING OF GIRL IN '49 REPUDIATED

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 10 (AP)—An Indian state prison inmate yesterday repudiated the statement in which he confessed the killing of a Prestonburg (Ky.) high school cheerleader eight years ago.

Minor Caldwell Taylor, had implicated a woman and two men in the statement he gave Saturday at the Michigan City (Ind.) state prison.

State Police Director Paul Smith said one of the men—Pascal Smith—was in a Michigan prison at the time of the killing of Muriel Baldrige on June 27, 1949. Smith announced Taylor's repudiation. He said that Taylor also admitted the other man he had implicated—named Edward Brown—was an alias Taylor had used at times.

Missile Inquiry

mediate and long-range ballistic missiles can and must be advanced to counter Soviet missile achievements.

Since the investigation started Nov. 25 McElroy has ordered both the Army Jupiter and the Air Force Thor intermediate missiles into production, although neither has been fully proved in testing.

Plea to Eisenhower.

By the Associated Press.
Meanwhile, heads of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee made public a plea to President Eisenhower to step up scientific research and to release money appropriated by Congress for nuclear rockets programs.

A letter to the President from Representative Carl T. Durham (Dem.), North Carolina, chairman, and Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, vice chairman of the committee, recalled that on July 29, 1955, the committee sent the President a report warning that the United States' lead in ability to deliver nuclear weapons to distant targets "was declining and if the trend was not reversed, the Soviet Union would overtake and surpass the United States."

Some steps have been taken to promote scientific efforts and the missile program since Russia launched its satellites this fall, the letter continued, but "much more remains to be done."

"In particular," it said, "there is an urgent need for the Bureau of the Budget to release funds already authorized and appropriated by the Congress to carry forward (nuclear) projects in both the military and civilian fields which are vital to the national security and to world confidence in America's scientific capabilities."

The letter stressed the importance of producing a flying prototype of a nuclear aircraft "as soon as possible." It said the committee intends also to "consider at greater length whether we are moving rapidly enough in constructing additional atomic submarines, particularly those capable of launching" intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Von Braun Denies Handling Entire Missile Program.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Dec. 10 (AP)—Dr. Werner von Braun said yesterday that his missile operations were restricted to limited activities for the Army in the years immediately after World War II.

Von Braun now is director of development operations at the Army ballistic missile agency at Redstone arsenal.

Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler said in a television appearance Sunday that von Braun was in charge of the entire missile program in the Truman administration, and that if there is any responsibility for the United States missile lag behind Russia it rests with him.

Asked for comment on Butler's remarks, von Braun issued the following statement: "It is simply not true that I was in over-all charge of missiles as the records will indicate. My status as a non-citizen was such that no information was available to me except that concerning the limited activities I was engaged in for the Army."

"This amounted to the following: (a), supporting V-2 rocket launching at White Sands. (b), a small development project called "Hermes II" at White Sands. (c), Advising visitors from industrial companies on rocket engine development.

"The Hermes II project was all we could handle with the facilities available."

"It was never my intention to assess blame upon anyone for the so-called lost years. My personal conviction is that the United States could not have undertaken major military projects involving large expenditures during that period. The war was over and the people wanted homes, autos and other things, not long-range rockets."

"I have no wish to argue about who was to blame. The country's interests would be better served if we unite now to accelerate our efforts to regain international leadership."

Von Braun was one of a group of German missile scientists who came to this country after World War II. He now is an American citizen.

C. OF C. BOARD ADOPTS 8-DAM MERAMEC PLAN

An estimated $350,000,000 program for development of the Meramec river basin with three high dams and eight smaller ones was approved yesterday by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis. The directors adopted a five-point program recommended by the chamber's Meramec Basin Development Committee, headed by John F. Hallett, a vice president of the First National Bank in St. Louis.

Under study since the appointment of the committee last July, the program embraces the following points:

1. Establishment by the State Legislature of adequate state water policies and the passage of enabling legislation thereunder to provide for the establishment of one or more district watershed authorities and to co-ordinate dam construction and water use with the Army Corps of Engineers where applicable.

2. That major dams, built and operated by the Army Engineers, be approved in principle, subject to re-engineered costs and use of impounded water in concert with state water policy. The dams also would be subject to valid objections as to exact location and to uses of navigation pools.

3. Plan for Reservoirs. That concurrently with the major dams in the national interest the district watershed authorities or other agencies developed for this purpose construct eight or more intermediate sized reservoirs in the 2500 to 25,000 acre feet size designed for flood control, pollution abatement, industrial, recreational and other water uses. Operation of these smaller reservoirs would be co-ordinated with the major reservoirs for the best interests of the entire area.

4. That state water policy encourage the development of small watershed districts by local farm and conservation groups in addition to the intermediate dams built by the watershed district.

5. That plans be developed at the joint local and state level for land planning, zoning, highways, recreational, industrial and residential use of the Meramec Basin area.

Proposal in 1949.
The committee noted that the Army Engineers in 1949 had proposed three dams. One would be at Cedar Hill on the Big river, another near Sullivan on the Meramec and the third on the Bourbeuse river about eight miles above Union. At that time, the cost of the dams was estimated at $80,000,000 but subsequent inflation would probably boost that estimate to about $120,000,000 today, the committee said. An additional eight to 12 intermediate sized reservoirs would bring the total cost to about $350,000,000, it was estimated. This cost would have to be spread over a 10- to 20-year period and be justified by engineering and financial studies.

Cost of bringing engineering plans for the three big dams up to date would be about $100,000, and a year's time would be required, Army Engineers have stated. Several of the smaller dams could be engineered for about the same amount while smaller farm neighborhood impoundments would be local responsibilities that could be discharged with local and Hope-Alken Act funds, the report said.

The committee soon came to the conclusion that a combination of both large and small reservoirs would be needed if flood control, water supply, pollution, recreational and agricultural aspects of the problem were to be covered.

Federal Provision.
It also was noted that in the absence of state water policy and other prior rights of water use agencies, federal law requires the Army Engineers to consider only flood control and navigation if the project is to be eligible for federal funds.

"The committee felt," it said, "that it would be desirable for a commensurate degree of local and state control to be retained over the use of Meramec water, but until a state water policy can be established and enabling legislation be passed for the establishment of district watershed authorities, with appropriate powers and appropriate co-ordination with other state and federal agencies, including the United States Army Engineers, it is not possible to effect the co-ordination in water use that the committee feels would be most desirable."

The Meramec Basin comprises some 3980 square miles lying roughly 10 to 150 miles south and southwest of St. Louis and drained by the Meramec river and its two main tributaries, the Big and Bourbeuse rivers.

Iron Ore Discoveries.
While the better farming area and more attractive industrial sites lie in the northern two-thirds of the basin along the Meramec, the committee found, there are substantial discoveries of iron ore, other minerals and sites in several parts of the basin that could be of important future industrial and recreational significance.

"In short, the committee feels that the Meramec Basin, if properly developed, represents one of the major areas for the future expansion of Metropolitan St. Louis," it said. Objection by local residents to the Army Engineers' proposals has stemmed from the variable amounts of land that would be needed for the proposed navigational pool to supply additional water to the Mississippi River during times of low water. However, the committee found a large measure of opposition had disappeared in the wake of several very damaging floods in recent years.

MARINE PUT AT HARD LABOR FOR ABUSING MEN IN BRIG

YOKOSUKA, Japan, Dec. 10 (AP)—One of 16 United States marines being tried on charges of mistreating Navy brig prisoners pleaded guilty today and was sentenced to four months at hard labor.

Pvt. William T. Youngerman of Dayton, O., also was fined $65 a month for the four months.

He is one of eight marine guards from the Sasebo Navy Base brig being tried by special courts-martial. Six were tried by summary courts, with two acquitted and four convicted.

Diplomatic Fadeout When King Of Morocco Faces Israel Envoy

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch, Copyright 1957. NEW YORK, Dec. 10 — A minor international mystery developed here when Israel's Ambassador Abba Eban stepped forward to be presented to King Mohammed V of Morocco. Witnesses are sharply divided about what happened, agreeing only that no photograph was taken. This was notable because the photographers had been busy snapping just about everyone else who met the King at a special reception before a dinner given in his honor by the Foreign Policy Association. The introductions were made in the Baroque room of the Plaza Hotel last night. Some say Eban shook hands with the King, but others say there was no meeting. The ambassador was plainly in sight in the line moving toward His Majesty and equally visible returning from that direction. Morocco has no diplomatic relations with Israel, and there is a dispute over the recruiting of Moroccan Jews to emigrate to Israel. This, plus Western Morocco's sometimes strained relations with sister Arab nations, may have caused the King to become suddenly busy in another direction when Eban approached.

SENATOR GORE CRITICIZES BUDGET BUREAU OPERATION

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., Dec. 10 (AP)—Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, chairman of a Senate Public Roads subcommittee, criticized what he called the growing powers of the federal Budget Bureau yesterday. "There has grown up in Washington an agency over which the people have no control," Gore said at the opening of a public hearing on roads. "Congress appropriates money for needed and necessary functions, yet the Bureau of the Budget undercuts the representatives of the people." Gore, author of the federal highway bill, said the Budget Bureau has consistently reduced appropriations for highways, rockets, the air force, national defense and other purposes.

PEARSON ACCEPTS HIS NOBEL PRIZE IN OSLO CEREMONY

OSLO, Dec. 10 (AP)—Lester B. Pearson of Canada today received the 1957 Nobel prize for his leadership last year in United Nations efforts to end the British-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt. The former Canadian Foreign Minister accepted the prize before King Olav V of Norway and the Nobel committee of the Norwegian Parliament. The committee selected him Oct. 14 for the $40,275 prize money. At Stockholm two Chinese-born physicists from New York were awarded Nobel prizes in ceremonies in Stockholm's concert hall. They were Profs. Tsung Dao Lee and Chen Ning Yang. They shared the award for physics. Lee and Yang were rewarded for their investigation of the parity law which led to important discoveries regarding the elementary particles. Sir Alexander Todd, Glasgow-born professor, received the prize for chemistry; Prof. Daniel Bovet, of Italy, received the award for medicine, and Albert Camus, Algerian-born existentialist, the prize for literature.

WITNESS BALKS ON WHETHER HE WAS UNION GOON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (UP)—W. A. Hard of Hearing (Smitty) declined to tell the Senate subcommittee today whether he was hired as a "professional goon" for a Tennessee local of the Teamsters union.

Smith, a rangy, dark-haired man with spectacles and a hearing aid, claimed the protection of the Constitution's Fifth Amendment.

Smith gave his name as William A. Smith and his residence as Donelson, Tenn. He also told the committee that he has been "assistant business representative" of Nashville Teamster local 327 since January 1953.

He asserted his constitutional privilege when Counsel Robert F. Kennedy asked who hired Smith away from Associated Transport Co., where he had worked as a truck driver, to join the Teamsters local.

"Were you hired in order to perform acts of violence?" asked Kennedy.

"I claim my constitutional privilege not to be forced to be a witness against myself," said Smith.

"In fact, is that the function you performed?" asked Kennedy. He got the same answer.

Beaten, Witness Says.

An earlier witness told the committee he was slugged by a Nashville (Tenn.) Teamster officer who later asked him to perform acts of violence.

Keith Draper, a route salesman for the American Bread Co. in Nashville, named his assailant as Perry Canaday, a business agent for Teamster Local 327.

Draper testified he had been outspoken in opposition to an organizing drive of the Teamsters at his company before he was assaulted in a Nashville cafe washroom Sept. 22.

Draper said he promptly swore out a Joe Doe warrant for Canaday but withdrew it after a series of threatening telephone calls to himself and his wife.

Kennedy said he understood Canaday had been indicted in the case yesterday. Kennedy added the indictment stemmed from action taken by the county district attorney, whose name was not brought out, and not the warrant originally sworn out by Draper.

"Yes," said Draper, referring to the district attorney, "he said he had to get to work on this case before Washington let it out."

Tells of Harassment.

Draper told his story to the Senate committee after Shelton P. Keeling testified he rebelled against what he called Teamster violence in Nashville and was subjected to a year of costly harassment.

Keeling, now a mechanic for the Motoren Co. in Chattanooga, Tenn., said he finally left Nashville in fear for his safety.

Keeling said he never told his troubles to the Nashville police because "I didn't think it would be any use."

Keeling said he drew down Teamster wrath because he became disgusted with what he said was union sabotage of motor vehicles owned by the Avis Motors in Nashville against which he and other Teamsters union members were on strike in January, 1954. He said he went back to work for Avis because the union poured syrup into the crankcases of trucks and other vehicles to ruin the motors.

Year of Reprisal.

We said a year of reprisal by the union followed. He said his tires were punctured daily, sometimes all four of them.

Keeling said someone poured paint remover on his freshly repainted car, put syrup in its motor, and that not a day passed without the theft of some of his tools. He said that even his clothing was stolen from his locker. He said the company gave him financial help when someone stole all his tools, and it cost $370 to replace them.

Keeling said he offered to work when the Teamsters called another strike against Avis after the first one was settled, but that the company refused to let him work because "my employer said he didn't think it would be safe for me."

Everett E. Gourley, former acting sheriff of Davidson county, Tennessee, denied that pressure from the Teamsters led him to order the removal of special guards from the plant of a Nashville truck line the union was picketing last year.

He told the committee he ordered the guards removed because he had watched the picket line for 30 minutes one night and observed no violence going on.

Robert F. Kennedy, the committee counsel, told Gourley prior testimony indicates Gourley ordered the guards off because "the Teamsters are on your neck."

CONDUCTOR WALTER HENDL QUILTS DALLAS SYMPHONY

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 10 (AP)—Walter Hendl, conductor of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, resigned yesterday effective at the close of the 1957-58 concert season.

He was staff pianist and assistant conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra when named to the Dallas post in 1949. Hendl said he had no definite plans beyond completing the current season here.

In his letter of resignation, Hendl said he thought the Dallas Symphony was "sufficiently institutionalized to profit by a change of personalities and that I, too, must profit by a change of scene."

DR. KILLIAN REPORTED GOING TO PARIS FOR NATO MEETING

BOSTON, Dec. 10 (UP)—Dr. James R. Killian Jr., special adviser to the President on science and technology, will travel to Paris to attend the NATO conference next week, the Boston Globe reported today.

Killian was reported in a Washington dispatch to be holding two days of meetings with his staff, Government officials and scientists before his departure.

The report said Killian was "almost certain" to take a leading role in the planned discussions on scientific information exchanges, particularly in relation to the development of missiles.

SELLING EVA PERON JEWELS

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 10 (AP)—Buenos Aires society and buyers from the United States, Switzerland, Brazil and Uruguay turned out last night for the auction of the late Eva Peron's fortune in jewels.

About 35 pieces were auctioned. One of the higher bids of the evening won a diamond and pearl bracelet for $550. The auction will continue through mid-December.

EGYPT FREES SOUTH AFRICAN VESSEL HELD AT PORT SAID

PORT SAID, Dec. 10 (AP)—

Egypt today decided to release the South African freighter Range held at Port Said since Nov. 23 on suspicion that it belonged to Israel.

Egypt stopped the ship when it was en route to Durban from Haifa. Egyptian officials said an Israeli flag was found in the captain's cabin.

Investigation by a special committee apparently proved the ship is legally South African.

CATCHES DOGS WITH PILLS

SNOW HILL, Md., Dec. 10

Allen packs a couple of sleeping pills into a piece of meat and then retreats from the scene. The dog becomes groggy after eating the meat. Allen went along with this alternative when the Humane Society protested against shooting stray dogs that eluded his net.

RESCUERS SAVE 6 YOUTHS IN CAVE SINCE SATURDAY

KETTLEWELL, England, Dec. 10 (AP)—Six college students, including two girls, were hauled to safety yesterday from a flooded cavern 400 feet beneath the Yorkshire moors.

All were guided to the surface through narrow, twisting passages after being trapped on a ledge in the cave since Saturday with scant light and hardly any food.

The girls—Joan Smith, 19 years old, and Christine Woodward, 16, were so weak they had to be helped out by the rescuers.

The students entered the cave Saturday to explore it and were trapped by flooding and rockslides. Peter Clough, 18, the first out, said they lost their batteries and watches, which were in a plastic bag, in a stream. He and Peter Blackburn, 20, set out for help and met the rescue party.

Blackburn volunteered to lead the rescuers to where the others were waiting.

"Let's be frank about me"

-JUNE ALLYSON'S own story

Movie star June Allyson admits that for years she has been deceiving her fans, friends — and even her intimate associates!

Now, for the first time, in this week's Saturday Evening Post, America's favorite girl-next-door reveals the truth about her past — with some straight-talking comments about her marriage, childhood, personal life and rise to fame that will amaze you!

June Allyson reveals:

- the personal problems that have twisted and tormented her life for many years.
- why she never sees her own father or brother, even though they live near her in Los Angeles.
- why she has lied about her childhood for more than fourteen years.
- her candid opinion of her husband, Dick Powell, including some straightforward comments about their marital problems, some of which he himself will read for the first time.
- the frank truth about the claims that she is ruthless — and how she forced herself into the Broadway limelight.
- the tragic childhood accident that nearly kept her out of show business for life.

CONGRESS DRIVE TO KEEP TRADE ACT PLANNED

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 — The Administration will emphasize the impact of the export-import trade on the domestic economy in an effort to cut down expected congressional opposition to the proposed five-year extension on the controversial reciprocal trade program.

To this end the Department of Commerce is preparing material designed to show each Congressman it would be to his advantage to vote for the program substantially as it is sent to the Capitol shortly after the first of the year.

This is a large order, and officials conceded a rough fight may be in prospect. Perennial foes of the program, which was started in 1934 by Cordell Hull, have been preparing for the struggle and the outcome is in doubt.

Expires June 30.

The Trade Agreements Act gives the President authority to make compacts with other countries for mutual tariff concessions. It has been renewed periodically for periods of up to three years. The present extension expires next June 30.

Administration plans for the new extension were outlined to reporters at the State Department yesterday by C. Douglas Dillon, Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, and Henry Kearns, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for International Affairs.

Dillon termed a liberal trade program a vital weapon in the contest with the Soviet Union to keep the free world free. It is especially important in view of Russia's current economic offensive, he said, adding that in his view there is no single item of greater importance to American foreign policy than a renewal of the act without crippling amendments.

Under the proposals the President would be authorized to cut tariffs by 5 per cent annually for five successive years, a total of 25 per cent. In 1955 the President was empowered to reduce duties by 15 per cent over a three-year period. The new plan would permit an alternative reduction of 25 per cent over a three-year period if no yearly reduction exceeded 10 per cent of the duty.

For imports subject to very low tariff rates the Administration will seek authority to make reductions of 3 percentage points according to the value of the item, with no yearly reduction exceeding 1 percentage point, and for a small category in which the duty is more than 50 per cent of the value, it will ask for permission to bring the duty down to 50 per cent with not more than one-third of the reduction being made in any one year.

These alternative methods could not be used cumulatively. They would apply to the rates existing next July 1.

Safeguards to Be Kept. Dillon and Kearns pointed out that the safeguards for American industry contained in the present act would be continued and that increased authority would be sought to remedy threatened or actual serious injury to domestic industries when found necessary after "escape clause" investigation.

Dillon warned that if the United States did not continue a liberal trade policy, it would be totally impossible to maintain the present rate of export unless the mutual aid program, already under heavy congressional fire, is greatly increased. Kearns pointed out the United States must import goods to provide other countries with dollars to buy American exports.

The export trade, Dillon said, provides employment for 4,500,000 workers. He said the value of United States exports in 1956 was 17 billion dollars. Goods worth $2,800,000,000 were sent to the European common market area last year, he said.

The Administration is asking for a five-year rather than a three-year extension for two reasons, Dillon said: To produce a stabilized program and to show the world that this country means to "stay the course," and to provide adequate negotiation authority in working out tariffs with the common market countries.

Market Size of United States. The common market European Economic Community, composed of Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, and The Netherlands, will come into being Jan. 1. The area constitutes a market about the size of that in the United States. The countries will try to work out a common tariff schedule and it is in the interest of the United States that the schedule be kept as low as possible.

The common market countries have declared their willingness to negotiate with non-member countries on a reciprocal basis. The negotiations will be extremely complex and are expected to take five years. A trade act extension of only three years would hamper United States negotiators and might insure higher tariffs in the common market area, Dillon said.

U.S. AIRMEN SAID TO HOLD PARTIES IN GRAVEYARD

NOTTINGHAM, England, Dec. 10 (AP)—Police said last night they have asked United States Air Force authorities to investigate reports of wild weekend parties held in a graveyard "ranch" by American servicemen wearing cowboy clothes.

Police said parents had complained their young daughters were being entertained at those parties with food and beer brought in from the nearby United States air bases. These informants said: "The airmen call themselves 'the ranch' and dress in high boots and full Western regalia. The 'ranch' is set up regularly in a graveyard near Ruddington."

About 50 United States airmen supposedly take part in the weekend parties.

TWO ROB BANK AT LOUISVILLE; LOOT $95,637

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 10 (UP)—Police today sought two men who robbed a suburban branch bank of the Citizens Fidelity Bank and Trust Co. of $95,637 yesterday in the biggest bank holdup in Louisville history.

Police said the two herded six customers and 13 employees into a line while they grabbed the money in the cash drawers and night depository bags, then made off in a stolen automobile, later found abandoned. Police theorized that a third man picked up the robbers in a late model, cream colored station wagon.

Don Riley, manager of the branch, said the masked men entered the shopping center bank about 15 minutes after it opened.

"One of them had a gun. It looked to me like a Luger or some kind of automatic pistol, and he pointed it at me. He said, 'Hey you, get over to that cage and fill up those sacks,'" Riley related.

He described one robber as about five feet, six inches tall, wearing an Army field jacket with a black half-mask over his face. He said the other was heavily built and wore a scarf over his face.

It was the second bank holdup in this area in less than a week. Two men took $92,688 from a downtown branch bank Dec. 3. A suspect in that robbery, Charles Wilber Marcum, was arrested in Cincinnati the next day.

Moscow-Cairo Cultural Accord.

MOSCOW, Dec. 10 (AP)—Egypt and the Soviet Union announced further development of cultural exchanges in a communique last night. The statement was signed by N. A. Mikhallov, Soviet minister of culture, and Fathi Radwan, Egyptian minister of national orientation. No details of the expanded program were given.

FIVE COAL MINERS KILLED IN WEST VIRGINIA CAVE-IN

BECKLEY, W.Va., Dec. 10 (AP)—Five coal miners were killed last night, a few minutes before their work shift was to end, when tons of rock caved in on them inside a southern West Virginia mine.

The last body was brought out of the Raleigh-Wyoming Mining Co. pit this morning after tons of rock rubble had been removed.

The cave-in occurred two miles inside the company's No. 2 mine at Glen Rodgers, 15 miles southeast of here. The dead were identified as George Durham and Wayman Acord of Bolt, W.Va.; Noel Trump and John Lomack of Glen Rodgers, and John Coleman of Beckley.

rocket should be ready for firing in about a month. The rocket is now in the Vanguard hangar at Cape Canaveral. Horizontal tests are scheduled to be completed in another week. Then there will be about three weeks of testing and checking of the rocket in vertical position before it is ready for launching.

The test stand, however, will have to be repaired before the rocket can be raised into vertical position.

Two Days of Analysis.

The conclusion that "mechanical failure in the propulsion system" had caused Friday's internationally embarrassing failure was based on two days of intensive engineering analysis. Engineers and scientists at the naval research laboratory and Glenn L. Martin Co. in Baltimore, Md.—the builder of the rocket—relied on extensive electronic and photographic records made of the rocket as it attempted to get off the ground.

The finding was somewhat heartening to the Navy since the conclusion indicated that the fault lay in easily replaceable parts rather than in the basic design of the rocket and its engines.

The statement issued by the Office of Naval Research was taken by some to indicate that the failure occurred in the first-stage engine of the three-stage rocket.

A Defense Department spokesman said that a full report on the failure had been sent to President Eisenhower by Donald A. Quarles, acting Secretary of Defense in the absence of Neil H. McElroy.

Attention Turns to Army. With the failure of the Navy's attempt to launch a small test satellite, increased attention was being placed on the Army and its recent assignment of launching at least one earth satellite in the current International Geophysical Year.

It appeared, however, that it will be at least another month before the Army would be ready to go to the firing line.

The Army is attempting to draw a tight curtain of secrecy around its satellite plans. Under criticism from Capitol Hill Democrats about the publicity surrounding Friday's failure, the Defense Department also seemed to be tightening up on information about satellite launchings.

Murray Snyder, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, said there would be no change in basic policy, but in the future the Defense Department would not make public the count-down leading up to a satellite firing. Snyder said there would be an "orderly report" on preparations for satellite launching but the firing schedules would not be announced in advance because they are too "flexible." After a satellite is fired, he said, there will be a "full report" given to the press.

Furthermore, Snyder said, it will be Defense Department policy not to "embroider" satellite firings nor to "delude" the public into thinking that test firings are earnest attempts to launch scientific satellites.

Trevor Gardner Offers His Remedy for Vanguard Project.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 10 (AP)—The former head of the Air Force's research program said last night his remedy for the Vanguard failure would be "to start fairly close to the top and fire quite a few people."

Trevor Gardner, who resigned two years ago as assistant secretary of the Air Force for research and development, said he would begin by firing the civilian administrators of the satellite launching program. He said he had no criticism of the technical aspects of the project.

"Vanguard failed because it was started with insufficient funds—a mere $20,000,000 being allocated whereas $200,000,000 would have been a more realistic figure," he said at a meeting of the World Affairs Institute.

"The project lacked priority, and inter-service rivalry was much to blame for slowing down progress and for its failure to get off the ground last Friday."

Gardner said the United States should now scrap the Vanguard project, bear down on its anti-missile program and acquire 50 missile launching bases overseas.

Gardner is now president of Hycan Manufacturing Co., which makes electronic and missile guidance system components.

MARGARET'S INTEREST CIVILIZES ROCK 'N' ROLL

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP)—Officials of the National Association of Teachers of Dancing today said Princess Margaret's interest in rock 'n' roll has forced them to reverse their stand that the dance is uncivilized. The association now will hold rock 'n' roll dance examinations and award silver medals to students who pass.

"Parents were saying to us, 'what's good enough for the Princess is good enough for our children,'" a council member said.

WEDDING PLANS THWARTED, BRITON IS ORDERED JAILED

LONDON, Dec. 10 (UP)—A high court judge today ordered Dominic Elwes committed to jail indefinitely for refusing to bring home Tessa Kennedy, his 19-year-old intended bride. Justice Sir Ronald Francis Roxburgh, who barred their wedding in England, issued a contempt of court order against Elwes because he took Miss Kennedy to Scotland where the couple planned to marry despite parental objections. If arrested, Elwes can be kept in Brixton prison as long as Roxburgh wants to jail him. Under British law there is no limit. The parents of the girl also obtained an injunction against the wedding in Scotland.

AFL-CIO

AFL-CIO today in an extension of the clean-up campaign led by George Meany, president of the federation.

The delegates to the convention decided by a margin of 7 to 1 last night that the bakers had to go.

Meany scheduled a meeting for this morning for James G. Cross to inform the executive council of the AFL-CIO whether he would resign as president of the union and thus save it from expulsion. Last night the executive board of the union met and he declined the invitation to appear before the executive council.

This action made the expulsion a certainty.

Under the terms of the expulsion resolution, the AFL-CIO executive council has until March 15 to make expulsion effective. This gives the bakers 90 days to comply with the orders of the AFL-CIO. The chief condition is the resignation of the Cross.

Cross made clear in his speech to the convention yesterday afternoon he had no intention of resigning, and Meany made clear he has no intention of waiting 90 days. "I say to you quite frankly," Meany said, "that if you expel this organization on or before March 15, and give the executive council the power to make it an earlier date, then I want to find out quite quickly whether they are going to comply."

"If it is indicated this group is not going to comply, then the executive council, for my part, isn't going to wait 90 days to act—they are going to act in about 90 minutes."

Treasurer Files Charges.

Trouble in the union came to light last March when Curtis R. Sims, then secretary-treasurer, filed charges of corruption and misuse of funds against Cross. The Cross-dominated union executive board exonerated Cross and fired Sims.

Since then, Sims and four vice presidents have formed an "integrity committee" and they have been in Atlantic City since last week, claiming that 50,000 of the 150,000 Bakers Union members are on their side.

Cross for his part, recently called a special convention of the union for March 2, 1958. He told the convention yesterday the AFL-CIO was attempting to dictate to the union who should be its officers. He said it should be left to the special convention.

Reign of Terror Charged. Meany, in reply said Cross had instituted a reign of terror in his union to beat the integrity committee.

"In recent days," he said, "nine of the organizers have been fired. Four more have been threatened. Local unions have been subjected to retaliatory action by Cross because they voted to support the integrity committee."

"Of course, this may be democratic, it may make for a nice open convention, but I can't see it. I imagine if we let this fellow go until the fifteenth of March he will be elected unanimously by the convention."

Meany answered Cross's charge that the AFL-CIO was dictating to the union who its officers should be by saying: "Now, there are 150,000 members in this union. . . . As to this story of the union being handed a slate of officers, I will say right here and now that there are 149,999 of those members eligible for President of this union."

Besides firing anti-Cross officials, Meany said, Cross has ordered anti-Cross locals to merge with pro-Cross locals, to weaken the strength of the opposition. The anti-Cross locals also have been warned their welfare and pension funds rights are in jeopardy.

Alex Rose, president of the Hatters Union, was equally bitter about Cross. As chairman of the convention appeals committee, Rose has been dealing with Cross all week. Rose called him "this amazing and demagogic James Cross."

LAWYER CONVICTED AS TRUJILLO AGENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—John Joseph Frank was convicted last night of acting illegally as an agent of the Dominican Republic and Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo.

A jury in United States district court returned its verdict after having the case since last Wednesday. It spent about 19 hours in actual deliberations. Last Friday the jury reported there was no possibility of reaching a verdict but was sent back.

Frank, 42 years old, a Washington attorney and former FBI agent, was found guilty on all four counts of the indictment.

The allegations are that he served as an agent of the Dominican Republic and Trujillo while wilfully failing to register with the Justice Department under the Foreign Agents Registration act.

United States District Judge James R. Kirkland allowed Frank to remain at liberty under $10,000 bond pending sentence. The judge referred the case to the court's probation office for a pre-sentence investigation.

Frank could be sentenced to up to five years in prison and a fine of $10,000 on each of the four counts.

Frank's attorney Edward L. Garey, said he would appeal.

Frank was indicted last May by a grand jury investigating the disappearance of Jesus Maria de Galindez and Gerald L. Murphy.

De Galindez, bitter critic of Trujillo, disappeared March 12, 1956 after leaving a class at Columbia University where he taught.

White House May Limit Press Cars in Eisenhower Motorcades

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—The White House said yesterday that for safety's sake it may become necessary to limit the number of newsmen's automobiles in presidential motorcades.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty made the statement after reporters escorting President Eisenhower back to the White House from his Gettysburg (Pa.) farm, had been involved in three traffic incidents. None of them had anything to do with Mr. Eisenhower's own limousine.

In one of the episodes, a car carrying four reporters was hit from behind when at a standstill by an automobile driven by a Secret Service agent. The newsmen's car was four behind Mr. Eisenhower's.

The Secret Service agent, after turning a corner near the outskirts of Washington, skidded and rammed the right rear fender of the reporters' car. Two strips of chrome were pulled loose and the fender was dented slightly.

Another incident occurred near Washington when a Montgomery county (Md.) police cruiser pulled up alongside Mr. Eisenhower's limousine. Hagerty told newsmen after they were back at the White House that officers in the cruiser reported to the President's chauffeur, Deeter Flohr, that newsmen's cars behind Mr. Eisenhower were driving two abreast in the motorcade and were thus creating a traffic hazard.

The third incident was related by Hagerty as an eyewitness. He said he and the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, were riding two cars behind the President's. The press secretary said that at one point, within the Washington city limits, one of the cars in the caravan pulled up alongside the Hagerty-Snyder vehicle and almost nicked it.

Hagerty told reporters and photographers that he thought it would be best in the future to limit the number of newsmen's cars in presidential caravans to reduce as much as possible the danger of any accidents.

Normally there are half a dozen newsmen's cars and three or four White House cars in a motorcade. Yesterday there were 15 cars, including the President's.

Most of yesterday's 85-mile trip from Gettysburg was in light to heavy rain. The Presidential limousine, lead car in the caravan, traveled at the maximum speed limits permitted most of the way.

Overdue.

OACOMA, S.D. (UP)—State Comptroller John C. Penne says some householders at Oacoma have not paid their water bills in four years. He made the discovery in an audit of municipal books for the period, Oct. 1, 1951-Aug. 22, 1957.

DECLARES POSTAL COSTS COULD BE TRIMMED 20 PCT.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (UP)—An engineering consultant contends that the Post Office could cut costs 20 per cent without sacrificing efficiency. Edmund Cyrol, management consultant, said private industries using time-motion studies have cut their material handling and housekeeping costs by an average of 42 per cent.

He said similar studies should be made of the post office operations. As a second step, Cyrol suggested that the post office eliminate hand-sorting of mail. "This might require that all mail would have to be sent in envelopes of four standard sizes," he said.

"Each envelope would have at one edge a tab similar to the tab cards used by business for various sorting operations. The original coding might have to be done by an operator in a manner similar to the card punching in industry, or it might be possible to develop an electronic scanner that would do this automatically."

At present, Cyrol said, six or seven manual sortings are necessary for each piece of mail. Using four standard first class envelopes, he said, only one manual sorting would be necessary.

DIVORCES MAN SHE SAID TRIED TO HYPNOTIZE HER

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP)—Mrs. Verona Wandt was granted a divorce yesterday on testimony that her husband tried to hypnotize her to find out if she was going out with other men.

She said her husband, Henry, would wait until she was asleep and then start murmuring to her, over and over, such questions as "Can't we go out today as we did yesterday? Your husband will never find out." "I would understand what he was saying, but I would not be sufficiently awake to reply," said Mrs. Wandt. She said her husband told her people are supposed to tell the truth when they are asleep.

LEADING RAILS, STEELS, MOTORS TO NEW 57 LOWS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Leading issues in the steel, motor and rail groups struck new lows for the year today as the stock market slid again in moderate trading.

Key issues were down fractions to a point or more with some losses stretching to 3 1/2. (Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 4.52 points lower at 439.24 at the close. The 20 rails lost 1.23 at 95.93, a new 1957 low. The 15 utilities dropped 1.11 of a point to 67.65.)

(Standard & Poor's average of 500 stocks was 36 of a point lower at 40.56 at the close. The 425 industrials lost 42 at 43.60, the 25 rails dropped 27 to 20.98 and the 50 utilities declined .05 to 31.81.)

The drop in the steel industry's operating rate to its lowest since 1954, excluding the 1956 strike period, and news of layoffs and slow rail sales in the auto industry depressed prices. Easier money conditions, however, spurred bonds and high-grade preferred stocks.

Aircraft, though generally lower, got some help from a published story of a $100,000, 600 backlog in missiles for Lockheed and late news that a Chance-Vought Regulus guided missile had been fired successfully.

Lockheed backed away from a slight gain. Chance-Vought rose 1/4. Curtiss-Wright rose 1/2 as it challenged the Government's demand for facilities rental.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $1.40 to $155.90, with the industrials down $2.80, the rails down $1.10 to a new low for the year and the utilities off 10 cents.

Of 1190 issues traded, 657 fell and 301 rose. New lows for the year expanded to 109 and new highs totaled six.

Volume totaled 2,360,000 shares compared with 2,230,000 yesterday.

Based on the fall in the average, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange shrunk by an estimated $1,750,000,000.

Meanwhile, some uncertainty concerning the medical report on President Eisenhower due later this afternoon.

SOYBEANS, RYE IN LOWER PRICE TURNS

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP)—Grain futures traded steady to lower in slow dealings on the Board of Trade today.

Most action occurred in corn, reflecting smaller offerings by farmers, light receipts at Chicago terminals and forecasts for colder weather over the producing belt. Extreme gains ranged up to a cent a bushel at one time but the advance attracted profit-taking and prices fell back near the close.

Old crop wheat futures held about steady but the distant July and September contracts declined. Soybeans turned lower reflecting disappointment with the trend in vegetable oils. Rye also declined.

WOULD SPEED FARM ABANDONMENT

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP).

THE NUMBER OF FARMS in the nation has been declining steadily. And today there are those who think Uncle Sam should speed the process by paying farmers to find jobs in town.

This is one of many schemes put forward to help agriculture secretary Benson grapple with the problem of huge farm production surpluses in a price-supported farm economy—and to ease the burden on the taxpayer.

Department of Agriculture figures show the decline in farms has been running at around 150,000 a year. Many are absorbed into other farms, with the average size rising steadily and the farm population dropping.

THE NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL board, in a study just issued says that the trend toward larger farms reflects more intensive mechanization which means greater output from fewer workers. It finds the bulk of the decrease in number of farms in the 10-acre to 179-acre group, while the number of farms with 280 to 500 acres remains practically constant.

But the Committee for Economic Development (CED) in a study also just issued says that the trend to larger farms doesn't mean the family farm is on the way out, but rather that the one-family farm is being adjusted to modern technology and mechanization. It adds: "Corporation farms attract attention because in most places they are so rare." The 134,000 farms with sales of $25,000 and over in 1954 were only three per cent of the nation's total. But they produced 31 per cent of the farm products sold.

THE INSTITUTE OF LIFE Insurance also takes a look at farm income. It notes that there are now about 1,500,000 farm operators who work off the farm 100 days or more a year, compared with 700,000 in 1930. In addition to their off-farm pay, the farmers' income is being raised by pensions, interest on savings and other benefits. In 1948 total non-farm income was five and a half billion dollars, or 22 cents of each dollar the farmer had to spend. By 1956 this had risen to seven and a half billion dollars, or 36 cents of every dollar of total income.

THE CED'S STUDY LOOKS at all phases of the farm problem. It says that "in the last quarter century we have spent well over 22 billion dollars on programs to help the American farmer." Among ways to better the present policy it advocates gradual reduction of price supports to zero and a new land retirement plan to help farmers move to other work. This acreage cutting plan differs from Jensen's soil bank by concentrating on getting whole farms out of production instead of just idling part of a farm.

OFF-DUTY POLICE OFFICER CATCHES BURGLARS IN ACT

An off-duty Clayton policeman with the assistance of a private citizen foiled the burglary of a Tom Boy Market at 10441 Breckenridge avenue, St. Ann, last night. The two burglars were captured.

The officer was Patrolman Norman A. Thoms, 8732 Brentwood place, Brentwood, who, with a young woman companion and her nephew, had stopped to buy a loaf of bread for the woman's parents.

Although the market appeared to be closed, Thoms noticed someone inside and knocked on the door in the hope of being permitted to buy the bread. However, when he saw one man stuffing cartons of cigarettes into a cardboard box and another looting the cash register, he realized a burglary was in progress.

Calling for a man sitting in a nearby parked car, Thoms ran to the rear of the store and headed off the burglars as they attempted to flee. He identified himself as a police officer and began to grapple with them.

At this point, Albert Rickert, 3249 Lynros avenue, St. Ann, who had called police, joined Thoms and helped to subdue the men. They identified themselves as Thomas H. Harris, 22 years old, and his brother, Elmer M. Harris, 20, both of Maryland Heights. Both have police records.

Police recovered 30 cartons of cigarettes, eight pounds of coffee and about $7 in change which had been taken from the store.

Prowler is Captured.

Cpl. James Condon of the St. Louis police captured a youth early today inside the Klein Cap Co., 2024 Delmar boulevard. He had noticed a broken front window, called other officers and found the prowler hiding behind some boxes after a half hour search.

The burglar identified himself as Quincy Lamprey, 19, 2800 block of North Jefferson avenue. He admitted entering the store previously last Friday and taking several jackets, police said.

A man identifying himself as Clarence J. Kusky, 29, 5200 block of Washington boulevard, was identified in an attempted holdup of a news vendor following his arrest by police at Fourth and Market streets early today. He denied the charge.

Police were called to the scene after Fred Alewell of 100 North Broadway reported he fought off a robber who tried to hold him up with a knife near Broadway and Chestnut street. The robber broke away from two passers-by who attempted to grab him.

Nabs Man in Auto.

Charles Walker, 3115 Clay avenue, reported he saw two men in his automobile, parked in front of the house, early today. He grabbed one of the men, who had removed the car radio, and held him until a neighbor summoned police. The other man got away.

The arrested man identified himself as Richard Lee Johnson, 27, 4100 block of Aldine avenue. Johnson was at liberty on five similar thefts from automobiles, police said.

Four boys, 14 to 16 years old, admitted yesterday taking part in burglaries of two filling stations, an ice cream parlor and a shoe store, police reported. The boys, arrested by Patrolman Jack Reid, said they had $106 taken from the ice cream parlor in a purse but that some one stole it from them.

CARDINAL IN CUBA GIVES NEW HOTEL, CASINO A BOOST

HAVANA, Dec. 10 (AP)—Cardinal Manuel Arteaga of the Roman Catholic Church today gave a pre-inaugural boost to the swank $12,000,000 Hotel Riviera which has its opening tonight.

The Cardinal said the hotel was "a new work which comes to elevate the prestige of the Cuban capital" and that its "grandeur and beauty constituted a form of honor to the Creator."

On hand for the formal opening of the hotel with its gambling casino were nearly 100 visitors who have been identified by police as gangsters and gamblers from large American cities. Reports have been current that these underworld figures have been holding conferences on greatly expanding gambling activities in Cuba and tapping the revenues.

The Riviera's plush casino is equipped for almost all forms of gambling. The hotel even is offering gambling by television.

MIAMI BEACH BUSINESS MAN SHOT TO DEATH BY GUNMAN

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 10 (AP)—A Miami Beach business man was killed last night at the wheel of his automobile by a gunman who jumped out of the car and fled.

Arthur Karoff, 42 years old, president of a Miami sales promotion firm, was struck in the head and neck by pistol bullets.

Witnesses told detectives that a small man in an Army-type jacket jumped into Karoff's car near a busy intersection and ran from the machine after it swerved to the curb a short distance away. Passersby said they heard two shots.

Whether robbery was a motive was not at once determined. Karoff had left dining companions only a few minutes before, and earlier had accepted a cup for owners of the future race winner at Tropical Park.

JANUARY NAMED SPECIAL NAVY RECRUITING MONTH

Gov. James T. Blair of Missouri today issued a proclamation designating January 1958, as "Operation Deepfreeze Month" for the St. Louis Navy recruiting district.

The period will be highlighted by the enlistment Jan. 28 of the "San Diego Special Company," composed of men from this state only, and the enlistment Jan. 25 of the "Golden State Company," made up of recruits from southern Illinois and western Kentucky. Both groups will train together in San Diego, Calif., and return home for 14 days leave upon completion of their instruction.

CITY PLAYS WAITING GAME FOR ROAD SITE

The draft of a measure which would repeal an ordinance passed last summer for condemnation of 30 feet of Public Service Co. right-of-way for the proposed Rock Island Expressway was approved today by the Board of Public Service. The company had claimed damages ranging from $175,000 to $1,000,000, it was reported.

The 30 feet that was to have been condemned by the city is part of the company's University streetcar line. The board today said the company's estimate of damages "are considered exorbitant and unreasonable."

Majority of the board members were of the opinion the city "could play a waiting game," because at a conference with company representatives concerning the condemnation proceedings, city officials got the impression the company probably would abandon the University line before work on the expressway project starts.

In the bond issue schedule, Rock Island Expressway work is to start in 1961. The original condemnation ordinance, passed by the Board of Aldermen last summer, was drawn up and recommended for passage after the city director of streets had conferred with company officials and was led to believe that only reasonable damages would be paid.

"By the time all this is done," he said, "the company may abandon the University line and all we'll have to do is acquire the 30-foot strip and not pay for tracks and other equipment."

A new condemnation ordinance can be introduced in the board, he added.

The proposed expressway would be an extension of Forest Park going under Kingshighway, through Forest Park, under Grand drive, Union and Lindell, following the Wabash tracks to DeBaliviere, then picking up the old Rock Island railroad right of way and ending at Skinner boulevard and Millbrook avenue.

U.S. Is Now 'Have Not' Nation In Iron and Other Key Metals Essential to Industrial Growth

Advances in Obtaining Iron From Low Grade Ores Have Not Kept Pace With Need — Dependence on Foreign Sources Is Increasing.

By RICHARD RUTTER

OF ALL THE NATURAL RESOURCES, iron ore is the one that most dramatically underscores the fact that the United States has become a "have not" nation in vital raw materials. The same applies to many key metals, but iron is, by far, the most vital.

In the form of foundry and steel mill products, iron provides the sinews for manufacturing, transportation, construction and communication. More than half goes into products that business sells and the consumer uses. It is essential to modern weapons and armaments.

Almost a century has gone by since the discovery of the great iron ore deposits in the Mesabi range around Lake Superior. These were the largest known in the world. It was said then, and it was said for decades thereafter, that these supplies were virtually inexhaustible. It was assumed they would fill this country's needs for centuries to come.

Growth Unforeseen.
That assumption did not allow for the phenomenal growth of the American economy. The growing-up process consumed hundreds of millions of tons of steel—and iron ore. It became apparent that the high grade Lake Superior reserves were not inexhaustible, that they were, in fact, rapidly becoming depleted. By the end of World War II, the United States found it necessary to import large quantities of ore. These shipments have been steadily increasing.

Last year, for instance, American industry used some 133,000,000 tons of iron ore in turning out 115,000,000 tons of steel. Imports of ore amounted to 30,400,000 tons. As recently as 1947, they were only 4,800,000 tons.

In 1956, shipments to this country from Canada came to 13,700,000 tons. Venezuela supplied 9,200,000 tons. There were sizable imports from Peru, Chile, Liberia, Brazil and Sweden.

Dependence to Increase.
This dependence on foreign sources will increase. By 1975, it has been estimated, the United States will be consuming at least 170,000,000 tons of ore annually. That is regarded as a conservative figure; some experts place it at 200,000,000 tons or more. Of that amount, about 59 per cent will be domestic supplies, against 77 per cent at present. From South America will come 12.5 per cent, from Canada 17.5 per cent.

Meanwhile, a world-wide search for iron ore has been going on with striking results. Major deposits have been found in Canada and South America. In all, new reserves uncovered in the Western Hemisphere total more than two billion tons.

An outright shortage of ore appears unlikely. A few years back, a United Nations survey estimated world reserves were sufficient to last for more than 800 years. America's reserves are believed to be 80 billion tons or more.

Low Grade Ore.
That seems impressive enough, but, like so many statistics, is far from what it seems. Less than two billion tons of these domestic reserves consist of high-grade ore—that is, containing the 51 per cent or more of natural iron that is customary in steel-making. The rest are of lower-grade containing as little as 25 per cent iron.

That is where technology comes in, as it must in the conservation of all minerals by more efficient use of existing supplies, including those once considered unusable.

Recently, there have been important advances in this direction. Research on low-grade ore formations dates back 30 years, but the real commercial "break-through" has occurred in the last five years.

The general process by which the lower-grades are made commercially usable is known as beneficiation. It takes many forms from screening and washing the ore, to fine grinding, roasting and magnetic separation. The aim is the same: a higher iron content.

In the Lake Superior region there is a widespread rock formation known as taconite. It contains 25 to 35 per cent iron. After grinding, taconite can be separated by magnetic methods. The ore is then formed into pellets with a higher concentrate of iron. Reserve Mining Co., owned jointly by Republic Steel Corp. and Armco Steel Corp., has spent $19,000,000 for a pelletizing plant. It can turn out 3,750,000 tons a year.

Manganese Supplies.
Manganese is a basic item in the manufacture of steel and it also happens to be one of the scarest of all metals as far as this country is concerned. Last year, United States furnaces swallowed up more than 2,000,000 tons of manganese ore. More than 90 per cent was imported, chiefly from India, Ghana, the Union of South Africa and Brazil.

Shipments from overseas will become ever more important with demand expected to rise at least 60 per cent by 1975. In happier times, Russia was our chief supplier and re-

Indonesia Now Divided Into 2 Camps; Communists in Position to Start War

Big Stumbling Block Seems to Be Sukarno — Shaky Economy Factor.

By MURRAY FROMSON

BANGKOK, Dec. 10 (AP). ESET by threats of bankruptcy and political chaos, Indonesia has now been clearly divided into Communist and anti-Communist camps.

Responsible sources just returned from Jakarta say that for the second time since 1948, the Communists are in a position to envelop the country in civil war.

Although the Reds failed in the abortive Maduin rebellion nine years ago, there is no certainty that they would fail again—at least on Java. The sources say the best guess throughout most of Indonesia is that the Communists could seize control of much of Java now—but they won't.

The reason is simple: They would face isolation because the islands of Sumatra, Borneo, the Celebes and the rest of East Indonesia are prepared to establish a separate Indonesian government the moment the Communists grab power in Java.

Now Fight for Freedom.

Col. Maludin Simbolon, the articulate rebel who now directs a solidifying command of the outer islands from his Sumatran headquarters in Padang, told visiting correspondents:

"This is no longer a revolt to gain autonomy. This is a fight to preserve our freedom and stop Communism. The minute the Communists seem to be in control in Java or the central government abandons its neutral foreign policy and invites Soviet or Chinese technicians into the country, we will establish an independent free government of Indonesia and ask for United Nations recognition."

The colonel, added that he hoped this drastic step would not be necessary.

Despite the desperate political and economic conditions which now prevail, there appears to be considerable hope among responsible Indonesians to curb the Communists.

Sukarno's Attitude.

The big stumbling block apparently is President Sukarno. "He is like a horse with blinkers," said one observer who had watched him for a considerable period of time. "He plods straight ahead, oblivious to the cold war, the nuclear age, the international threat of Communism, and Indonesia's troubles which are going on all around him."

The President insists that the Indonesian Reds are Indonesian first and Communists second and that they can work together with other parties in the government. Other leaders, including some of Sukarno's closest friends and former revolutionary allies, disagree.

They point to the recent statement made by the vice chairman of the Indonesian Communist party that "there is no such thing as international Communism. There is one Communism and we are all Communists together."

has ridden Sukarno's political coattails for years, is faced with an intra-party split. Regional chairmen throughout Java have told party workers to abandon any co-operation with the Communists. There is a growing movement to form an anti-Communist alliance with the Moslem Masjumi, Nahdlatul Ulama and the Socialists. But Nationalists leaders in Jakarta are still hesitating.

The major problem now is to convince Sukarno and to find a way for him to retreat from his present position without losing prestige.

Another big question mark is the army. Several key officers are known to be pro-Communist, but the general sentiment is thought to be anti-Communist. One army leader has quit the central command to organize a vast propaganda program to show the people that "Communism is anti-religious, anti-nationalist and the tool of a foreign power."

Religious Overtones.

Moslem teachers and priests have agreed to deny religious rites to any Communists. In a recent national conference, they also adopted a resolution calling for the outlawing of the Communist party.

To pacify the outer islands, the Jakarta government has doubled the normal financial allocations to Sumatra. Sources returning from Padang, the headquarters of the outer island rebels, say the Sumatrans boast openly of smuggling 10,000 tons of rubber a month to

FLEESON Quick Change In Climate of U.S. Politics

G. O. P. Faces Fund Problem — Party Outlook Is Bleak.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

A KINDLY thought appropriate to the season is in order for Republican National Chairman Meade ALCORN who is undertaking to raise $4,000,000 for an election most observers say his party has already lost.

As all political fund-raisers know, nothing is so debilitating to the pocketbook nerve as uncertainty and doubt about the future. The fat cats of both parties function best in a climate of warmth and optimism; the spear-carriers are happiest in the presence of a vigorous and unifying figure about whose identity there can be no doubt.

These circumstances are lacking as ALCORN prepares to stage his drum-beatings on Jan. 20 for the 1958 congressional campaign. He is trapped in a world he never made.

It must seem hardly possible to him that less than a year has elapsed since he took over the party reins. The Eisenhower glow was at an effulgent peak; the applause from the victorious salute to Eisenhower dinners following the second inauguration had hardly died away.

The Turning Point.

Almost at once, however, faith began to turn to doubt, the likely turning point being the row over the President's budget. Conservative hostility to that document might have been overcome had not President Eisenhower confused everybody by handing Congress an ax and inviting it to lay on. From then on, the picture of executive leadership lost its clarity.

Now the political defeats of early November have been followed by another crisis in the President's health, a clear downturn in the economy, the Soviet Sputnik and the American sputnik. The President hopes to inject some adrenalin into the political bloodstream of all the country by personal direction of the NATO meeting next week. But even if his doctors permit him to attend, the advance dispatches from Paris are not encouraging.

At the capital the situation also is bleak for the Republicans. The President's next program—particularly foreign aid

WORLD-POLL Many Favor Laws to Make Getting a Divorce Tougher

MAKE IT TOUGHER to dissolve marriages, urge most Europeans and a good many in other parts of the world. Eight out of ten European countries favor more rigid divorce laws. People in Denmark and Sweden, like Japan, appear largely satisfied with current regulations. These countries report the highest numbers who are either content with things as they are, or are indifferent about proposed changes. In Brazil the number who want divorce laws tightened is evenly matched by those who would like divorce made easier.

Because divorce is illegal in Italy, the people there were asked: "Would you favor or oppose a law allowing divorce?" The replies showed that 63% opposed such a law. 28% were in favor of it and 9% had no opinion.

Many are convinced that the root of the divorce problem lies in too easy marriage. A 52-year-old Dutch type-setter with several children approaching marriageable age said: "Divorce should not be possible at all because you should know whom you marry. Too many young people jump into matrimony without thought. There is too much suffering for children when a marriage is broken for this to be allowed."

The same idea was expressed by a Norwegian fisherman, a British barrister and a Birmingham tailor.

In 11 out of 13 countries, women come out stronger than men for stricter divorce requirements. Only in Denmark and Belgium are the sexes evenly in accord on this issue. The following table shows the percentage of men and women in favor of stricter divorce laws:

Is Your Property In Joint Names?

If you are married, putting your estate in joint names is an easy way to dispose of it, but, in most cases, it is an undesirable means of doing so. If your estate exceeds $60,000 (the amount exempt from Federal estate tax) having it in joint names will increase the taxes due upon the death of the surviving owner as compared with more economical means of disposing of an estate.

For example, suppose your estate amounts to $130,000 and is in joint names. Since joint property qualifies for the marital deduction, upon the death of the first joint owner the estate would be cut in half for tax purposes and the taxable estate would amount to $65,000 and would be subject to a Federal estate tax of only $150. But upon the death of the surviving joint owner the taxable estate would be $130,000, on which the tax would be $12,300.

From the tax standpoint, a better way of disposing of it would be to have the estate in the name of the husband and left in trust for his wife under his will under two separate trusts, one qualifying for the marital deduction and one not qualifying. The income from both trusts could be paid to his wife for life and, in addition, she would be given the right to dispose of the principal of the trust qualifying for the marital deduction by the terms of her own will. She would be given no such right in reference to the other trust, which would pass under the terms of her husband's will. Under such an arrangement, assuming she survived her husband, the Federal estate tax upon her death would be cut from $12,300 to $150.

Having your estate in joint names, or having it in your own name and leaving it outright to your surviving wife or husband has the same effect from the tax standpoint. But having your estate in your own name and having your will provide two trusts would reduce the tax bill if your estate exceeds $60,000.

More important than the saving in taxes is the fact that leaving your estate in trust provides experienced management to conserve what you leave to provide for your family.

Under a properly drawn will which leaves your estate in trust, you can provide all the advantages of outright ownership plus the tax advantages and the investment protection that only the use of trusts can provide.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The New Human Rights

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

People here and abroad are observing the ninth anniversary of the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the United Nations General Assembly. The purpose of this letter is to point out some new influences that are causing us to review our ideas of human rights that others may find valuable to consider.

First, The peoples of the world are fast becoming a single community. Intercommunication, transportation and distribution make it so.

Second, Nations which for centuries have been sovereign powers are losing a part of their sovereignty. This includes the largest as well as the smallest. No nation today can live unto itself or alone can protect itself from the stresses and hazards of international tension.

With the first process, we are approaching a universal recognition of the oneness of all human beings. We see ourselves more and more as "the people of the world." Human needs, aspirations, talents and inherent worth cut through barriers of nation, race, class and creed.

The Declaration of Human Rights is a statement of this moral idealism. It is a non-sectarian effort to apply the Golden Rule on a universal scale.

With the second process—loss of absolute national sovereignty—we are approaching by will of the people of the world the establishment of a world federation in which no nation can endanger the rights of the citizens of other states or engulf the world in catastrophe.

A world commonwealth backed by force strong enough to maintain an environment of peace and order is the logical administrative aspect of world brotherhood.

Thus, the new human rights now emerging as necessary to the maturing of civilization on this planet, in addition to the older ones, are: (1) the right to world peace; (2) the right to world order; (3) the right to world citizenship; and (4) the right to world faith.

Nixon Won, Didn't He?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Didn't Harry Truman go across the country last year telling voters they were not voting for Ike, they were voting for Nixon?

Well, that being the case, didn't Nixon get 5,000,000 votes more than he did in 1952, take more Southern states also, including Kefauver's state and home precinct?

Didn't that prove the voters know Nixon is capable and that he will be elected in 1960?

Answering Mr. Guilfoil

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Thomas J. Guilfoil was not asked to cater to Mayor Tucker's "vanity." The Mayor was only asking that proper courtesy be extended the highest public office in the city. There are many who admire Mayor Tucker for his courageous stand.

Mr. Guilfoil in his statement seemed to draw a distinction between himself and Mayor Tucker when he said: "Most of us who did the work on this dinner had one thing in common—we were not on any public payroll, either local, state or federal, and we were naive enough to believe that those who had been especially benefitted by politics through election to public office, would help us without being coaxed to do so."

Does this mean that without attorney who receives legal fees for representing governmental and public agencies is not a beneficiary of politics?

"DEEP AFFECTION FOR THE MAYOR."

Safety If It's Cheap

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Evidently some commercial highway users are in favor of highway safety measure only when they don't adversely affect their pocketbooks. Six out of state trucking firms filed a federal suit challenging validity of the Illinois law requiring splash guards on trucks.

As a passenger-car driver who frequently uses the highways, I salute the Illinois attempt to cut highway deaths and injuries.

The action taken by the six trucking firms belies the numerous statements by the truck industry's public relations departments that it will co-operate to make the roads safer for everyone. After all it isn't usually the truck drivers who come out second best in a collision involving a truck and a passenger car.

Tests to Be Halted

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"No More Bomb Testing" should be America's new slogan. Please do everything to awaken St. Louisans. Something drastic should be done and quickly. The air we breathe may affect future generations. What a terrible gamble the heads of our country are taking in allowing this to go on.

If America puts up a loud enough noise perhaps other countries will sound off also. We are not the first to send up Sputnik, but what an honor to be the first to absolutely stop bomb tests because we value human health more than some countries realize.

Aid But Not Subsidy

Shall atomic electric power plants be subsidized? The chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, spoke out for subsidy—he called it "expanded assistance"—in his speech dedicating an experimental reactor at Santa Susana, Calif. Senator Anderson of New Mexico, senior Senate Democrat on the Senate-House Joint Atomic Energy Committee, objected.

He pointed out that the Government stood aside from construction of its own atomic power plants because Adm. Strauss offered assurance that the privately-owned utilities were straining at the leash to build them.

Now is the Government to put up the money because the private utilities were not straining at the leash at all, but, on the other hand, are unwilling to take the risks involved?

"If the Government is going to put up the money," Senator Anderson very sensibly said, "the Government should own the reactors."

We think outright subsidy would be most unwise. It would establish a precedent of using Government funds for capital outlay in privately owned electric companies.

The question what to do now can best be answered by determining what kind of atomic electric industry we want to see in the United States 50 years from now.

Let us suppose the Government subsidizes construction of plants which will then be privately owned. Only a relatively few groups, predominantly private corporations, will have enough money and enough know-how to acquire the plants even after subsidy. Let us suppose the Government continues to forgo building any plants of its own. The result will be private monopoly.

A private atomic monopoly could inflict more public abuses than did ever the electric power industry in the days of Insullism. A Governmental monopoly of atomic electric power is equally to be undesired—it could be stagnated by bureaucracy, riddled with partisan politics.

For monopoly is a master of the people, whether it is private or public, and atomic power must be the people's servant.

The pattern of industry we should want to see established for atomic power in our country is one in which private companies, the Federal Government, municipalities and co-operatives will own and operate atomic electric generating plants, transmission lines and distribution systems. Thus they can maintain insofar as possible the advantages of competition in an essential industry which is by its very nature a monopoly within its own operating area and can compete only from one area to another.

To enable private enterprise to do all it can and will, Government should continue to help with the cost of research and development. It should help with insurance. Otherwise, private plants could never be built. But "assistance" should not be stretched so far as to make an outright gift of public funds to private individuals.

We hope Senator Anderson and those with him will stand firm against the subsidy idea.

The fact that subsidy has come up is proof positive that failure to build and operate Government plants, at least enough to supply the AEC's own power requirements, has been a mistake all along.

A negative policy based on unreasoning fear of public power has produced negative results.

It will be up to Congress in 1958 to lay down a positive policy and see that it is carried out.

Science or Sophistry in the County?

We hope that members of the St. Louis County Council are acquainted with the fluoridation news from the American Medical Association's recent clinical and House of Delegates meeting at Philadelphia.

On the basis of a new, "exhaustive," year-long study, the A.M.A. has reaffirmed its views that fluoridation of public water supplies is a safe method of reducing dental decay in children—and specifically "not harmful to the general health" of the population.

This statement from the nation's physicians follows earlier vigorous endorsements of fluoridation by such other experts as the United States Public Health Service, the American Dental Association and Missouri and local agencies, including the Health Commissioner of St. Louis county, Dr. Herbert R. Domke.

Given this overwhelming scientific and professional support for fluoridation, a County Council of reasonable men certainly ought to bring the benefits of this scientific advance to the children of their constituents. They should, but so far they have done nothing.

Two Councilmen favor fluoridation in the county. They are Chairman L. Gordon Davis, Kirkwood Republican, and Maurice M. Abramson, University City Democrat. If two of the five others would support fluoridation, the county could obtain a benefit that St. Louis youngsters have enjoyed for more than two years.

Whether county children continue to suffer unnecessary dental decay and unnecessary pain depends upon five Councilmen: Republicans George E. Bohrer, Richard A. Heltage and Frank L. Martini and Democrats Thomas Dunne and James H. J. McNary. So long as these men ignore the advice of the scientists, so long as they listen to the sophists and those with impractical and ineffective "tablet" plans, then so long will county children be the losers.

Stop the nonsense! Pass the fluoridation bill!

Indonesia Needs Stability

President Sukarno's hate-the-Dutch campaign, with the ceding of West New Guinea as the objective, has gone into the second week with strong indications that it may be disastrous to Indonesia's economic interests. Evidence is growing that the eight-year-old republic is unable to control its own people. The attempt on Sukarno's life is one example. And there are reports the Bandung arsenal explosion was due to sabotage.

Although plans are under way to expel the 46,000 Dutch nationals, it is doubtful that the Indonesians can fill their places in the technical and business fields. The Communist-dominated unions are seizing more establishments and it still is not clear whether they are doing so with the acquiescence of the government. It remains to be seen whether the government in taking over most of these enterprises from the workers is doing so with nationalization in mind or with intention to return them to the Dutch at some later date.

In any event the crippling of business that has ensued can be expected to hurt the Indonesians as much as the Dutch. Indonesia depends upon Western enterprise and three-fourths of that is Dutch. It is ironic that the Dutch now in Indonesia believe that the humid jungle of West New Guinea is of practically no commercial value and would gladly see it go for the sake of business in Sumatra, Java and the other islands. The Hague, Australia and the NATO allies probably prefer to see West New Guinea in Dutch hands for strategic reasons. Considering the shaky internal political situation, the civil disorders and the fact that the United Nations has refused to go along with Sukarno on the ceding of West New Guinea, Sukarno would do well to give first priority to the restoration of order, and at all costs avoid falling prey to the Communists.

Mr. Adams in St. Louis

Sherman Adams is no doctor, as he told the Republican dinner here. His layman's views on the President's recovery are not a great deal more reliable than other laymen's views.

It is encouraging to hear from him that Mr. Eisenhower is "on his way" to complete recovery and in "excellent shape." Mr. Adams, however, has depreciated the currency of his reassurances during three presidential illnesses by consistently sounding the "all is well" theme.

In his St. Louis speech he recalled that the President's "minor stroke" was first detected when a secretary noticed a difficulty with his speech. Others will recall that the White House staff which Mr. Adams heads at that very time was telling the nation about a "chill."

The real question about President Eisenhower's health is not whether he has recovered sufficiently to sign papers and preside at occasional Cabinet or staff meetings. It is whether he can devote to the most exacting responsibilities in the world the energy and full-time leadership which they demand.

For example, it will be a splendid thing for the NATO conference if the President can attend after all. But the success of that crucial meeting will depend upon the thought, imagination and driving initiative that have gone into the planning for it long before it opens. There is no question that Mr. Eisenhower's illness at this particular time has already damaged these preparations.

Whether the President can recover the necessary energy and stamina to do the full-time job the country expects of him is a question that is still open. And this makes it all the more necessary, as Mr. Adams acknowledges, that Congress should act at once to plug the constitutional gap which leaves in doubt the Chief Executive's authority to delegate his powers temporarily to the Vice President.

It is quite conceivable that the President might at some future time be too well to resign—and the decision on this course must inevitably be his own—but not well enough to give the presidency the full-time energy it is entitled to. In that event everybody would be better off if Mr. Nixon became acting President, with full authority and full responsibility so long as he occupied the Chief Executive's chair. Congress should quickly act to make this solution possible, even though its members may hope that it does not become necessary.

No Matter by Whom Obtained

The United States Supreme Court has ruled against the use of wire-tap evidence in a federal court even if it is obtained by state officers with the sanction of state law. Since this may affect the pending case of James R. Hoffa, president elect of the Teamsters, and perhaps start new agitation in favor of wire-tapping, it is helpful that the decision, read by Chief Justice Warren, was unanimous.

The nine justices over-ruled the conviction of Salvatore Benanti for possession of bootleg alcohol. Suspecting the man of a different offense, New York police had obtained permission of a state court to tap his telephone line. On discovering the alcohol, they turned the case over to federal authorities. This shows that wire-tapping is such a broad device that its use may all too easily conflict with the ban against unlawful search and seizure. But the Government used the evidence on the ground that it had been obtained by police, not its own agents. The Chief Justice struck this down, saying:

"Distinctions meant to defeat the plain meaning of a statute will not be countenanced." The law forbids wire-tap evidence in federal courts, he said. Had Congress meant to exempt evidence obtained from non-federal agents, it would have said so.

To have ruled otherwise would have been to invite federal authorities to get friendly police officials to make taps for them.

That this ruling may affect the Hoffa case is incidental. That case actually illustrates the wisdom of the Court's continuing stand against wire-tap evidence. Hoffa is accused of tapping wires to get information about Teamster affairs. What would be the position of the Government prosecutor using evidence obtained by the same device in his effort to convict Hoffa?

And what of the privacy of innocent citizens which might well be violated if the court gave wire-tapping its unrestricted approval? Essentially, this is the device of a state which always puts the policeman ahead of the citizen. Because the possible abuses of wire-tapping so far outweigh its occasional convenience, the Court did well in once more settling itself against the device as a prop for federal law enforcement.

Exit Coach Broyles

As the University of Missouri looks again for a football coach, it is also looking for the reasons for the resignation of Coach Frank Broyles and his staff after one promising year. Is something wrong with the University's football program? If so, Mr. Broyles did not spell it out.

The young coach is, of course, going to make more money at the University of Arkansas than he made at Columbia. Perhaps he also will welcome a return to his native South. In any case, these are not the main reasons which the coach gave for leaving.

Coach Broyles had expressed concern because his predecessor, Athletic Director Don Faurot, set a policy of recruiting Missouri players for Missouri teams. The University had recruited a team largely from outside the state just before Mr. Faurot appeared, and the result was disaster. But the University's student body represents many states, and surely nobody expected Mr. Broyles to use Missouri players only. In fact, 11 of the 48 athletic scholarships awarded last fall went to out-of-state players.

Coach Broyles also had implied that Missouri high school football was not an adequate source of good players. It is true that this state is not the football hotbed that Texas is, or the Chicago area or Pennsylvania. But local teams have played those in surrounding states on fairly equal terms.

Neither Missouri high schools nor the State University would be justified in emphasizing football much more than they do. There are other sports to be played, and many students who need to play them. Above all, it would be a mistake to glorify the football system at the expense of the educational system. So as the University seeks a new coach, it ought to look for one who, like Don Faurot, can live and succeed within these terms.

"NO, NAME'S SHERMAN ADAMS AND I JUST WORK HERE"

Of Human Rights: a Universal Declaration

(Text of U.N. Statement Adopted by General Assembly Dec. 10, 1948)

PREAMBLE.

Whereas the recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace,

Whereas, disregard and contempt for human rights have resulted in barbarous acts which have outraged the conscience of mankind, and the advent of a world in which human beings shall enjoy freedom of speech and belief and freedom from fear and want has been proclaimed as the highest aspiration of common people,

Whereas it is essential, if man is not to be compelled to have recourse to last resort to rebellion against tyranny and oppression, that human rights should be protected by rule of law, . . . now therefore

The General Assembly

Proclaims this universal declaration of human rights as a common standard of achievement for all peoples and all nations to the end that every individual and every organ of society keeping this declaration constantly in mind shall strive by teaching and education to promote respect for these rights and freedoms and by progressive measures, national and international, to secure their universal and effective recognition and observance.

ARTICLE 1.

All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights. They are endowed with reason and conscience, should act towards one another in a spirit of brotherhood.

Everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms set forth in this declaration without distinction of any kind such as race, color, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, birth, or other status.

Furthermore, no distinction shall be made on the basis of political, jurisdictional or international status of the country or territory to which the person belongs, whether it be an independent, trust or non-self-governing territory or under any other limitation of sovereignty.

Everyone has the right to life, liberty, and security of person.

No one shall be held in slavery or servitude; slavery and slave trade shall be prohibited in all their forms.

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment.

Everyone has the right to recognition everywhere as a person before the law.

All are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to equal protection of the law. All are entitled to equal protection against any discrimination in violation of this declaration and against any incitement to such discrimination.

Everyone has the right to effective remedy by competent national tribunals for acts violating fundamental rights granted him by a constitution or by law.

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention, or exile.

Everyone is entitled in full equality to a fair and public hearing by an independent and impartial tribunal in the determination of his rights and obligations and of any criminal charge against him.

1. Everyone charged with a penal offense has the right to be presumed innocent until proved guilty according to law in public trial, at which he has had all guarantees necessary for his defense.

2. No one shall be held guilty of any penal offense on account of any act or omission which did not constitute penal offense under national or international law at the time when it was committed. Nor shall heavier penalty be imposed than one that was applicable at the time the penal offense was committed.

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary interference with his privacy, family, home, or correspondence nor to attacks upon his honor and reputation. Everyone has the right to the protection of the law against such interference or attacks.

1. Everyone has the right to freedom of movement and residence within the borders of each state.

2. Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his country.

1. Everyone has the right to seek and to enjoy in other countries asylum from persecution.

2. This right may not be invoked in the case of prosecutions genuinely arising from non-political crimes or from acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

1. Everyone has the right to a nationality.

2. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his nationality nor denied the right to change his nationality.

1. Men and women of full age, without any limitation due to race, nationality, or religion, have the right to marry and to found a family.

They are entitled to equal rights as to marriage, during marriage and at its dissolution.

2. Marriage shall be entered into only with the free and full consent of the intending spouses.

3. The family is the natural and fundamental group unit of society and is entitled to protection by society and the state.

1. Everyone has the right to own property alone as well as in association with others.

2. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his property.

Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion. This includes the freedom to change his religion or belief and the freedom either alone or in community with others and in public or private to manifest his religion or belief in teaching, practice, worship and observance.

3. These rights and freedoms may in no case be exercised contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

30. Nothing in this declaration may be interpreted as implying for any state, group or person any right to engage in any activity or to perform any act aimed at the destruction of any of rights and freedoms set forth herein.

THOMAS L. STOKES

'Normalcy' Sends Up No Satellites

SOMETHING NO BIGGER THAN A SOFTBALL, the earth satellite that burned itself out, has become a symbol for much disillusionment after our spree of complacency.

No one would think that the balance of power in the world, at least psychologically, would have been so upset in so short a time. In the month when Russia projected two successive balls into space, we punctured the period with a failure, as if throwing a vast interrogative mark across the skies. Our complacency took longer in the making but, if we have cast it off, then it could be the beginning of wisdom. In the midst of history, it is always risky to try to put a beginning to the period of retreat from hard realities. It could be when, after a fearful, bloody war in a faraway corner called Korea, and so soon after a global war, we became weary and wanted relief and succor for awhile. We wanted to have a deliverer for our troubles.

Truman

He created a business man's government, over which he presided with a relaxed rein. He thought of his cabinet as the board of directors. Business did indeed take over. Government was tailored for business, and with no non-sense. Those who gathered about his Government knew exactly what they wanted. They still do.

Counting-House Mind.

Made the servants of business were the federal regulatory agencies, which had been set up to protect the public. Throughout was the counting-house mind. It was busy in seeking to hand over valuable natural resources, including our water resources. The aim was exploitation, that is, where they were able to utilize sites out of which they could profit.

Truman's Bright Page.

In short, we were willing to forget this was part of our national heritage.

To President Truman, the decision for us to stand in Korea and join with the United Nations is still today, as at the time, one of the shining pages of our history, and the history of our age.

When Russia ignited Communist North Korea, her satellite (in a different sense than), to attack South Korea, a ward of the United Nations. President Truman saw that we could do nothing but call a halt to this unprovoked aggression.

Otherwise, the Communist menace would have overrun that area of the world and sought to penetrate elsewhere along the perimeter of the Communist bloc.

But we grew weary of the war. Our people wanted a deliverer from our troubles.

Korea Made an Issue.

At hand, as a comforter and as a healer and a unifying force among our people, there was a warm and genial personality who was at the same time a soldier, a war hero. He was induced to head a political party 20 years out of power. He became the image of peace and plenty and rest.

Shrewd party leaders, who

What we needed was dynamic democracy at work in all of these areas. It is all a part of the same grand design, which we find in the field of scientific progress, where we have been lagging—and whether that is, for example, in rockets and earth satellites for military and peaceful purposes, or in development of atomic energy for power for peaceful purposes or to protect our national security. In the atomic area we are behind, too.

Which brings us back to the three balls, two that got off into space, and the smaller one that fizzed out.

We are in a supreme test in what free people can do.

PAUL VINYARD JR. DIES; AIR TRAFFIC CONTROLLER

Paul Vinyard Jr., chief airport traffic controller at Lambert-St. Louis Field, died suddenly early today at Chanute Air Force Base, Rantoul, Ill., where he was assisting in examinations of control tower operators. Death, apparently was due to a heart ailment.

Mr. Vinyard, 42 years old, joined the control tower staff prior to World War II under the city administration. He became chief controller and transferred to the Civil Aeronautics Administration when the federal agency took over control Jan. 1, 1942.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ruth Vinyard, with whom he lived at 8020 Monroe avenue, Vinita Terrace; a daughter, Patricia Vinyard; a son Paul Vinyard III, and his father Dr. Paul Vinyard Sr.

STEPS TO CUT AUTO DEATHS PROPOSED

400 Public Officials to Set Up Program for Entire Nation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—Some 400 public officials, concerned about 40,000 traffic deaths in 1956, expect to set up a pattern today for stepped-up accident prevention measures to cut that number in half.

The officials from all over the nation, including six state governors, were called here by the President's Committee for Traffic Safety. They heard speeches yesterday and then divided into workshops to make recommendations on what could be done for an intensified program of safety in all states in 1958.

Today they planned to discuss the proposals, vote on them and develop a set of priority measures. Later, next April and May, four regional conferences are planned to build public support for the program. These will be held April 1-2 in Chicago, April 8-9 in San Francisco, April 15-16 in Atlantic City and May 29-30 in Miami Beach.

One of the proposals was to start teaching the basic lessons of safety to children so that they will be better citizens as pedestrians and motorists.

Others concerned problems anticipated when the nation's big new highway construction program is finished. One workshop was told that unless motor vehicle controls keep pace with expansion of these new highways, the result will be more deaths and injuries than America has now.

Suggestions for the priority program included:

1. A 100 per cent step-up in traffic police activity with more effective manpower concentration.

2. Close co-operation among vehicle manufacturers, road builders and traffic engineers to co-ordinate vehicle and highway design and traffic operations.

3. Establishment of realistic, reasonable and enforceable speed limits, on a zone basis, which will result in smoother traffic movement and renewed respect for law.

4. Immediate adoption by all states of uniform road rules and installation of uniform traffic signs, signals and markings.

5. Requirement that all applicants for a driver's license complete approved high school driver education courses and that there be periodic re-examination of older drivers.

6. Compulsory periodic inspection of vehicles.

7. An upgrading in the quality and quantity of motor vehicle administration, including driver licensing, to keep pace with growing motor travel.

8. Improvement of traffic courts, including requirement of court appearances for all moving violators and for adoption of a uniform no-fix traffic ticket.

9. Aggressive leadership on the part of public officials and the establishment of a citizen-support traffic safety organization in every state and major community.

10. Adherence to and support for high safety standards under the new highway construction program and particularly for control of access on highways where traffic volumes justify.

Governors here for the conference included Stratton of Illinois, Ribicoff of Connecticut, Simpson of Wyoming, Thompson of Wisconsin, Holmes of Oregon and Lovell of Iowa.

ALBERT PICK JR., HOTEL CHAIN HEAD, HONORED HERE

Albert Pick Jr., president of the Albert Pick Hotel chain, was honored yesterday at a reception at the Pick-Melbourne Hotel by about 500 persons from business and civic fields here.

The Hotel Association of St. Louis presented Pick with a certificate of appreciation for his work in the hotel industry, including his service as a past president and board chairman of the American Hotel Association.

He was in St. Louis yesterday for a celebration of the centennial of his family's activity in the hotel business. There are 23 Albert Pick hotels and seven motels. Two more motels are planned, he said.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ganss of St. Louis. Surviving are two sisters and a brother.

PILOT STUDY IN CITY ON HEALTH SERVICES

Survey to Be Made on Aid to Persons With Long Illnesses.

St. Louis has been chosen for a pilot study of health services provided for patients with long-term illnesses as the result of the unusual and highly effective program carried on in that field by Jewish agencies here, Dr. Franz Goldmann, associate professor of medical care at the Harvard University School of Public Health, said yesterday.

Speaking before the board of directors of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis at a meeting at Jewish Hospital, he said St. Louis is the first of five cities to be selected for such a study to be financed by the United States Public Health Service, which has granted $185,000 for the nation-wide survey.

He praised the program carried on here by the close tie-up of Jewish Hospital, Jewish Family Service Agency, Jewish Employment and Vocational Service and the Jewish Orthodox Old Folks Home.

Dr. Goldmann said the close-knit operation makes this one of the few cities in the nation where a complete health service is rendered the chronically ill both in the hospital and in the home. He said patients have been given excellent care as a result of the program which had its origin in 1947, when the Jewish Federation of St. Louis and its member agencies worked out a building and expansion program that culminated in a $7,000,000 project completed last year.

Dr. Goldmann, also director of the Health Services Co-ordination Study of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, said the study would begin this month. He pointed out the study would seek to determine what services patients are receiving, what they need and the cost of supplying these services.

Researchers, he said, will pay particular attention to what is called custodial care. A careful analysis also will be made of the administrative processes providing the services, he said.

BRITISH AUTO PIONEER DIES

OXFORD, England, Dec. 10 (AP)—Hans Langstad, Norwegian-born automobile pioneer who rose to a leading position in Lord Nuffield's motor empire, died at his home near Oxford yesterday. He was 77 years old. He designed the first engine for the baby Morris car.

$287,000,000 U. S. Plan to Give 20,000 Scholarships Proposed Folsom Said to Support It — Science and Mathematics Would Be Stressed — Administration by States.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—An educator said today Secretary of Welfare Marion Folsom is supporting a proposal that the Federal Government spend $287,000,000 a year on aid to education.

Heavy emphasis would be placed on science and mathematics in elementary and high schools. The plan would provide for some 20,000 scholarships a year, financed by the Federal Government but administered by the states.

G. Kerry Smith, executive secretary of the Association for Higher Education, is one of several education leaders who have been meeting in secrecy with United States Office of Education officials to work out the plan, which would run four or five years.

In an article for the Dec. 15 issue of A.H.E.'s College and University Bulletin, Smith wrote that the program, "designed to help meet the challenge of Soviet scientific advances, is being prepared by the United States Office of Education and supported by Secretary Folsom... for inclusion in the President's budget message to Congress."

The United States education office, a division of Folsom's department, went into high gear on the plan after President Eisenhower last month called for various steps to stimulate America's output of scientists, mathematicians, and technologists.

Smith said the new program is subject to change but that, as it stands now, it calls for:

1. Allotting $150,000,000 a year to increase the salaries of elementary and secondary school science and mathematics teachers and to provide laboratory equipment.

Smith said in an interview it was considered debatable by some participants in the closed-door conferences whether it would be wise to single out science and math teachers for favored salary treatment.

2. A total of $20,000,000 to uncover high school students with special talents in science and math and to seek to guide them into these critical fields. This part of the plan would provide some 20,000 scholarships a year for such students.

3. One hundred million dollars a year to expand and improve buildings and equipment at two-year technical institutes, which train engineering aids, laboratory assistants and the like, as well as at colleges and universities.

4. Twelve million dollars to expand the program of university graduate study already supported by some Government agencies such as the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Science Foundation.

5. Five million dollars to support foreign language instruction centers at universities, and to provide language fellowships.

Average of $750. Smith said the 20,000 annual scholarships would be federally financed but state administered. They would average about $750, varying according to the student's need. One big problem not yet resolved is whether scholarships should go only for science and related fields of study or whether all areas of learning should be covered.

Meanwhile the Navy announced plans to send 500 enlisted men to college each year to get education in science. The men will be given commissions after they receive bachelor of science degrees.

The program is open to enlisted Navy and Marine Corps personnel. Selection boards of officers and civilians will pick men on the basis of intelligence and aptitude, the Navy said, and send them to civilian colleges.

The Navy will pay the tuition and graduates will be required to remain on active duty as officers for at least as long as they are enrolled in the program.

Unranked Maryland Jolts Kentucky; Kansas and Bradley Win

Marquette Beaten as Wilt Gets 40 Points

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (UP)—Is Maryland really that good or is Kentucky in for an "off year"?

That was the big question in college basketball today after the unranked Terrapins whipped third-ranked Kentucky, 71-62, in the biggest upset of the young season. It was the third straight victory for Maryland and the first loss for Kentucky after three triumphs in tight games.

Kansas, the nation's No. 2 team behind North Carolina, defeated Marquette, 82-62; fourth-ranked Bradley crushed Arizona, 91-52, and seventh-ranked Kansas State downed Purdue, 79-73, but Cincinnati upset eighth-ranked Temple, 80-57, in other games involving top-rated teams.

Maryland Coach Bud Millikan said before the season he believed he could hit the "big time" if Al Bunge, a rugged 6-foot, 8-inch sophomore, came through. So it was no coincidence that big Bunge scored 16 points and won the battle of the backboards with Kentucky's John Cox last night.

Late Surge Helps Terrapins. Capt. John Nacincik scored two free throws and Charlie McNeil made a field goal to put Maryland ahead, 61-58, with six minutes remaining in the game. Bunge and Tom Young connected for baskets that enabled the Terrapins to open the margin to six points and they protected the lead to the finish at College Park, Md. (Kentucky will play St. Louis University at Kiel Auditorium Saturday night.)

Wilt Chamberlain, Kansas' seven-foot star, poured in 15 field goals and 10 free throws to set a Milwaukee Arena scoring mark of 40 points and pace the Jayhawks to their fourth straight triumph. Marquette raced off to a 9-1 lead but Kansas was in command, 33-24, at halftime and substituted freely in the second half.

Barney Cable, Bradley's 6-7 All-American candidate, scored 16 points as the Braves breezed to their second straight victory. The Braves trailed briefly in the early minutes but led 46-31 at the half. Ernie McCray scored 12 points for Arizona before fouling out with 13 minutes left.

Kansas State, which averages around 6 feet 6 inches, won its third in a row after the lead changed hands no less than 14 times. State battled to a 43-40 lead at the half but Purdue led three times in the second half. Bob Boozer, State's 6-8 forward, tallied 25 points.

36 for Cincy's Robertson. Sophomore Forward Oscar Robertson connected on 16 of 21 field goal attempts and added four free throws for 36 points as Cincinnati handed Temple its second straight defeat. Cincinnati was in front, 41-43, at halftime and close guarding forced Temple to shoot almost exclusively from the outside.

Notre Dame, rated tenth, whipped Nebraska, 69-56, breaking the game open in the second half after leading by only 39-34 at the intermission. Johnny McCarthy tallied 26 points for the winners and Gary Reimers bagged 18 for the losers.

In other games, Texas A. and M. upset highly regarded Memphis State, 71-68, with the help of Bob Johnson's late three-point play; Phil Warren scored 20 points as Northwestern downed South Dakota State, 74-58; St. Francis (Pa.) beat Duquesne, 68-60, on two foul shots by Jack O'Malley with 30 seconds left, and Wisconsin whipped Washington of St. Louis, 43-33.

North Carolina's meeting with George Washington tops a rather light Tuesday night schedule, which also includes Yale vs. Fordham and North Carolina State vs. Clemson.

Rogers Hornsby Recovering From Eye Operation

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (UP). ROGERS HORNSBY, 61, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, underwent an eye operation yesterday.

Hornsby, who owned one of the greatest pair of batting eyes in baseball history, had a cataract removed from his right eye. Doctors at Wesley Memorial Hospital said the operation was satisfactory and that "The Rajah" was in good spirits.

Hornsby compiled a lifetime batting average of .355 and batted a record .424 in 1924.

After his playing days Hornsby held a number of managerial jobs in both major and minor leagues.

He is now director of athletic activities for Chicago Mayor Daley's Youth Commission.

Two East Side Schools Rejoin Football League

Wood River and Edwardsville high schools have agreed to resume playing a league schedule in football in the Southwestern Illinois Conference.

Edwardsville hasn't played conference football since 1947 and Wood River since '52, though both schools retained league affiliation in other sports.

Recently the circuit ruled that a school fielding a team in any sport must compete in conference play in that sport. If Belleville and Wood River can get together on a late next fall, the Southwestern will have a full league slate in 1958. Otherwise, the conference round-robin will resume in '59.

The Southwestern Illinois members, in addition to Wood River, Edwardsville and Belleville, are Alton, Granite City, Collinsville and East St. Louis.

Badgers' Show of Hands No Vote of Confidence For Bears, Beaten 43-33

By Jack Rice

Washington University's annual romance with a few Big Ten basketball teams, wherein the Bears play the part of a Romeo who never gets a kind word from Juliet, is on the boards again and the story's still tearful.

The Bears lost last night at the Field House to Wisconsin, 43-33. The Big Ten team made two sudden baskets in the opening 90 seconds, and immediately set themselves up as superior beings for the night. As a visual thing, the superiority was more evident on the floor than it was on the scoreboard.

Washington Coach Blair Gullion walked away from it with the idea that the Bears' inferiority had to be something curable, like measles, and easily diagnosed, like failing to make baskets.

Bully for You, Blair. "We're a better team than we've shown the past two games," Gullion said. "Now, if you hold 'em up, the Bears to 43 points, you ought to win if you've any kind of an offense. I'm convinced this is something we're going to come out of."

He said "Good night" to two starters passing by, Stan Smith and Harvey Maack. The players stopped and came back to him, to inspect his smile at closer range and marvel at it. "Terrible," said Maack, "a 13-point first half again."

Gullion tried aspirin. "Well," he said, "maybe one of these nights we'll meet a team that doesn't use the zone defense, and break out of it." Texas Western used a zone against the Bears, in Washington's 13-point, first-half defeat last week. Wisconsin used it, still, and the Bears were out just watching it.

A High-Handed Trick. The Badgers were a whoop-and-holler crowd, and what they whooped and hollered mostly was "Hands up!" The Bears may never again see so many hands up in front of their faces when they grip a basketball and contemplate a shot. They knew Wisconsin players by palms better than they did by faces.

Washington tried to offset its outcourt failures, and Wisconsin's inside defenses, by taking to the sides of the court in the second half. It brought some improvement, but not enough to have made the win-or-lose difference at any stage.

Wisconsin's offense was not as noisy as its defense, but the Badgers went at that part of the game with both hands. They played along at half-court, and their deftness in passing and setting up was more than Washington could match.

The Bears had sophomore Harold Patton as leading scorer, with 10 points. Wisconsin was led by Bob Litzow, with 11 points, and by Bob Holt, with 10. Several Washington boys munching on the post-game apples, still, were debating which way Holt really went when he headed west, and scored from the east.

The Bears play Wednesday night at the Field House against Arizona. The game after that is against Michigan, Saturday at Ann Arbor and that's the end of the Big Ten story this season. In the history of the Bears' brave struggles with the Big Ten, Michigan holds a special place. The Bears beat 'em last season.

Cardinals to Play Seven of Cincinnati's 45 Home Night Games

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 10 (UP)—The Cincinnati Reds today announced their 1958 home schedule which includes 45 night games, one more than was scheduled this year.

The world champion Milwaukee Braves and the new San Francisco Giants play eight night contests here.

St. Louis, Los Angeles and Chicago play seven night games, while the Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies invade Crosley Field for four night games each.

The home schedule calls 12 Sunday dates, eight of which are doubleheaders.

Sanford-Brown Wins. Sanford-Brown College's basketball team gained an 84-77 victory over McDonnell at Art Hoch Junior High School gym. Bill Buchmueller and Syl Lukewitte had 26 and 20 points, respectively, for the winners.

Chaminade Five To Be Tested by St. L. U. High

By Harold Tuthill

Chaminade's newly-found basketball strength will get a severe test tonight when Brother Ray Davenport's Flyers play host to St. Louis U. High.

The Flyers are riding a three-game winning streak with triumphs over Western Military Academy, Mercy and Laboure. Kevin Kearns and Ray Doodle have been the leading lights in the three wins.

St. Louis U. High owns one decision—a 56-33 victory over St. Mary's—but the Junior Billkens are loaded with experienced talent in Tom Kieffer, Mike Craven, Neil Mulcahy, Mike Farris, Mac Boland, Bill Cochran, Frank Weyforth and Bill Nordmann of last season's squad.

A year ago St. Louis won, 66-49, after leading at the end of the first half, 28-24. Not far from Chaminade will be another interesting game—that between Kirkwood and Beaumont. It will be the first of the season for the host, Pioneers, who lost to the Blue-jackets a year ago, 47-38.

Now the Jackets are 0-2 for the season, having lost to McBride and to Sumner, both close decisions (61-57 and 60-58). Tom Stanton's Jackets lack the size they had when Bert Barth, Bob Gehnd, Bill Mueller and Arden Stiefer were on hand. Presently their tallest players are Donnell Reid and Wes Bock, each 6-4.

Kirkwood's tall man is Kirby Allen and helping him is Denver Miller's hot-shooting forward, Ron Boddie.

Prep fans will watch with interest the result of Roosevelt's opening venture—at St. Mary's High. Bob Rogers' Rough Riders easily could be the darkhorse of the Public High race with experienced players from the 1956-57 squad.

Chief among the returnees are Don Lottman and Fred Renner, each 6-3, and Al Hinton, Gordon Ferguson, and Jim Pickett, all 6-1.

Other tall athletes include Earl Boren, 6-3; Lloyd Belcher, Gary Black and Arnold Wilson, 6-2; Jerry Pippen is six feet tall, while Ken Dillman and Mike O'Reilly are 5-11. Bill Schmidt, who weighs 210, is 5-9 and Lloyd Dobbs is 5-8.

Summer vs. DuBourg. In other games involving Public High teams, O'Fallon will be at Cleveland, Vashon will play at Kinloch, Sumner will oppose Du Bourg at Hadley Tech and Central will visit De Andreis.

C.B.C. takes a two-game winning streak to Mercy in another non-league attraction. Suburban activity, also non-league, includes Hazelwood at Maplewood, Pattonville at Normandy, Hancock at Webster Groves, Riverview Gardens at Ritenour, Berkeley at Ferguson, Bayless at Lindbergh, Affton at Brentwood and Mehlville at St. Francis Borgia.

In afternoon engagements Clayton will host John Burroughs and Ladue will play at Principia Academy.

Another cold wave from Canada is on its way today through the North Central States with temperatures falling sharply. Temperatures this morning were below zero in most of Saskatchewan and Manitoba and in the teens as far down as North Dakota and northern Minnesota; it will be even colder tonight.

Considerable new snow has been added to the accumulation as far south as the Dakotas and Minnesota with generally 5 to 9 inches on the ground in the North Central States and 8 to 15 inches in the south central Canadian provinces. The prospect is for partly cloudy and quite cold weather in those areas the next day or so.

Cardinals Hire Joe Schultz to Manage York

Joe Schultz is back home. A native St. Louisan who caught and coached for the Browns, and still works here as a mobile salesman, Schultz today accepted appointment as manager of a new Cardinal club.

The balding 39-year-old former catcher turned down a chance to manage Louisville in the Triple-A American Association to pilot the Redbirds' York (Pa.) club in the Class A Eastern League, it was learned.

"We're delighted to have a man of Joe's ability, aggressiveness and loyalty to St. Louis," said Farm Director Walter Shannon of the Cardinals.

Schultz, whose father played in the outfield for the Redbirds and scouted for them and other clubs before his death in 1941, caught for both Pittsburgh and the Browns. A left-handed batter, he was best known for his timely pinch-hitting.

Schultz has managed at Tulsa, Nashville and last year at St. Antonio, a Baltimore farm club the Orioles announced they would not operate in 1958.

Lewis Wins Title. NOTTINGHAM, Eng., Dec. 10 (UP)—Percy Lewis of Oxford, won the vacant British Empire featherweight title last night by scoring a technical knockout over Charlie Hill of Scotland, in the tenth round of a scheduled 15-round bout. Lewis weighed 124½ pounds, and Hill 126.

Three Duke Players On Navy Eleven's All-Opponent Team

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 10 (UP)—Duke, who tied Navy this year for the fourth time in five seasons, placed Tackle Tom Topping, Guard Buzz Guy and Halfback George Dutrow on the 1957 all-opponent team chosen by the Middles.

North Carolina, the only team to beat Navy, landed End Buddy Payne and Tackle Leo Russavage. Army was represented by Halfback Pete Dawkins and Center Jim Kernan. Others on the team were Quarterback Don Allard of Boston College, Fullback Theron Sapp of Georgia, End Ron Wheatcroft of California and All-American Guard Al Eucyer of Notre Dame.

Topping and Sapp each received 28 votes from the 33 Navy players taking part in the balloting. Payne was next with 27.

Cincinnati Gets Seventh Pitcher In Busy Week

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10 (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, seeking to bolster their southpaw pitching corps, traded homebred Bob Purkey, a rangy right-hander, to the Cincinnati Redlegs last night in exchange for Don Gross.

Pirate General Manager Joe L. Brown said the trade was even up with no cash involved.

Gross, 26, had a 7-9 record with the Redlegs last year. He appeared in 43 games, had 73 strikeouts and allowed only 33 walks in 148 innings pitched.

Purkey, 28, had an 11-14 record last season, his second full year in the majors. He turned in a 3-8 mark with the Pirates in 36 games in 1954 and was farmed out to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League.

Specializing in the slider and knuckler, Purkey was rated as a coming pitcher. He was effective against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Purkey became the seventh new pitcher obtained by Cincinnati in the last week.

Carter, Below Form, Wins Six of Eight in Match Game Finals

He Beats Weber and Ties With Chicagoan

By John J. Archibald of the Post-Dispatch Staff.
CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Don Carter, the old master from St. Louis, had bowlers' luck with him as the match play finals of the world's invitational tournament got under way today.

In most other years of competing in the big match game events Carter has had to do it the hard way, because while he scored well, he couldn't win his proper share of games, but today at least, it was different, as Don won six out of eight games while average less than 200.

Carter began the day by sweeping a four-game match from his Budweiser teammate Dick Weber while shooting a mere 806 total. Weber had 720.

In the second of today's matches to split his four scheduled four matches, Carter managed to split his four games with Chicagoan Johnny King despite the fact that Don had only 780. Don took the opener, 186-181, lost the next two, 233-199 and 204-174, but won the final from King, 221-178.

Weber Meets Buzz-Saw.
After his whitewashing by Carter, Weber ran into a buzz-saw in the form of Bill Lillard, the slim Chicagoan who won the all-star tournament here at the Coliseum two years ago. Lillard won by scores of 254-203, 233-216 and 237-180, before Weber ended his losing last one, 203-199. Dick had to double in the roll-off to win that.

In other first-round matches involving St. Louisans, Tom Hennessey won three out of four from Budweiser teammate, Pat Patterson, and the Falstaffs' Steve Nagy took three out of four from the Buds' Ray Bluth.

The matches were the first of many that will pair one Budweiser against another because of the Buds' remarkable achievement of qualifying all five of their first-stringers for the finals.

Led by Weber, who finished fifth among the 160 top name bowlers who began shooting last Thursday, the Buds also placed Bluth (seventh), Carter (eighth), although he was seeded into the finals anyway. Hennessey (tied for tenth), and Patterson (sixteenth) by the margin of one pin in a hair-breadth finish.

A sixth St. Louisan, the Falstaffs' Nagy, reached the finals by finishing twelfth.

Match play was scheduled to run almost continuously until midnight. The same schedule will be followed for four days, until the winner of the $5000 first prize is determined before an NBC network television audience, Friday night.

Each finalist will meet the entire field in four-game matches, with the last session being a position round.

The qualifying of their entire team is the latest in a string of individual and team accomplishments by the Buds. Bluth won both the city and state match game titles; Carter won the Southern match game crown at Nashville, and the team has forged to a 13-game lead in the Masters League.

A pair of Detroit pros were the high scorers in the 36-game trials. Ed Lubanski, a consistently high finisher in the national individual, match game tournament, formerly held at this time and place (now scheduled for Minneapolis in January), was first with 7667. That was an average of 213. Second was Billy Golembiewski, with 7588.

Chicago's Bill Lillard and a 19-year-old Texan, Jim Carman of Dallas, tied for third.

After them came Weber. Jim Thomas of Streator, Ill., Bluth, Carter, Chicago's Johnny King, Hennessey and Chicago's Don Ellis tied for tenth. Nagy, Dick Hoover of Akron, New Jersey's Lou (Wrong Foot) Campi, Chicago's Glen Allison, and Patterson.

Of the other St. Louisans who reached the semifinals, Billy Welu finished thirty-fourth with 7223 and Harry Smith was thirty-fifth with 7209. Laverne Carter was forty-fifth among the women with 4343 for 24 games.

Much of the night's excitement centered around who would take the sixteenth position. Patterson completed his 12 games of yesterday on the early evening squad with a respectable 7338 total for the entire 36. In the language of the professional bowler that was "138 over"—meaning the number of pins above a 200 average.

There were at least four members of the night's final squad who were considered Patterson's chief threats, in addition to several others, who were regarded as sure to capture higher positions. Among the latter was Bluth and he removed all doubts with a powerful 1337 series.

By the time the last game of the night began, Pat had abandoned hope. Two of the challengers had more or less eliminated themselves, but two others needed just a 191 score to beat him. They were Duke McGrew, a television bowling commentator from Los Angeles, and a young Milwaukeean, Jim Miller.

McGrew started his game with a double, but poor counts on spares and finally a wide split in the ninth frame caused him to fall short with 179. On an adjoining pair of lanes, Miller had an early split, but later got a double, and went into the tenth frame needing a spare and a 10-pin count to

15-YEAR-OLD'S DOG SCORES 200 POINTS OUT OF POSSIBLE 200 IN OBEDIENCE TEST

By Robert Morrison
Princess is a perfect lady. Her nose is a little longer than those of most perfect ladies. But her brown eyes glow with understanding, and her tail is bushy.

To prevent any conclusion-jumping, perhaps it should be explained forthwith that Princess is a year-old, female collie. But she has a diploma to prove she's a perfect lady.

She was graduated last night from first grade in the St. Louis Dog Breeders Obedience College at the American Legion Hall, 7800 Olive Street Road. Bill Nolte, president of the canine college, said it was almost unbelievable.

"It might happen once a year throughout the country but in a beginner's class I've never heard of it happening," he said.

Princess Trained by Youth.
Proud owner and trainer of this female phenom was Bill Nolte, Pattonville High sophomore. A year ago this Christmas he got his first dog, a round, fluffy little thing in a box.

Bill, who is 15 now, was old enough to appreciate his pup. He taught her to walk and heel early.

"She was a good smart dog, she learned real quick," he said.

Then, not long ago, he saw an ad in the paper about obedience training. He had earned the necessary $25 fee by setting pins at the St. Ann bowling alley. So off to dog school they went.

"It might happen once a year throughout the country but in a beginner's class I've never heard of it happening," he said.

Albie Booth Named Cotton Bowl Referee
NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (UP)—Albie Booth, great Yale quarterback of the early 1930's and now a leading Eastern football official, will referee the Cotton Bowl game between Navy and Rice, New Year's day at Dallas, it was announced today.

Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference, and Howard Grubbs, commissioner of the Southwest Conference, also announced the other game officials. They will be Maco C. Stewart of Southern Methodist, umpire; Jack Freeman of Texas, linesman; Ray Barbuti of Syracuse, field judge, and Lee O. Rogers of Alabama, back judge.

Remember?
5...15...25 YEARS AGO

1952—Easy Ed Macauley scored 29 points as the Boston Celtics defeated the Philadelphia Warriors, 88 to 72.

1942—Jack Doyle, well-known Broadway odds-maker, died in New York at the age of 66.

1932—Herold (Muddy) Ruel, 36, a St. Louisan given his first chance with the Browns in 1915, signed to catch for the local American League ball club in '33. . . St. Louis U's 29-26 victory over Kansas State here heralded the introduction into college basketball of two rules designed to speed up the game. One required a team to take the ball over the center line from its back court in 10 seconds and the other compelled the offensive pivot man to shoot, pass or dribble out of the free-throw lane in three seconds.

gave it her royal best. She heeled on a leash without a false move. She stood for examination without a quiver of her narrow nose. She heeled off a leash, then maneuvered smoothly through the recall, long sit, and long lie-down exercises of the first grade tests.

Sometimes, said McGlen and the club's trainer, Miss Toni Martin, a dog will come out with a grade of 199 or 199½, but Princess and her Bill made it a perfect 200.

How was it done?

"I worked her two hours a day," said Bill. "I wanted to make sure she knew her stuff."

So Princess went to the head of the class and Bill went back to scheming about how to earn more money to send her on to higher education and maybe some blue ribbons in shows.

Rees Named British Golfer of the Year
LONDON, Dec. 10 (UP)—Dai Rees, captain of the British Ryder Cup golf team which beat the United States for the first time since 1933 last October, has been voted "golfer of the year" by the British Association of Golf Writers.

Wentzville Forfeits Game.
A basketball victory scored by Wentzville High over Wright City was declared forfeit by a recent decision of the State High School Activities Association which found Wentzville had used an ineligible player, Tom Wilmes, a transfer student from Assumption High of O'Fallon, Mo. Wilmes, who becomes eligible the second semester, had played in two games before the error was discovered.

Hawks, Royals In Battle for Division Lead

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (UP)—George Yardley of the Detroit Pistons, maintained his National Basketball Association individual scoring during the past week by averaging more than 30 points a game.

The veteran Yardley has tallied 601 points through 21 games for a 28.6 average.

The opposition is bunched closely behind, however, with indications this may be one of the tightest and highest individual scoring races in the history of the professional circuit.

Bob Pettit of St. Louis trails Yardley by 59 points but owns a 25.8 average. Right behind him are Bill Sharman of Boston, and Adolph Schayes of Syracuse.

Pettit and his teammates with the St. Louis club, swing into action tonight, when they face the Cincinnati Royals in the first game of a double-header at New York. A defeat would drop the Hawks into a tie for the Western Division lead with Cincinnati. After the contest here, the St. Louisans move to Boston for a game with the New York Knicks, tomorrow night, while Cincinnati faces Boston.

Sharman, who has taken over the brunt of the Boston attack since teammate Bob Cousy has been sidelined with a leg ailment, has scored 520 points for a 24.8 average, while Schayes has tallied 495 points for an identical 24.8 average.

Clyde Lovellette of Cincinnati, Neil Johnston of Philadelphia, Bill Russell and Frank Ramsey of Boston, Larry Foust of Minneapolis and Willie Naulls of New York, round out the top 10 scorers.

New York's Ron Sobie and Minneapolis' Dick Schuttler moved ahead of Sharman in the free throw race. Sobie made 22 of 24 attempts to run his percentage to .891, while Schuttler counted on seven of eight for .888. Sharman failed on four of 18 as his average dipped to .882.

Johnson's field goal average dropped to .447, but was good enough for first place in that category. Russell was second at .451 and Kenny Sears of New York, was third at .449. Russell maintained his rebound leadership at 26.1 per game and Maurice Stokes of Cincinnati, stayed on top in assists with a 6.5 average.

Jackie Wins in Hoc-Soc.
The Jacks gained their sixth victory in the Neighborhood Association's Junior Hoc-Soc League by beating the Spartans, 2-0, last night. Hornets beat the Silver Hawks, 11-1, with Richard Porzell scoring three goals.

Texas A-M Bid For Daugherty Reported Made

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 10 (UP)—Michigan State's Duffy Daugherty and Texas A.M. officials conferred over the Aggie football coaching vacancy here last night, but Daugherty left town without any definite action being taken, it was learned today.

The conference took place at the Dallas Athletic Club. Dr. Chris Groneman, A.M. faculty athletic chairman, replied "no comment" to a direct question on the subject.

(The Associated Press last night quoted a member of the A.M. board of directors as saying that Daugherty was the No. 1 choice and he hoped to have the Michigan State coach signed to a contract before he left Texas.)

Daugherty has been one of the top figures mentioned for the job of coach and athletic director at the College Station school since Paul (Bear) Bryant resigned last week to go to Alabama.

The highly-regarded Michigan State coach has been in Texas over the weekend—at Houston and at San Antonio, where he spoke before that city's Quarterback Club yesterday at noon. He flew on to Dallas by private plane with at least one or two members of the A.M. board of directors.

Daugherty left Dallas today for Rochester, N.Y., where he has an engagement tonight.

He declined to discuss the Texas A.M. situation when questioned in San Antonio yesterday. He did say that he was not under any coaching contract at Michigan State—merely a member of the faculty. He said, too, that he had not been approached officially about the Texas A.M. job.

But, that was before last night's meeting, which was understood to have been attended by Dr. Groneman, Texas A.M. president Dr. M. T. Harrington and some of the directors.

22 Points for Abram; Mizzou Wins 3rd Game

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 10.—The Missouri Tigers defeated North Dakota, 78-40, in a mismatch witnessed by 2400 basketball fans here last night that found Coach Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup trying out various combinations as 13 players saw action.

Al Abram, sophomore from St. Louis Sumner, won scoring honors at 22 points as he and Rodger Egelhoff garnered 30 points in the initial half in which the Tigers ran up a 40-10 lead. Abram also was the leading rebounder with 13, although he played no more than half the game.

The Tigers collected on 42.6 per cent of their 68 shots, while North Dakota hit but 22.9 per cent of 48 shots. The Tigers also got nearly two-thirds of the rebounds from the shorter visitors.

It was Missouri's fourth game and third victory in eight days and sets the stage for the next home game against Indiana here Saturday.

The game marked the basketball debut for Phil Snowden, erstwhile football quarterback, who reported for the indoor sport late in less than 90 seconds of play, however, he retired with a turned ankle.

EDICT TO SUBWAY STRIKERS: WORK OR LOSE JOBS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (UP)—The New York City Transit Authority moved to break a crippling strike on its subway system by ordering strikers to return to work this afternoon or be fired.

The transit authority told 2,000 members of the Transport Workers Union and members of six other small unions who have joined the strike that if they wanted their jobs they must give up their fight against domination by the giant Transport Workers Union.

The transit authority offered bonuses to those who work. It set up dormitories in the subways for "loyal" employees and promised time and half for overtime and for those who sleep and eat on transit authority time.

A 25 per cent bonus will be paid operating and maintenance personnel who have worked or will work.

In issuing the back-to-work ultimatum, the TA apparently was invoking New York state's London-Wadlin law, which provides that striking employees of a public agency are subject to immediate dismissal from their jobs. It would be the first time the 10-year-old law would be used in New York City.

The worst transit snarl in the city's history threw the lives of 5,000,000 subway riders out of kilter. They milled around on subway platforms, or stood in the rain waiting for jammed buses that passed them by. Many simply gave up

Soviet Scientists Deny Russia Has Had Any Satellite Failures

MOSCOW, Dec. 10 (AP)—A Soviet scientist boasted today that Russia has made only two attempts to launch earth satellites and both succeeded. Another Russian expert blamed "disregard for theoretical research" for the United States' failure.

The remarks of the scientists were part of a full page display in Pravda saluting the completion of 1000 trips around the earth by Sputnik I, launched Oct. 4.

Academician L. Sedov wrote: "The entire preparatory work of launching the satellites was carried out thoroughly. Separate elements were tested, studied and checked. The general system of launching was designed and analyzed in detail. The result was that in the Soviet Union there were no unsuccessful attempts in launching artificial earth satellites."

"Only two attempts were carried out and both were successful. It can be noted also that the launching of the Soviet satellites was carried out somewhat earlier than originally planned."

Sedov cited America's difficulties with its satellite. But and did not report for work or school.

By the Associated Press. Behind the strike is a jurisdictional dispute between the MBA and the Transport Workers Union, an AFL-CIO group headed by Michael J. Quill. The MBA wants to be recognized as bargaining agent for its members. The TWU is the only bargaining agent for all operating employees.

A fact-finding board recommended a system-wide election scheduled for next Monday, to decide bargaining rights. When the Transit Authority accepted he said the United States has "experienced, fully qualified specialists in rocket technique and I believe they will succeed in launching a satellite after a certain period of time. The Soviet specialists sincerely wish American scientists and engineers success."

Sedov said Soviet scientists hope development of the satellite "will serve as a basis for peaceful competition, for the beginning of joint efforts in the solution of the great tasks of interplanetary travel of the future."

N. Muskhelishvili, president of the Georgian Academy of Science, wrote that scientific progress can be achieved "only with the deep theoretical research which is at the highest level in the Soviet Union."

He added that the American setbacks are due "a certain disregard for theoretical research and to attaching too much importance to empirical, purely practical methods."

A Prof. Sergeyev wrote that: "It already is possible technically to send up a rocket to the moon." He said a manned interplanetary station will be sent up in "the not too far distant" future.

the proposal that one union represent all subway workers, the MBA struck.

The TWU, which claims to represent most subway employees, is supporting efforts to keep the subways running.

The striking motormen are risking jail for violating a no-strike injunction, which came after an MBA nine-hour strike June 14, 1956.

The strikers also are laying their jobs on the line because state law imposes dismissal or severe penalties on civil service workers who strike against Government agencies.

MOROCCAN KING WARNS SPAIN TO EASE UP IN IFNI

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—King Mohammed V of Morocco warned Spain last night to avoid further use of force in the enclave of Ifni, a tiny Spanish-held territory on the Atlantic coast of North Africa.

Spain's actions "might well lead to the deterioration of our relations, with results which we are doing our utmost to avoid," Mohammed declared.

Fighting between Spanish troops and Moroccan irregular forces has been going on in the enclave since Nov. 23. Spanish warships have appeared off the coast.

The King spoke at a dinner given by the Foreign Policy Association.

He charged that the Spanish had rejected peaceful settlement over Ifni.

In Madrid, Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spanish chief of state, ordered the defenders of Ifni to consolidate a five-mile deep perimeter and drive off the attacking Moroccan guerrillas.

Threats Charged.

King Mohammed said Spain used "force and threat in order to keep a part of our national territory despite the tremendous political and international changes which have taken place."

He called the "awakening of Africa the greatest event of the twentieth century. . . . This is the best time for the West to seek co-operation with the African countries on the basis of freedom and equality."

"But if the West chooses to dominate Africa through antiquated colonialistic systems it will certainly miss a vital opportunity that is of supreme importance to the evolution of this continent," the King asserted.

Ready to Attack.

In Madrid, authoritative reports said about 6000 Spanish soldiers have regrouped and are ready to launch a strong attack against the rebels. Up to now Spanish forces have been concentrating on relieving beleaguered outposts and rushing in reinforcements, military sources said.

A War Ministry communique said the first phase of operations ended Saturday with relief of the last two fixed posts under siege in the southeast corner of the colony.

The 600-man Spanish garrison has now been reinforced by nearly 3000 paratroopers, 1500 troops of the Moroccan Legion and artillery units grouped around Sidi Ifni, the Ifnian capital.

This force is reported to be facing bands which have grown to about 10,000 men.

Spain lost 62 men killed and 125 wounded in the first 17 days of the fighting in Ifni, an official statement said today.

The statement was the first official indication of Spanish losses in the fighting.

The Madrid government has contended that its forces in 675-square-mile Ifni initially were attacked by irregulars who crossed the border from Morocco.

WOMAN ROBBED OF $305

Mrs. Sarah Stanton, 85 years old, reported to police she was robbed of $305 last night by a man who entered her rooming house at 2100 Waverly place on the pretext of paying a bill.

As she started to make change for him, she said, he grabbed her purse and ran out of the house. The purse contained the $305.

COUNTY VOTING ON SCHOOLS TO AID HANDICAPPED

Residents of St. Louis county were voting today on a proposal to create a county-wide school district for handicapped children and elect six members of a board of education to administer the district.

A majority of votes cast is needed for approval of the proposal. One board member will be selected in each of six regions or districts. Sixteen candidates are seeking election.

A total of 154 polling places will be open until 7 p.m. today. They are in the same locations as those used in school elections last April, most of them in public schools.

Proponents of the proposed district estimated the vote cast would exceed 62,000, the total cast in school elections last spring.

Backed by P.-T. As.

Formation of the proposed district has been endorsed "by nearly every P.-T. A. in the county," Otis A. See, executive director of a committee that has been campaigning for establishment of the agency, said today. No organized opposition has been reported.

County residents were urged to vote for the proposed district today by county Superintendent of Schools George W. Vossbrink. "It is my personal hope the district will be created so handicapped children will have an opportunity to receive the training they need," he stated.

Formation of the district has been endorsed by the Citizens Lay Advisory Committee to the Ritenour Board of Education. It was announced today by Homer Kern, chairman of the group.

The school board would have authority to levy a maximum property tax of 10 cents on each $100 assessed valuation for operation of the new district. In addition, a higher rate could be levied and bonds issued if approved by voters.

2000 Affected.

The new district would be required, under state law, to establish and operate schools for children under 21 years of age who are "physically or mentally handicapped, blind or partly seeing, deaf or hard of hearing, crippled or mentally retarded or mentally deficient."

School officials have estimated there are approximately 2000 such handicapped children living in the county who do not receive adequate training or education.

Board members elected in the Fifth and Sixth districts would hold office until next April; those in the Third and Fourth until 1959, and those in the First and Second until 1960.

NATIVITY PLAY BARRED FROM PUBLIC SCHOOLS

DELAWARE TOWNSHIP, N.J., Dec. 10 (AP)—Christmas pageants relating to the birth of Jesus have been barred in Delaware township schools.

The action was taken last weekend, it was disclosed, by Dr. Carleton M. Saunders, superintendent of schools, on advice of Edward H. Flemming, school board solicitor.

The action resulted from complaints of parents of children in an elementary class that was planning a play to depict the Nativity. Flemming ruled that under state law the only religion permitted in public schools is the reading of five verses from the Old Testament and the recitation of the Lord's Prayer.

DEFIANT AID OF U.N. CHIEF SUSPENDED

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 10 (AP)—The United Nations Secretariat has been suspended for refusing to turn over to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld official documents of the United Nations Special Committee on Hungary.

Informed sources said the Dane, Povl Bang-Jensen, declined to release names of witnesses who testified anonymously before the committee in its investigations of the anti-Communist revolt of more than a year ago. All were refugees from Hungary.

Bang-Jensen was sole custodian of the list of anonymous witnesses who had testified before the committee with the understanding their names would not be disclosed. They feared possible retaliatory action against relatives or friends still in Hungary.

Informants said the Dane refused to surrender the list on the ground he was not morally and legally free to do so.

He was suspended last Wednesday, and is now in Washington consulting with officials of the Danish embassy on legal aspects of the suspension.

Informants said Bang-Jensen, who served as deputy secretary of the five-nation inquiry committee, was escorted from the U.N. building by two guards and instructed not to return. He is a senior political affairs officer at the U.N.

The U.N. issued its announcement after news of the suspension leaked to the press. It explained the delay in making the news public by saying "it is not the practice of the U.N. to make any announcement on pending personnel action."

BRITAIN'S TINIEST SOLDIER ALSO ITS
TINIEST DESERTER

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP)—Ian McIntyre went into the record books yesterday as the smallest deserter in the annals of the British army.

McIntyre, now 19 years old, tried three times to enlist in 1956. He was rejected each time because he was only 4 feet 10 inches tall, 2 inches short of the minimum.

He took gymnastic training and got his stature up to 4 feet 11 3/4. When he appeared at the recruiting center for the fourth time 10 months ago, it waived the missing quarter of an inch and issued him a specially made uniform.

Disillusion came quickly to Pvt. McIntyre. On parade, his rifle, with bayonet, was longer than he was. Rude types among the other recruits made remarks about his size. He asked for an assignment as a butcher—his civilian trade—only to be told he was too puny to cope with the carcasses.

On Sept. 9 McIntyre took off for his home in Dundee, Scotland. The military police caught up with him on Nov. 18 and he was charged with desertion.

A court-martial sentenced the little soldier to 12 months detention. Two 6-foot military policemen marched him off to the guardhouse.

FRANCE INDICATES
NEED FOR MAJOR FINANCIAL HELP

The New York Herald Tribune-Put-Dispatch Special Radio

PARIS, Dec. 10—French officials, working overtime to strengthen France's financial position among the Western allies, hinted yesterday that this country will need much more than another $262,500,000 credit from the International Monetary Fund to make it a healthy partner in the Atlantic alliance.

This bore out forecasts that early next year France will seek economic aid either from the United States, West Germany or international organizations such as the IMF on the basis of Premier Felix Gaillard's expected showing that budget economies and higher taxes make France a good financial risk. France has already drawn $262,500,000 from the Monetary Fund and it has put the squeeze on dollar holdings of its nationals in banks abroad to increase foreign exchange reserves.

French officials said no negotiations for new foreign aid were under way, but "contacts" had been made with the IMF and other international organizations.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP)—Singer Rosemary Clooney reported to police yesterday that $5000 in jewelry disappeared from her seat on an airplane that brought her from New York. Among the missing items, she said, is a $2200 sapphire diamond bracelet, a gift from her husband, actor Jose Ferrer.

ATTORNEY GENERAL GIVES RULING ON INHERITANCE TAX

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 10—An opinion holding that property transferred in contemplation of death is subject to Missouri inheritance tax laws was made here today by Attorney General John M. Dalton.

The opinion, requested by Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz of St. Louis county, held a recent Supreme Court decision that joint tenancies are not subject to taxes is inapplicable when death is expected.

The property or interests involved in the transfer should be included in the inventory of assets of the estate of the deceased, Dalton held.

SOVIET, HUNGARY REBUFS TOLD BY THAILAND PRINCE

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 10 (UP)—Prince Wan Wathayakon of Thailand reported today that both Russia and Hungary flatly refused to co-operate with him as the United Nation's special investigator of last year's Hungarian revolt. Wan was named by the General Assembly, in a 60-10 vote on Sept. 13, as its special representative to seek Soviet and Hungarian compliance with the U.N.'s repeated demands that Russian troops be withdrawn and free elections be permitted in Hungary. He reported the Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko rebuffed him by saying the issue did not concern the Kremlin and that he would not discuss the "illegitimate" assembly action on Hungary. Wan said he approached Hungarian Foreign Minister Imre Horvath on Oct. 10 and asked "more lenient treatment of prisoners, of persons detained in concentration camps, and of persons awaiting trial and for due judicial process in trials." He also asked for admission of students to universities without discrimination and for an amnesty for political offenders. Horvath replied that these were matters for the Hungarian regime to determine but "finally, he said that if I would draw up a memorandum enumerating the questions on which I wanted information, he would supply the information," Wan reported. Horvath left for Budapest on Oct. 22 and Nov. 15 Horvath's deputy, Endre Sik, told Wan his chief had instructed him "not to accept the memorandum of questions from me." Wan was president of the last General Assembly session and is foreign minister of Thailand. The Assembly by a 77-1 vote, approved the credentials of all delegations to the present session except those of Hungary, on which it took no action. It did not take up Wan's report, which was issued in document form. Serves 7 Years; Then Cleared. MEXICO CITY, Dec. 10 (AP)—After serving seven years of an 8-year sentence for murder, Francisco Munoz Vazquez has been found innocent by the Supreme Court. Vazquez was convicted of killing another man in a bar in 1951.

FOUR CHILDREN SUFFER FROM SMOKE INHALATION. Four small children suffered from smoke inhalation when fire broke out in the bedroom of a dwelling at 4408A North Market street yesterday. All were treated at Homer G. Phillips Hospital. Firemen summoned by neighbors found the children in a bedroom, where they had been left by Mrs. Lille Mae Green while she took another child to school. The children were Mrs. Green's daughters, Dorothy Ann, 4 years old, and Freda, 17 months, and Willie and Minnie Strong, children of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Strong.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Tues., Dec. 10, 1957 5C. 4418 Laclede avenue. Willie, 5 years old, and Minnie, 4 months, were to have been cared for by Mrs. Green while their parents were at work. Firemen, who said the fire was confined to a front room, estimated damage at $350. FPC TO HOLD HEARINGS ON NATURAL GAS RATES. WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission yesterday ordered hearings to start here Jan. 7 to receive basic evidence on natural gas rates charged by producers in various areas of the nation. The commission said that after presentation of the basic evidence its staff, producers and other parties will be given opportunity to give "generally applicable evidence relating to a theory or theories of rate fixing for sales of natural gas by independent producers." The hearings are an outgrowth of investigations begun in 1955 into rates charged the Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., Houston, by a group of independent producers.

U.N. FOR PRIVATE TALKS TO SETTLE ALGERIA DISPUTE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 10 (AP)—The United Nations General Assembly today unanimously approved a compromise resolution expressing the wish that efforts be made to resolve the Algerian problem through private talks.

The action was taken without debate after agreement had been reached in a series of private talks.

It was reported to have been accepted by both France and Tunisia, the leading spokesmen for the Algerian nationalists.

In addition to calling for private talks, the resolution expressed its concern over the situation in Algeria and took note of the offer of good offices made last month by King Mohammed V of Morocco and President Bourguiba of Tunisia. Assembly President Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand read the proposal to the 82-nation body and immediately called for a vote without debate.

There was no objection. Sponsors of the plan were Japan, Norway, Canada, Iran, Thailand, India, Mexico, Ireland, Italy, Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Peru and Spain.

The Asian-African group presented a resolution in the U.N. Political Committee demanding that the U.N. recognize the right of Algerians to self-determination and calling for direct negotiations between the French and Algerian nationalists.

Amendments by Canada, Norway and Ireland removed the reference to self-determination and direct negotiations. The Asian-African bloc then helped defeat the watered-down resolution, and no agreement was reached in the committee.

The Asian-African bloc apparently decided that the compromise solution was the strongest that could be passed at this session and decided to support it.

The Assembly resolution last year expressed hope that a peaceful, just and democratic solution could be found.

POLAND CLAIMS TO MATCH U.S. IN ROCKET SCIENCE

WARSAW, Dec. 10 (UP)—Poland is now producing tactical ballistic missiles and "is in no way behind" the United States and Britain in rocket equipment, the Polish army newspaper said today. It also said Poland can get nuclear weapons and "intercontinental missiles" from the Soviet Union.

The claim in the Polish army organ Zolnierz Wolnosci coincided with reports that Poland had offered as part of a disarmament plan to forego establishment of rocket bases on its territory if the West pledged to bar such missile centers in Western Europe.

The alleged offer, reportedly made by Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki to envoys of the Big Three Western powers here yesterday, could not be confirmed.

Brig. Gen. Czeslaw Czuby-Borkowski, writing in Zolnierz Wolnosci, said Poland is keeping up with the West in its efforts to supply its soldiers with up-to-date equipment.

SAYS EMBEZZLED FUNDS WENT TO BLACKMAILER

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP)—A hardware firm cashier told police yesterday he embezzled $75,000, then handed most of the money to a blackmailer he never saw.

Edward Komis, a $350-a-month cashier for the Chicago Spring Hinge Co., said he began his thefts in June 1955. Police quoted Komis as saying he dipped into the firm's petty cash fund to pay for drinking and high living.

Later in 1955, Komis told police, a man telephoned his home, told Komis he knew of his till tapping and threatened to notify Komis's employer if he was not paid off. From then on, Komis told detectives, 95 per cent of the embezzled funds went to the blackmailer. The money was left in a bus terminal locker, Komis said.

When Misbehavior Is Danger Signal

By Louis Cassels
(Second of Series.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (UP). ALL CHILDREN MISBEHAVE. Most misbehavior is entirely normal. Once in a great while, misbehavior is the surface symptom of emotional illness which requires professional treatment.

Unfortunately for most parents it is not always easy to distinguish neurotic conduct from normal mischief. But there are significant differences which can be spotted.

For this, you have the word of Dr. Fritz Redl, whom many regard as the world's leading authority on "disturbed" children. Redl is chief of the laboratory for child research at the National Institute of Mental Health.

"The first thing I would impress upon parents," he said in an interview, "is that you cannot judge the 'seriousness' of a child's misbehavior by the degree to which it happens to annoy you. Some of the most 'normal' things that children do are a great nuisance to adults. On the other hand, conduct that is very easy on grown-up nerves—such as sitting quietly in a corner—may under some circumstances be indicative of severe neurotic problems."

Redl said it is impossible to draw up two lists of behavior traits and say "normal children do this, sick children do that."

"It is not what a child does, but when and how and why he does it that is the tip-off to emotional illness," he said. "There is usually a compulsive quality about the misbehavior of the disturbed child. I call it 'driveness.' He approaches trouble as if he were being driven into it tense and unhappy. He never derives the relaxed enjoyment which a healthy child finds in a mischievous prank."

For example, Redl said, most young children who are on the verge of misbehavior can be checked by diverting their attention to something else, but the "driven" child is likely to be "undivertable." He pushes headlong into trouble no matter how many distractions you wave at him.

Another test is "the degree to which a child's behavior is way out of proportion to the thing which sets it off." A certain amount of "over-reacting" is natural to children. But it is cause for concern when "a small spark invariably starts a large fire," as in the child who chronically flies into rages over trivial disappointments.

"Age-appropriateness" is a third gauge of normal vs. neurotic conduct. It is normal for a 3-year-old to ignore the difference between fantasy and fact; it is not a trait which you expect to find in an 8-year-old.

Children mature at different rates, and you should allow considerable latitude in determining whether a child's conduct is appropriate to his age, Redl warned. He urged similar caution in applying the other tests. A perfectly normal child will, on some occasions, act with an intensity that a worried parent might consider neurotic.

The thing to look for is not some isolated "symptom" but a persistent pattern of extreme conduct that cannot be "rationally related" to the child's age or environment, and that seems to "come from some force within the child" which he is unable to control.

If you find that, or think you do, arrange through your family doctor, the school, or a clinic for professional diagnoses. It may prove your fears unfounded, or it may start your child on the way to needed help.

TOMORROW: Do's and Don'ts in Discipline.

Dr. Paul Popenoe Dollars and Sense

"THE MORE we study our financial situation, the more discouraged we become," Mrs. C. writes. "We are ordinary people, married four years, have one small daughter, and make a good income. But it never seems to go far enough. We have a new car, completely paid for; and we don't owe a cent on anything, so we're better off than a lot of folks we know. Yet we never seem to get ahead."

"We keep a very accurate account of what we spend or pay for. If we need something, we buy it and we try not to buy anything we don't need. We pay cash for everything but we don't have one cent in savings or even an insurance policy, and we're beginning to feel a little desperate. We can't blame all our troubles on rising prices!"

There are probably several million other families in the same fix, Mrs. C. It will be more important in the coming year than ever before, to put your finances into more business-like shape.

Make up your mind that you are going to save a certain amount each month—no matter what happens. The only way you can do this is to set that amount aside from your paychecks, and treat it as if it didn't exist. If you decide to save 10 per cent and you get $75 a week for instance, deduct $7.50 each week and tell yourself that you're actually getting $67.50 a week. That's all you have to spend and you'll have to do all your figuring on that. You'll often be tempted to break over, but your only hope lies in self-control!

With this amount, start to get your money's worth out of every dollar. You will find it well worthwhile to join one of consumer organizations that makes tests and furnish information on the quality of things you have to buy—from oatmeal to automobiles.

There are two of these non-profit organizations that are nationwide in their coverage: Consumers Research, Washington, New Jersey; and Consumers Union, 38 E. First street, New York 3, N.Y. Each of these publishes a monthly bulletin with detailed reports on quality and value, and you'll certainly save much more than the cost of membership each year by using such information. Your daughter, a few years from now, will enjoy hunting for bargains in this way and seeing how much she can contribute to the family welfare by better buymanship.

You're right, Mrs. C., the coming year and probably numerous others will put a heavier strain than ever on family finances. Now is the time to organize them; remember that you're not doing this as a way of punishing yourself, but as a way of getting more fun out of life.

Unhappy Holidays--A Grim Prospect

However, Your Contribution Can Brighten Outlook for Needy Cases

By Mary Kimbrough

THE PAIN of the lonely, is never more harsh than at Christmas. Mr. B., ill, unable to work, with no relatives or close friends, will receive no cards or gifts. He won't sit down on Christmas day to a bountiful table.

Suffering from asthma and a heart condition which prevent his working, Mr. B. is compelled to depend on a public assistance grant which allows for only 65 per cent of his actual budget. After he has paid his rent and bought groceries for meager meals, there is no money left for coal to warm his house. He hopes to be well enough next year to work and become self-supporting again, but the next few cold months will be hard. A gift of $50 would buy the needed fuel.

Mr. B. is listed as Case 21 among the 100 neediest cases from the files of the Christmas Bureau, an activity of the Social Planning Council of St. Louis and St. Louis County. For such as these, the Post-Dispatch, in co-operation with the Christmas Bureau, sponsors its seventh annual Christmas Fund this year, seeking help for those desperately in need. Gifts of money are requested so that specific needs may be met.

Case 22

Carol is in kindergarten, but because she is an amputee and wears an artificial limb, she finds it hard to run and play with the other children. She loves school, though, and wants to be like all the rest. But her father has deserted his family and Carol's mother, already burdened by the care of her little girl and two older children, finds it hard to eke out enough money from a slender budget to buy the clothing that Carol needs and wants. A gift of $15 would mean a new coat and dresses, and maybe a skirt and blouses for this little girl.

Case 23

Mr. and Mrs. S. love their children and have tried their best to create a warm and loving home for them. But when Mr. S. became ill with tuberculosis, the entire burden of rearing the six children fell on the mother's shoulders. A Christmas gift of $100 would help ease the present financial load and let Mrs. S. buy a few little trinkets for Christmas for her children, in addition to the clothing they need so desperately, and a small remembrance for the ill father.

Case 24

Junior is only 12, but already he knows the loneliness and pain of the shut-in's life. Spending weary days in his wheelchair, Junior finds his only entertainment in the films brought to him by the Volunteer Film Association. One of the finest Christmas gifts for Junior and other shut-ins like him would be an addition to the agency's film library. A contribution of $100 would make this possible and bring

Case 25

Last May, Mrs. M. became disabled and was forced to enter a hospital for surgery. Unable to support herself, she had to seek public assistance, but until her eligibility was established, she had to sell her furniture, piece by piece, in order to buy food and to stay in the hospital. Now, she has only broken-down articles, purchased from junk dealers to furnish her drab home. A gift

Where to Send Contributions

Contributions of money for St. Louis needy families should be mailed to the Christmas Fund Editor, Post-Dispatch, 1111 Olive street, St. Louis 1, Mo. The contributions will be made available to agencies of the Social Planning Council of St. Louis and St. Louis County. Agency case workers will distribute the money to underprivileged families before Christmas.

Please make checks, no matter what amount, payable to the Christmas Fund. Donations received to date total $6003.

For further information or to discuss contributions other than money, please get in touch with the Christmas Bureau of the Social Planning Council, 505 North Seventh street. Telephone numbers are GARfield 1-2600 and GARfield 1-1618.

'Studio One' Adult Eastern

By William Ewald

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (UP). "STUDIO ONE" will move to the West Coast in January in a bid to juice its ratings by pursuing a star policy.

Last night, "Studio One," in one of its farewell efforts out of Manhattan, presented the first section of a two-part Arthur Hailey hospital drama, "No Deadly Medicine." It was an adult eastern.

Hailey's drama deals with an ancient theme—the clash between old and new. Specifically, it traces the conflict between an elderly pathologist (played by Lee Cobb) and his new young assistant (William Shatner).

Cobb's resistance to new ideas is slowing down the life of the hospital. Shatner, cold, brusque, wants to revitalize Cobb's department.

Well, to put it even more bluntly, Cobb smokes stinky cigars—even in the autopsy room. Shatner doesn't even like cigarettes in the autopsy room. Cobb's files are in a mess, he doesn't want a tissue processing machine (whatever that is) and he does all of his whatchamacallit tests with saline solution when everybody knows that high protein serum is the stuff called for.

You can see what that sort of thing leads to and it does. Cobb, one of our more intelligent actors, settled down into a scintillating performance, only slightly marred by an opening scene that saw him crank and crochet around like Lionel Barrymore playing Dr. Gillespie. Particularly fine, I thought, was the act of Betty Sinclair who essayed the role of a woman doctor. Shatner's performance was properly cold, but impaired a bit by some of those annoying mannerisms that so many young actors seem to affect nowadays.

Gloria Vanderbilt, wife of Sidney Lumet, the play's director, played a minor role with buck-toothed charm.

There were, it might be mentioned, several irritating flubs during the hour: Cobb said, "Lucy Grainger is having a baby" when he meant to say "Elizabeth Alexander is having a baby." Shatner referring to a town called "New Richport" said "New Haven," by mistake. And I'm sure that once, someone referred to a character name "Dr. David Coleman" as "Dr. David Graham."

Well, that can be all changed when they move the show to Hollywood. They can just put it on film to be sure.

Anyway, part two might be worth a look-in next Monday. It may be your last chance to see "Studio One" in the East.

AN ACQUAINTANCE in the stock market reports that his wife demanded angrily: "How come you never pay any attention when I've got a cold, but sell everything you own the minute President Eisenhower gets sick?"

How indomitable is the human spirit. Even though it is obviously impossible to think up a Christmas gift so ridiculous that nobody would buy one, people keep trying.

The high school math teacher was called upon by a delegation urging that math be taught in high school. "What," he wonders, "do they think that stuff is that their sons have been flunking all these years?"

News from the Champagne district of France is that the grape crop will be very poor. This is regrettable. Still, if the world is going to explode it would be too bad to have it happen in a vintage year.

Case 26

Tragedy has often visited the X home. Several years ago, Mr. X was injured in an accident and has been unable to work. His wife died last spring after a lengthy illness, and the invalid widower has tried his best to care for the three boys. He has kept them in school, but they all need clothing. A gift of $35 would help this father at the Christmas season.

Case 27

At 13, Susan must assume the responsibility for cooking, washing and ironing for the entire family—since her mother is not living and there is no older sister to help. She wants very much to enjoy the fun that other young people have but her family is living on such a slender budget that no funds for recreation are available. A gift of $17.50 would provide a vacation in camp for Susan next summer and make Christmas a happy time for her as she anticipates the comradeship which awaits her.

Case 28

Until 1956, Mr. D. was able to care for his wife and three young children. But then came the accident which maimed his hand and forced him to leave his factory job. An ambitious young man, 33 years old, he is now driving a taxicab at night and taking a training course which will qualify him for radio-television repair work and help him become self-supporting. If several cash gifts could be combined to meet the cost of his training, it would mean a happy Christmas for this young man and his family.

Case 29

The blind mother of a teenage daughter, Mrs. E. is struggling to keep her home on a limited income. The girl needs clothing and will not participate in school activities because she feels she is not as well-dressed as the other children. This little family often finds itself without adequate food and the constant fear of eviction haunts the handicapped mother. A gift of $40 for food and warm winter clothing would be a welcome Christmas present for this household.

Case 30

Mrs. L. is a widow who lives in a small apartment in a condemned tenement building. She has been told to move but she has no money to pay the required utility deposits and other costs of moving. She worked during her employable years, but the little she could save from low wages was quickly dissipated by medical bills. A gift of $30 would make it possible for her to move to safer living quarters, a lasting Christmas gift.

More case histories of people in need, taken from the files of the Christmas Bureau, will be published Friday.

Herbs and spices add interest to any dish. Include them when food is half tender or shortly before serving. Long cooking may make some herbs taste bitter.

Stan Delaplane Song of Sixpence

RECENTLY a number of people went down to Yorktown and celebrated the surrender of Lord Cornwallis. The band played: "The World Turned Upside Down."

TOKYO ROSE... SCRATCHY RECORDS.

The parades of my youth marched to "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again," "Dixie," "Over There" and "K-k-katy."

After that, military music went to pieces. I did hear an Air Force captain whang away on a Japanese samisen in a dead-fall called Miyoshi's in Tokyo. But it was mainly unnering.

Well, here it is 16 years after Pearl Harbor. And not a song that has held up. That is a meager record. While Senators are talking preparedness, a smart musical Senator could investigate how we are fixed for music.

THE FIRST SONG that came out after Pearl Harbor was "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." It did not last long and never went over with the troops.

The plain fact is we had to fall back on our allies for music. The most popular tunes came from overseas:

"Waltzing Matilda" and "Bless Them All" and "I've Got Sixpence" and "Roll Me Over in the Clover."

A native-born song, "Dirty Gerlie from Bizerte," did not get very far. And "Oh, Mr. Truman, Why Can't We Come Home?" had to lift the musical score from "Lili Marlene."

The English contributed one whose name I do not know:

"I'd rather 'ang around
"Piccadilly Underground
"And live off the earnin's of a 'igh born lydie. . ."

This shows the dreadful state of unpreparedness. And what we probably need is a rousing album of "Music to Shoot Missiles By."

The music offered to the young gentlemen I knew came mainly from Tokyo Rose who had a weakness for the Boston Pops Orchestra. It was pretty scratchy. The records at Radio Tokyo took quite a beating. (I found this out later covering the Tokyo Rose trial. They had Japanese recordings, naturally. But the American records were right down flat.)

If the Russians contributed any music, they did not give it to us capitalists. Not that it matters. I would be fairly dreary marching to "The Volga Boatman."

WE USED TO GET some music from the Army radio stations that went under the name of "The Mosquito Network."

The disk jockey had his eye on the future. He did not figure to make a 30-year man in the Army. And he lavished his big soulful voice on his commercials. He had a Deep South hush puppy accent, "Now, boy, take yore Atabrine. You're a big boy now."

I think he would have liked to have made it a singing commercial. He put a lot of sell into Atabrine. They give the stuff away. You packed it on your belt. And there was always a handful of little yellow pills on the mess table—if you had a table.

It was supposed to keep you from having malaria. And the opposition dropped leaflets saying it would have a lasting and poor effect on your future.

It drove the disk jockey wild:

"Take yore Atabrine," he said. "Them fellers don't know nothin'." Then he would play, "Three Itty Fitties in a Itty Bitty Poo."

He just about drove us wild. That was one thing we weren't prepared for.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

THE BIG DESILU NEWS recently was the purchase of both RKO studios for $6,000,000. For Lucy and Desi, love and laughter have added up to success and happiness. However, they weren't always so certain of a rosy future. . . . Following their merger, serious doubts about the durability of the union were voiced by friends. The doubts were shared by the bride and groom. As Lucy candidly declared: "Marrying Desi was the most daring thing I ever did. Hollywood gave our marriage six months. Me? I gave it six weeks." And now they have $6,000,000.

IT BEGINS in the darkness and ends with a radiant explosion. Like a rocket . . . Julie Harris collected another set of shimmering notices for her performance in "The Country Wife." Only about seven years ago, she was among the countless hopefuls challenging Broadway. Miss Harris had minor roles in eight straight flops. Then the great bleakness was supplanted by the Big Break. When asked what animated her acting career, she explained simply: "Because it was in me." . . . Her common-sense attitude toward stardom is refreshing: "No one ever reaches true stardom in the theater, because no matter how bright your name looks in lights, you have to keep trying for greater achievement."

In other words, do your best—then try to do better.

Teresa Wright, another exile from Hollywood, is on Broadway in "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs." Despite the Movieville accolades, Miss Wright is no stranger to Broadway. Her click in "The Little Foxes," originally attracted movie offers. . . . Incidentally, she is one of the few to fulfill the traditional crystal-balling that goes with graduating from high school. She was voted as "the most likely to succeed in show business."

In her second flicker ("Mrs. Miniver") Miss Wright made the prophecy a reality by winning an Oscar.

Dr. Winchell, the psychiatrist, has frequently noted that the acute sensitivity of playwrights to criticism stems from the fact that artistic creations are their children. And how many parents can accept criticism of their children with equanimity? . . . Ketti Frings, who dramatized Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel" smash-click, made this relationship clear prior to the drama's premiere by writing: "I could not understand my feeling of depression the day 'Look Homeward, Angel' went into rehearsal. I tried to analyze my mood and came to the conclusion that the reason for it was though now that I had born the baby, I could not stand doctors and nurses hanging over it, cuddling and cooing at it. After so long living with my child, I felt lonely and empty. Post-natal blues."

KIM NOVAK has a date with Aly Khan and the news attracts bees headlines. Aly Khan's dilly-dollying seems to collect more newspaper than the opinions of world leaders. . . . And just 3 years ago, Miss Novak toured the country as a model. The tour ended in San Francisco. However, she had the railroad ticket rerouted to Hollywood and planned spending several weeks there. Result: A screen test, a contract—and Kim Novak began her leap from obscurity to stardom and alkyhan.

Refugee Who Painted His Way to U.S.

Artist Victor Jeney's Talent Came in Handy in His Flight From Hungary to St. Louis

By George McCue

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

IF ANYONE in Fohnsdorf, Austria, had suggested a year ago to Viktor Jeney, who was in that city as a refugee from the Hungarian revolt, that in a few months he would be in strong demand as a portrait painter in St. Louis, Mo., Jeney would have considered that interesting but most unlikely.

And if there had been a suggestion that, in addition to this, Jeney might have access to a body of water called the Lake of the Ozarks, from which he would be pulling catfish in his leisure time, that would have been really too much.

Yet, here he is—Viktor Jeney, busy portrait artist in a community previously noted for the low state of its enthusiasm for portraits painted from life. And here he is in his other capacity—Viktor Jeney, catfish catcher, enticing the Missouri delicacy with Hungarian doughballs whenever he can spare the time.

Like the numerous other Hungarian refugees who have crossed the Atlantic this year, Jeney is in this country as the result of the government's hospitality to victims of the revolution that was suppressed by Russian troops. He was flown from Vienna to New Jersey last June in an American refugee plane. The Church World Service, refugee and relief organization of the National Council of Churches pointed him in the direction of St. Louis, and the Men's Council of the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church undertook to help him get established.

Jeney's successful start in St. Louis would not have been possible without a great deal of aid from a good many people, but the fact that he is firmly rooted now is also largely owed to his own efforts. In his six months here, he has rapidly extended his command of English beyond the two words he could speak last June, which were "Thank You." Only recently has he been able to tell the story of how he escaped from Hungary.

THE JENEY FAMILY (pronounced Yenei) first became refugees after World War I, when the mother and six children, left eastern Hungary, fled to Romania and moved to Budapest. Viktor Jeney had entered an army officer's training school at the age of 10. His father was a provincial government official; his grandfather had been a professor of philosophy at the University of Kolozsvar. When Viktor was 16, he fell in a wall-scaling exercise, and permanently injured his back. This ended his military career, and after finishing high school he entered an art school.

Prior to World War II, Jeney had his own studio in Budapest, specializing in portraits but also doing murals and sculptures. The postwar government took over the artist guilds, and Jeney did copy work in the state-controlled art museum.

Jeney and two other painters in his guild belonged to the resistance movement that gradually came into being. On Oct. 23 last year, the day the revolution broke out in Budapest, Jeney and about 20 others decided that their first blow for freedom would be directed at a 24-foot bronze statue of Stalin that had been installed there. The symbol of tyranny was too firmly anchored for this group, however, and an hour later a larger band of students and young workers tackled it again with winches mounted on trucks. After the cables snapped several times, they attacked the statue with acetylene torches. The colossus swerved but did not fall. Finally, at about 10 o'clock, more people with more equipment loosened the towering figure from its base and sent it crashing to the ground. By that time, Russian tanks were ranging about, and Communist troops had surrounded the city.

On Nov. 28, Jeney decided he had better get out, if he could. He and about 30 others got on a train headed for the Austrian border. A Russian soldier got on the train, too, and Jeney knew that unless he could prove he lived at the train's destination, he would be arrested.

"I have very big luck," Jeney says in his stripped-down but eloquent basic English. "I was in first car, and this soldier began at other end. When he came in my car, there I sit. Station man comes in car and say to us 15 or 20 minutes from border station. Three boys, 19 or 20 years old, jump on curve when train go slow. I jump also. Boys ran. I ran also. Boys ask me where I go. I say I go with you."

It was night, around 7 o'clock. A cold wind was blowing rain in their faces. They slogged across muddy fields, going as fast as they could. Finally, they saw the lights of a farmhouse. Jeney knew he was impeding the boys' progress, so he insisted that they go on. He slept in the barn.

The next morning the farmer took Jeney into his home. By the following day, it had stopped raining and the farmer's son took Jeney into the nearby forest where the son worked with a group of woodcutters. They said it was only three miles to the border, and suggested that he cross it after dark. By now it was snowing.

In the afternoon, a group of about 20 people came along, following a creekbed. The woodcutters, recognizing them as refugees, halted them and said they were going the wrong way. In the group were the three boys who had jumped off the train with Jeney. Border soldiers had captured them and put them back on the train for Budapest. They had jumped off again, and were making another try for the border.

The woodcutters drew a rough map, showing the location of a hill from which could be seen the lights of a village just over the Austrian border. They said that a creek just beyond the hill was the frontier. The crowd departed in a long line, with Jeney on the end. Again he found himself alone. He crossed numerous creeks, and never knew which one marked the border. He saw the lights of a village. He went up to a house. A man answered the door and said, "Come in. You are in Austria." The village was Rechwitz, and this householder was getting used to staying up all night to admit cold, hungry refugees.

The family served Jeney coffee and bread, and directed him to the Red Cross. There he found the others in his group and others totaling 100 or more. Red Cross automobiles arrived from time to time, bringing more—the nightly routine, Jeney was told. The Red Cross and the Austrian government shipped the refugees by train from this town to Fohnsdorf, where the Hungarians were asked where they wanted to go. Jeney didn't know. His 76-year-old mother was still in Budapest, and he wanted to get her out, if possible.

Here, Jeney made practical use of his talent. "I went to hotel and make portrait of boss, a drawing, and he give me room and some money. With money, I buy oils and work two or three weeks on portraits. Doctor in refugee camp. Red Cross woman. Three doctors in one picture. Framemaker put portrait in window with sign. More orders."

IN TWO MONTHS, he was able to move on to Vienna and to rent a room instead of staying in the refugee camp. Hastily brushing up on German he had learned in military school, he was getting along well in Austria. He got a job in an art gallery whose clients wanted still lifes and landscapes. The proprietor said it would be too complicated to explain about Jeney's Hungarian background, so all these works were signed V. Rohrbacher, a name that would arouse no curiosity in Vienna. He telephoned his mother, and told her he would send for her as soon as he could.

Jeney heard that life was good in the United States, and applied at the American consulate for entry. A clerk asked if he had any friends or relatives in this country.

"I said I had nothing, nobody. He said not possible. Finally consul come in, tall man with white hair. He said could go. In three days had ticket."

At a hotel in Brooklyn, where Jeney was housed for 10 days, he was again asked the now familiar question, where he wanted to go. Again he said he didn't know.

"Woman in Presbyterian office said St. Louis is good for me. I look on map. St. Louis has big river, maybe same size Danube in Budapest. She say she think it not good for me in New York, little fish in big lake. I say St. Louis is good. Big river, and I like fishing, so I come to St. Louis." The interrogator's figure of speech had reminded Jeney of something important to him.

But it wasn't that simple on the St. Louis end.

One day, Carl Phelan, projects chairman of the Men's Council of the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, got a telephone call from the World Service office in New York. On file there was a letter that said the Webster Groves church probably could find work for a commercial artist. New York said they had such a man and would like to send him on the first available train.

Phelan was flabbergasted. "I said, 'Look at the date on that letter—it's a year old.' We already had taken three people here in an earlier program to aid Dutch people from Indonesia, and one of them was the artist we said we could place."

But New York urged the church to take one more, and it did. The church was put under no commitment to support refugees, only to try to work something out. So Jeney was put on a train with $10 for expenses.

Phelan got Jeney a room at the Parkhurst Hotel, whose proprietor speaks Hungarian and which is near the International Institute, where Jeney could study English. Jeney had some painting equipment with him, and with some additional supplies provided by Phelan got to work on a portrait of Mrs. Phelan. Phelan called up Vivian Chevillon, a painter and member of the Artists' Guild who she belongs to and others where she has friends, "everywhere, in fact, where I could get hold of the microphone for three minutes," and lined up some commissions that way. Several members of the church saw Mrs. Phelan's portrait, and decided that the Jeney touch was something they needed over the mantle.

By October, Jeney had finished enough portraits to hold a one-man show in the church fellowship hall, and the portrait of Mrs. Chevillon and one of Dr. Reuben F. Pieters, the pastor, which Jeney presented to the church, were admitted to the Artists' Guild annual portrait show last month.

Jeney's portrait business has been snowballing nicely, and he is solidly booked up for the present. He paints his subjects in their homes where, he feels, familiar surroundings in keeping with the personality and make the sitter feel more at ease. He indomitably paints hands, which many portrait artists try to sidestep or include only at a premium price. He paints from life, except for young children who can't sit still for a three-day time exposure.

Jeney is very happy, but his finest hour came on an Ozark outing when his Hungarian doughballs, made with cooked cornmeal and other things that appealed to carp in the Danube, seemed to have an electrifying effect on the catfish around here. He was catching fish while his companions were just sitting there.

He has arranged for his mother to live with his sister in Brazil, and his English is rapidly taking on idioms. "I think now I am over the hump," says Viktor Jeney.

HARRY J. FISHEIN, manager of the Mayfair Bridge Club, had the fun of making a small slam at spades by a rare maneuver—a transfer squeeze—when he met today's hand in a rubber bridge match.

West opened the jack of hearts and Fishbein went up with dummy's ace, successfully finessed the queen of clubs and tried to cash the ace of clubs. Had it gone through, he would have cashed the ace-king of diamonds and then cross-ruffed hearts and clubs for seven-odd, winning a heart and three club ruffs, two diamonds and two spades in the closed hand.

But West ruffed the ace of clubs and returned a spade and Harry could count only 11 tricks, for he was now minus the ace of clubs and one of his club ruffs. So declarer led for his twelfth trick by a double squeeze, squeezing East in clubs and diamonds. West in hearts and diamonds. The only trouble was that East with his king of hearts had that suit guarded. So declarer by leading the queen of hearts from dummy and forcing East to cover and have his king ruffed transferred control of the heart suit from East's king to West's ten, putting the double squeeze into operation.

Fishbein won West's trump lead at trick four in the closed hand, ruffed a club in dummy and played the queen of hearts, trumping East's king. He ruffed another club and West under-ruffed to avoid a red discard. Declarer returned to his hand by trumping the three of hearts and drew trumps, leaving this situation:

Now the lead of the spade queen forced West to hold the high heart ten and let go a diamond. Declarer discarded dummy's now worthless heart and East was squeezed. East had to throw a club, retting up South's eight, or a diamond, setting up dummy's eight. Either way, South made six spades, losing a club ruff.

Christmas Reunions For St. Louis Families

By Karin Hayward

MR. AND MRS. JOEL Y. LUND, who moved East from St. Louis a few years ago, this year will celebrate their first Christmas in their new home in Morristown, N.J. The house, built in 1823, has been extensively redecorated by the Lunds and will be the scene of a family reunion during the holidays.

—Hal Photo Photograph.
MRS. LUFKIN... TO SPEND HOLIDAYS HERE.

Vassar College, where she is a senior, to spend the holidays with the group.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wende Lufkin of New York will be among those coming to St. Louis for the holidays. Mrs. Lufkin was Miss Frances Blakeslee Cook before her marriage last February. She and Mr. Lufkin will be the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Cook, 5024 Westminster place.

THERE WILL BE a family reunion this Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philo Rockwell King, 14 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves, with their three children returning home for the holidays. The Kings' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas G. Foote (Cathryn King) of Nashville, Tenn., will arrive here Dec. 20 with their two children, Cathy and Douglas Jr. The Kings' other daughter, Mrs. Carl C. Ulstrup (Mary Elizabeth King), and her husband plan to be in St. Louis Christmas eve from their home in Falls Church, Va. Philo Rockwell Jr., a musician and entertainer now playing in Michigan, will arrive to see his family on Dec. 22 and after the holidays will depart for Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis L. Brown of Duncan, Okla., will come to St. Louis to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Valle Jones, 5 Apple Tree lane, Ladue. With the Browns will be their four-month-old daughter, Elizabeth. Mrs. Brown is the former Miss Mary Genevieve Barnickel Jones. Mr. and Mrs. Jones' son, Michael, a student at the Abbey School, Canyon City, Colo., also will spend his vacation here.

Card Parties at St. Louis Woman's Club.

THE CARD COMMITTEE of the St. Louis Woman's Club has announced two events, a luncheon bridge and a dinner bridge for this month. The former will be given Thursday at the club, 4600 Lindell boulevard. Members may bring guests to play bridge or any other card game they choose. A prize is given by the card committee for each table at which three club members are playing.

The dinner bridge will take place Wednesday, Dec. 18. Mrs. Harry C. Henger is chairman of the card committee; Mrs. William R. Bright, vice chairman, and Mrs. James C. Doneghy, secretary. Other committee members are Mrs. Hugh W. Baird, Mrs. Richard G. Baumhoff, Mrs. George A. Bayle Jr., Mrs. Merwyn H. Cable, Mrs. Randall Foster, Mrs. Val J. Goessling, Mrs. Fred Hume, Mrs. Otto St. Clair Krebs, Mrs. C. Carter Lewis, Mrs. Charles R. Manassa, Mrs. H. Vester Mullins, Mrs. Carl Rohde, Mrs. G. Locke Tarlton and Mrs. David Edward Ward.

Green-Ray Wedding Saturday.

THE MARRIAGE OF Mrs. Lewis A. Ray (Leola Meyers) and Frederick William Green will take place Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock at the Church of the Ascension with the Rev. James H. Clark officiating. Afterward guests will remain for a reception at the church.

Mrs. Ray, who lives at 932 Coffey drive, Crestwood, will be attended by Mrs. Joseph Geyer, and Mr. Green will have his son, Theron Green, of Memphis, Tenn., as best man.

Mrs. Ray, whose husband died four years ago, is the mother of Mrs. John H. Stahlhuth and Mrs. Robert M. Goessling, St. Louis; Robert L. Ray, Oakland, Calif., and Mrs. H. Clark Hale, Berkeley, Calif.

Mr. Green retired in 1951 as president of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Co., after 35 years' service. He served as lieutenant colonel in World War I and won the Distinguished Service Medal and the French Legion of Honor. A widower, he lives at 6203 Washington avenue. In addition to Theron Green, he is the father of William Green of Collinsville and Mrs. Theodore Eggman of St. Louis.

Betty Jane Fritz Plans Wedding.

AMONG THE holiday weddings will be that of Miss Betty Jane Fritz and Jack E. Englick who will be married at 8 o'clock the night of Dec. 30 at University Methodist Church. Afterward the prospective bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. Harry R. Fritz, 8141 Stanford avenue, University City, will give a reception at the church. The Rev. Jesse E. Thomas will perform the ceremony.

Miss Fritz has asked Mrs. Howard Nelson (Dorothy Vickroy) to serve as a matron of honor and Miss LeVantha Fisher, Mrs. Ralph A. Muckerman (Joan Lundstedt), Miss Alice Peterson and Miss Lida Smith to serve as bridesmaids. Mr. Englick, son of Mrs. Adolph Englick, Kansas City, Mo., will be attended by David McKinstry, Milwaukee, as best man. Ushers will be Gary Clark, a student at Yale University School of Law; David Jenkins, who attends Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy, Rolla; Larry Lee, Kansas City, and Daniel Rogers.

Parties have been given in honor of Miss Fritz by Mrs. James C. Greeson, Mrs. H. M. Duphorne, Mrs. William F. Anthony, Mrs. Muckerman, Mrs. Leslie E. Burns. She shared honors with Miss Ann Muhl, who will be married Dec. 28 to Gerald Kent Saul, at a party given by Mrs. Earl Moore and Mrs. Wade Hayes. Other parties for Miss Fritz were given by Mrs. Fred S. Kelly, Miss Smith and Mrs. W. E. Liggett.

Miss Petersen has planned a linen shower Dec. 18 for Miss Fritz. Miss Julie Gilbert will give a bridge party Dec. 22. Mrs. Nelson and her mother, Mrs. Theodore Vickroy, will be hostesses Dec. 28 at the spinster dinner, and that same evening the bachelor party will be given by Daniel Rogers. The rehearsal dinner will be given Dec. 29 by Mrs. Englick at the Castlereagh Tearoom.

Gen. and Mrs. Lelf J. Sverdrup were guests of honor Saturday night at the annual Christmas dinner dance given by the 102nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives' Auxiliary. The party took place at the Clayton Elks Club ballroom.

Smiling At Misfire Of Missile

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. I UNDERSTAND that the United States was the subject of a good deal of wit and humor in the United Nations last Friday. At first there was dismay when the news came that our much-heralded missile had blown up on the ground, and then a broad smile spread over everybody's face at the opportunity this gave them to make fun at the expense of the United States.

If we must talk so much about things before we really do them, we must learn to take the amusement of other nations also. There is always a certain satisfaction in somebody else's lack of success, even though on second thought you may be a little troubled by the failure since you are counting on that particular somebody else to do a good deal for you in one way or another.

A good many people are counting for protection and for help in various economic ways on our ability to succeed in technical development, and in the long run it is to everybody's interest that we go quietly about our business of development and announce what we do and where we are when we have sufficiently experimented to know that we have a success. I don't know what has happened to us, but it seems to me we have become even more talkative in the last weeks whereas I think it would be wise to be less so.

And now we have an accusation from Khrushchev that we are hiding the carrier rocket of Sputnik I which, he says, fell in the United States on Sunday a week ago. A number of responsible people have already said that we know of no such landing, and of course we have not as yet been told how the Soviets know that this rocket carrier did land on our territory.

There are vast areas of this country where I suppose a rocket of this kind might land and be lost forever. The

Two Programs To Review Book Scheduled By Wednesday Club

"TIS CHRISTMAS," will be the title of a program to be given by the poetics section of the Wednesday Club in the auditorium tomorrow following luncheon at 12:30 p.m. The program, under the direction of Mrs. Seward McKiltrick, will consist of traditional and modern Christmas poetry illustrated with tableaux and a musical background. The scenes will suggest customs of many countries at Christmas.

The poems will be read by Mrs. Gustavus A. Buder Jr., Mrs. Walter J. Knight, Mrs. John H. Leaver and Mrs. Edwin C. Mueller. Those to appear in the tableaux are Mrs. Raymond C. Bond, Mrs. George W. Coleman, Mrs. Daniel H. Hundley, Mrs. Herbert S. Gardner Jr., Mrs. Roy W. Jordan, Mrs. W. Ben Knight Jr., Mrs. Clayton R. Lupton Jr., Mrs. Arthur W. Neilson, Mrs. Erwin E. Schowengerdt, Mrs. William N. Sellman, Mrs. Marion J. Stuhl, Mrs. John H. Radford, Mrs. Richard G. Tennant, Mrs. George R. Dobler and Mrs. Charles Thompson II.

The international relations and social economy section of which Mrs. Tobin Carlin is chairman, will have a program tomorrow at 11 a.m., also in the club auditorium. The Rev. Dr. Wesley H. Hager, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, will speak on "The Free World Against Communism." Dr. Hager, a former president of the Greater St. Louis Ministerial Alliance, has been active in many civic and educational projects. He will be introduced by Mrs. Arthur Wright Neilson.

Soviets also have vast areas where this might happen to them. Hence their promise to return any rocket fired by us which lands on their shores might not be as easy for them to keep as they seem to think. However, let's successfully fire one before we make any deal with them about returning it, and let's stop talking until we have actually accomplished something.

Benefit Auction Of Gifts, Books

KEEPING a tradition of many years, Mrs. Buena Stolberg and Miss Corinne Jackson will be hostesses at their home, 402 Bradford street, Webster Groves, Saturday, to Pi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma for its annual Christmas dinner and auction of gifts and books for the benefit of its World and Community Service Fund.

A sale of gifts and books, donated by Pi members, will take place after the dinner at 6 p.m. Mrs. Stolberg will be auctioneer. Proceeds of the sale will be used for the chapter's scholarship fund which annually assists a St. Louis area graduate attend a teachers college, and to send art supplies to a school in Korea.

Pi's service fund in former years has helped three young women attend teachers colleges, and has benefited the Korean school, the Volunteer Film Association, the Philippine Teachers College in Manila, the Save the Children Federation, and the Missouri State Teachers Association Bunker Hill Resort. Also books and magazines have been distributed to hospitals and southern Missouri schools.

The hostesses will be assisted by Miss Orena Moomaw, Webster Groves Pi member, who will also provide decorations.

Chairman of Pi's World and Community Service Committee is Miss Grace Whanger and other members are Miss Dessa Manuel and Miss Helen Hon. The scholarship committee is composed of Mrs. Stolberg, chairman, Miss Gertrude May and Miss Bernice Rahn.

Student Union Building, 5300 Enright avenue, Miss Clara Mutschnick, Miss Katherine Huckle and Miss Aurelia Sullivan are in charge of arrangements.

The Query Club will meet at Missouri Athletic Club Friday at 10:30 a.m. for its Christmas program. Mrs. Rose Weist, program chairman, will present Mrs. Henry Johnson who will give a Christmas story. Mrs. Gifford Jenkins will preside.

MRS. ROBERT J. RICHARDSON, WHO WILL REVIEW THE BOOK, "ROOM IN THE INN," AT THE ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PARTY TO BE GIVEN BY THETA XI MOTHER'S CLUB AT THE FRATERNITY HOUSE ON THE CAMPUS OF WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY THURSDAY AT 12:30 P.M. MRS. LOUIS E. SAUER AND MRS. FRED TIARKS ARE CO-CHAIRMAN.

Mrs. Edward R. Crebs, 14 Spoele lane, Creve Coeur, will be hostess to The Seekers Thursday at 11 a.m. Mrs. Alex Walther, president, will preside. A program of Christmas music will be given by Mrs. Kenneth Scheibel, Mrs. Robert Lees and Mrs. Edward L. Young. Luncheon will be served afterward.

Sterling Price Chapter, U.D.C., will have a Yuletide party tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Howard Crosby, 309 West Washington avenue, Kirkwood. After luncheon, at 12:30 p.m., Mrs. George M. Johnson, program chairman, will present Mrs. Lennis Everett Young, state president, who will be the speaker.

Harris Teachers College Alumni Association will give its annual Christmas tea Thursday from 4 to 6 p.m. at the

Martha Carr's

OPINION

Dear Martha:

THIS MAY SOUND like a very silly problem, but I don't know what to do about it. I belong to a club of women and last year I was named chairman of a certain event which is a high point on our club calendar. I feel that the committee did an excellent job and we received many compliments on the success of the event. This year, another woman has been asked to take the chairmanship and I am on the committee. But so far, she has done absolutely nothing on it and time is growing short. I don't like to act as though I'm the only one who can do anything and I don't like to criticize her to the president, but I am getting worried. What is your advice?

Readers are requested to keep their letters short when writing to Martha Carr. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with the letter, you send to Martha Carr, in care of the Post-Dispatch. Letters of a medical or legal nature cannot be answered.

A. I can understand your concern about the club activity, but you probably would cause real trouble if you tried in any way to usurp the other's authority. Surely, as the time grows short, the president will begin to check. It would not be out of line for you and other committee members to ask the chairman casually about when you are to meet to start your plans. You could even recall some of the headaches you encountered or the shortcuts you took in last year's program without seeming to take over. But in the last analysis, it is her responsibility and no one can meet it for her.

Dear Martha:

PLEASE, I would like to write a few lines to the men and women who try—and do—break up some happy homes. I was a happily married man until a certain girl came to work for me. She gave me that baby look and sob story and I was taken in. I found out too late she had ruined three happy homes. I am not excusing myself for I was very wrong and now, 10 years later, at 69, I have no wife, no home, no nothing. My wife divorced me, so I am a lonely man. Men and women, take heed and stay on the right side of the street. Be honorable and decent.

LONELY AND SORRY.

A. Yes, you were wrong, but what a tragedy you couldn't have looked into the future and realized what a terrible price you would pay. Unfortunately, too many cheating men and women won't accept any blame unless and until the bill comes in and they learn they've lost their homes and the love and respect of their wives or husbands.

Dear Martha:

I am to be married soon in a church wedding and have a question to ask about the ceremony. My father is not living. I have no close male relatives. Could my mother give me in marriage?

A. Of course. Sometimes the widowed mother walks down the aisle with her daughter, or, if she prefers, she may step from her place in the church and join the bride at the altar. Again, the bride may be escorted to the altar by a male relative or close family friend and when the clergyman asks who is to give the bride away, her mother nods from her place or says, "I do." Your clergyman can help you with this.

What will you name the baby? Will it be Charles or John or William or, perhaps one of the names which have come into recent popularity, such as Robin or Mallory or Trent? Martha Carr's list of several hundred suggested names for both boys and girls will help you select the one you like best. Send today for your free copy, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Clarissa Start Children's Book List

BROWSING IN A BOOKSTORE the other day I saw a woman looking at children's books. She picked up first one, then another, then hesitated over one that is a particular favorite at our house.

"Oh please buy that," I wanted to say, "it's a wonderful book." But shyness at speaking to a stranger in a public place prevented me. Perhaps, however, through the impersonal medium of a column, I can tell some of you with 5, 6 or 7-year olds on your Christmas book list of some of the books which have delighted us this past year.

Nightly reading is a ritual at our house, and our enjoyment has been greatly enhanced by the help of our literary fairy godmother, Virginia Rosenmeyer, of the extension division of St. Louis Public Library, who sends us books she thinks would interest our 6-year-old. Not everyone is fortunate enough to have a personal librarian but we're happy to share some of the choices which have proved most popular.

Our biggest discovery of the year was Virginia Kahl, whose stories in verse are illustrated with Bavarian style drawings. We've read "Maxie," "The Habits of Rabbits," and "Plum Pudding for Christmas," the latter with the memorable refrain, "Plums that are purple, plums in a clump, so that each bumpy lump is a plum that is plump."

SINCE OUR BOY is building-minded, he enjoyed "Mike's House," by Sauer; "Who Built the Bridge?" by Bate, and "The Big Book of Real Building and Wrecking Machines," by Zaffo. (Ask me anything about three axle tandem rollers and Diesel engines.)

We both loved "Anatole," by Titus; "Six Foolish Fishermen," by Elkin; "The Biggest Bear," by Ward; "Make Way for Ducklings," by McCloskey; "Night and Day," by Brown; "Hurry the Dirty Dog," by Zlon; "Madeline," by Belamant; "The Useful Dragon of Sam Ling Toy," by Dines; "Cat in the Hat," by Dr. Seuss, and "Beady Bear," by Freeman. (Beady contains a line which Virginia Rosenmeyer threatens to nail to her office door some day: "I have gone to live where a bear is s'posed to live.")

Some of our favorites are classics: "The Travelling Musicians," by Grimm; "Wind in the Willows," by Graham; all the Babar and Winnie-the-pooh books, and all of Beatrix Potter, creator of "Peter Rabbit." (Children's publisher Annis Duff says, "If I should be limited to the books of one author for my children, I should certainly choose Beatrix Potter.")

OUR CURRENT FAVORITES are Christmasy and include "The Christ Child," by Matthew and Luke with beautiful illustrations by the Petershams; the perennial "Night before Christmas," by Clement Moore; "Year without a Santa Claus," by McGinley, and "Paddy's Christmas," by Monsell, the latter a charming story about a little bear who finds out why Christmas "looks pretty and smells nice and makes you feel good from the inside out."

Which brings us back to "Plum Pudding for Christmas," in which the king declares that, "A Christmas like this is what all people need." To which we add, books like these are what all Christmases need.

Flapper of the '20s Is Back as Sleeper

By Sylvia Stiles

FASHION-WISE, the 1957 flapper is a night-time girl. Not entirely convinced that the revived chemise silhouette is sufficiently flattering for public appearance, she has been trying it out in the boudoir.

Favorite sleepwear of the teen-ager as well as her older sister is a glorified sack that has become so popular in the young fashion world that one St. Louis manufacturer is finding it difficult to turn out a supply fast enough to keep up with the demand. Be-ribboned, pleated, and frilled with lace, this garment repeats the theme of the flapper dress of the '20s even to its elongated top that hangs straight from the shoulders to the hips and its wisp of a full skirt. For added quaintness, matching bloomers are provided.

RECOGNIZED for leadership in the designing of many young ideas in fashions, the St. Louis market again claims a "first" in the creation of this newest version of the "baby doll" sleeper. It started when the Barad brothers, Melvin who is vice president and Leonard who is in charge of designing for the family business—decided it was time that the "Baby Dolls" which they launched several years ago needed a new look and Chanel was the one to provide it. They flipped back the pages of history to the Charleston era, took some tailored details from sportswear styles, added some girlish furbelows, and produced a gay little flapper model that is selling from New York to California.

A ST. LOUIS FIRST.

Low-necked and sleeveless, these flapper sets are regarded primarily as summer items but stores have launched them with surprising success. With 10,000 orders on the books for January and February delivery, the modest Barad establishment at 1021 Washington avenue is humming with activity. These orders have come from every major city as well as many small towns. Thirty-five thousand sets have been cut and sent out to the two factories at Louisiana and Salem, Mo., to rush into production.

DISTRIBUTED under the name of "Skiddoo," these flapper "Baby Dolls" are featured in nine different types. Several of the longer waltz-length gowns and pajama sets with tapered T-reaser-length pants instead of bloomers are included. Most popular styles thus far are brief. There is the one with a tiny tailored collar and pockets which some of the retailers have named the "Boo-boo-e-do." Another with satin stripes going horizontally on the long-waisted bodice and crosswise on the pleated skirt has inspired the name "Razzmatazz" and a third with a dotted design and pink ribbon sash has been identified as the "Yo-de-o-do."

All of the garments are made of a drip-dry batiste in dainty pastel shades, such as pale blue and pink. Some are buttoned at the front; others slip over the head and in true chemise fashion hang loosely from the shoulders. For those who want warmer sleepwear, the Barads still make the old-fashioned "granny" nightgowns of cotton challis as well as flannel-ette pajamas but the sales charts have convinced them that their newest flapper "Skiddoo" with abbreviated skirts are the ones the girls like best.

Even if your entrance hall has no distinctive feature to play up, an imaginative use of lighting fixtures can create a point of interest. In a traditional room, hang a group of Colonial brass ceiling lights at graduated distances.

Service Smiles By Art Gates

workmen were building a road. Soon afterwards the skeletons of two young men, a woman and a child were found close by, along with flint tools. Scientists were quick to study the remains. They learned (from the skulls) that the Cro-Magnon people had brains equal in size to those of modern man. The men of that race were tall, averaging close to six feet. Since that time, other remains of the same type of human beings have been located in various countries. It seems clear that they were the chief ancestors of people in western Europe.
